Pomona real estate sales up 18 per cent

The Pomona real estate market is apparently beginning to recover from a five-year slump, according to the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors.

The sale of property in the city was up more than 18 per cent last year over the 1974 figures; the dollar volume of those sales was up by one third; and new life is being breathed into several large commercial properties which have stood vacant for years.

"We're finally out of it," Mark A. Warren, president of the Realtor group, declared Saturday. "We have bottomed out. The new year certainly appears to be a turnaround year."

His report was the third indicator in six weeks that the valley's economy was improving. Last December, local merchants said their Christmas sales were much higher than for the same time in 1974. And at the end of November the automobile industry reported sales far exceeding those of the year before.

Warren admitted that there has been a trend here to move to the outlying communities. But he said his figures showed that more families were moving into Pomona than out of it, especially during the past six months.

"While the newcomers are of every ethnic background, a recent survey of our members indicates that the new Pomona residents are typically young married couples with no children, coming primarily from the San Gabriel Valley, Hacienda Heights, El Monte and Orange County," he said.

"They come here because inflation has not hit the valley as hard as some other places. But values are beginning to rise now that sales are picking up."

The sales, as reported by member Realtors are up 18 per cent. A total of 1,627 parcels were sold in 1975, excluding homes owned by the government, compared with 1,406 the year before. The dollar value of those sales was $38 million in 1974 and $51.4 million last year.

The number of vacant homes in the city, owned by the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), dropped from 600 at the beginning of 1975 to fewer than 100 this month. In a one day sale of HUD homes last Tuesday, 28 parcels were sold for about $600,000, an average of $22,000 a home.

But, Warren said, one of the most encouraging reports of all is the sale of large commercial properties which have been vacant for several years. These are the sales which are expected to generate additional jobs in the near future:

— The 13-acre former plant of Freightliner Corp. has been bought by a concern that intends to make plastic products.

— The abandoned former Ralph's Market at the corner of Towne Avenue and Arrow Highway is being turned into a large furniture outlet.

— Across the street, the former Shopping Bag market property has been sold, along with the entire adjacent acreage to the south of Vassar Street, to another developer.

— Casa Colina Hospital plans to expand, having bought six acres of property on N. Garey Avenue, and a motel adjacent to the present quarters.

— Xerox Corp. plans to build a warehouse on Bonita Avenue across from Casa Colina.

— A professional building is going up on Foothill Boulevard east of the newly built Acapulco Restaurant.

Those transactions represent many new jobs for valley residents, adding further impetus to the improvement of the local economy, Warren contended. And he said he felt the community was in good shape to provide a labor pool, particularly now that much of the unrest of the past was over.

"Recent figures released by the Pomona School District show that we now have a balanced community," he said. "To me this means that most of our racial problems and confrontations are behind us. Many other communities have not had their share yet, but we can now look forward to comparative stability."

He said that with stability come increases in property values as well as marked improvement in the economy. Warren feels both are due in 1976.

Physician-funded pool

Doctors come up with own plan

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The California Medical Association proposed Saturday that a statewide physician-funded pool be set up to pay malpractice claims, in hopes of ending an 11-day-old doctors' slowdown.

The CMA said it would seek legislation setting up the voluntary pool as an alternative to policies provided by private insurers at currently skyrocketing costs.

Annual premiums would average $4,000, said a spokesman, compared with rates under the present setup that would reach as high as $36,000 under announced increases.

The CMA proposal included several modifications in the laws governing malpractice claims. They included compulsory arbitration appealable to the courts; requirement that an expert physician certify the merits of a malpractice suit; elimination of pain-and-suffering and punitive damages; and further restrictions in the statute of limitations.

Meanwhile, the slowdown cut further into the availability of community hospital care Saturday, although a round-the-clock emergency referral operation kept the overflow of patients from jamming county-run facilities.

"It looks to me like things are a little worse in the community," said Stan Grant at the county's Emergency Operation Center (EOC).

He said the doctors' withholding of nonemergency services to protest rising malpractice insurance rates had worsened in the San Gabriel Valley and Pomona areas east of Los Angeles which previously escaped much of the slowdown.

"Hospitals that had a limited ability to admit patients in the past few days now have no ability" to accept seriously injured persons requiring specialized surgical care, he said. All hospitals are accepting general medical patients whose doctors are not participating the walkout, he explained, and no hospitals have completely shut down.

The massive county-operated hospital system, which has been bearing the brunt of patients seeking treatment because their doctors have shut their offices or slowed down, was "in good shape," Grant

"The patient census has been reduced by 101," he reported. In recent days the patient load had surged above the level for which attending medical care could be provided under the current budget. He said there were 54 budgeted beds now ready for emergency patients.

Burglary suspects

Two nabbed, one sought in chase

Sheriff's deputies arrested two young men and were seeking a third Saturday, following a high-speed chase from Diamond Bar to Pomona which reached speeds of 90 miles an hour.

Deputies learned later that the trio had allegedly burglarized the home of Donald Teller at 23805 Bower Cascade Place, Diamond Bar, and stolen Teller's auto.

They chased the suspects eastbound on Diamond Bar Boulevard after spotting their speeding car about 1 a.m. The suspects crashed into two parked cars on Mission Boulevard in the Westmont area, and fled on foot. Deputies Richard Patton and Lee Horn's patrol car jumped a center divider on Mission and plowed into the front yard of a residence.

One suspect, a 17-year-old youth, was captured by deputies after a foot pursuit. Kenneth Ursua, 18, of Pomona, was arrested later at a residence on information supplied by the youth. A third youth was being sought.

Deputies said a calculator, rifle, knife, watch and wallet was taken from Teller's home while he was sleeping inside. The victim heard the suspects drive away with his car.

DEATH TOLL RISES

Eleven persons have been killed and at least 80 injured after an explosion and then a fire damaged the six-story Pathfinder Hotel in downtown Fremont, Neb. Saturday.

Escaping gas said cause

FREMONT, Neb. (AP) — A powerful explosion followed by fire demolished a six-story residential hotel in Fremont on Saturday, killing 11 persons and injuring more than 80, authorities said.

A dozen persons were listed as missing, and police said they expected the death toll to rise.

The missing included three gas company employes who were sent to the hotel after the manager reported a heavy odor of gas in the building Saturday morning, Fire Chief Howard Schneider said.

Investigators were working on the theory that there was a gas explosion in one corner of the building, Schneider said.

He said he expected to find more bodies in the basement of the hotel, because there probably were people in the coffee shop and barber shop on the first floor of the 57-year-old brick hotel.

The explosion blew a hole in the street level floor. Water mains burst, flooding the basement.

A few small fires still burned sporadically Saturday night as firemen pumped water out of the basement in the search for more victims.

About half the injured were taken to Fremont's only hospital for treatment, while others were treated by emergency units at the scene.

Hotel manager Jim Rhodus said he "could smell gas all over the place and all over downtown" an hour before the explosion. Rhodus said he called the gas company three times but got only a recorded message. But gas company employes were later dispatched to the hotel.

It was 9:30 a.m. when the explosion tore through the Pathfinder Hotel, a landmark in Fremont, an agriculture center of 23,000 persons about 30 miles from Omaha.

"The inside was on fire, the whole doorway was just a big ball of fire. There were people walking around the streets in tears and hysterical," said eyewitness Bob Bergreen.

"One woman had her mother inside and another was screaming for her dad. She was cursing the firemen but really was in hysterics.

"There was a woman on about the fifth floor or sixth floor who was yelling for help. She said she couldn't breathe. You could barely see her for the smoke," Bergreen said.

There were more than 100 persons, many of them elderly, in the hotel at the time of the blast.

The first floor caved into the basement, which was flooded when water mains burst.

Three men jailed in Ontario stabbing

A 27-year-old Bel Air man is in guarded condition today at Kaiser Hospital, Fontana, and three men have been arrested and booked on a charge of armed robbery with injury.

Victim of a stabbing in the parking lot at the Holiday Inn, G Street and Vineyard Avenue, Ontario, is Douglas Eaton.

Held at San Bernardino County sheriff's substation jail on $100,000 bail each are Bruce Gregory Meunier, 27, of Rialto; James Robert Klecker, 26, of Colton, and Rodney Lee Brown, 24, of Rialto.

The trio were arrested at the Starlight Bar in Fontana by Fontana police and sheriff's deputies early Saturday morning.

Also arrested and booked at the jail was Eaton's companion, David Pecker of Bel Air, charged with conspiracy to sell drugs.

Ontario police responded to a phone call from an employe at the Exxon service station near the Holiday Inn about 10 p.m. Friday about a bloody body lying next to a car parked at the station.

The employe said that Pecker waved at him as he drove into the station, and that the passenger door opened and Eaton fell out to the ground.

Eaton was taken by Ambulance to Ontario Community Hospital, and later transferred.

Eaton told police that he and Pecker were going to Ontario International Airport to meet someone on an incoming flight.

He said they stopped at the Holiday Inn, and that while he was in the parking lot he was approached by three men.

Eaton said that one pointed a gun at him and fired five times, but the gun failed to go off each time.

Eaton said he tried to hit the man with his fist, but a man with a cast on one leg hit him from behind in the kidney area.

Eaton said that after he had been struck, the men fled to a car and drove westbound on G Street.

Eaton said he put his hand to his back, and seeing blood, realized that he had been stabbed.

Pecker drove him to the service station, where he was found by police.

Eaton told police he had no idea why he was attacked.

Narcotics officers on a stakeout at the Holiday Inn followed Pecker to the Exxon station where they arrested him.

Rosier future for the state of matrimony?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Marriage may have a rosier future than present divorce statistics indicate.

Although recent Census Bureau reports show young people are postponing marriage and that the divorce rate continues to rise, government analysts speculate that Americans are being more careful about selecting mates than they once were.

The result, they say, is that marriages of the future may be more stable than they are now.

"It is a possibility that the longer one waits to marry, the more selective one is in choosing a partner," said Arthur J. Norton, a Census Bureau analyst. "This should make marriage more viable with more of a chance of success."

The institution of marriage is in a state of transition, Norton said in an interview.

Stressing that much of his speculation has yet to be confirmed in statistics, he said that although the short term-effect on marriages may be one of confusion and discontent, often resulting in divorce, marriages of the future may be more harmonious — "Anything in transition creates instability."

Norton said divorce figures indicate people who marry at early ages are more often divorced than persons who marry later in life. And results of the 1970 census show that among persons who first married between 1901 and 1970, the proportion of men who were divorced after their first marriage was more than twice as high among those who married before the age of 20 as for those married in their late 20s.

A Census Bureau report shows that the number of persons between 25 and 34 years of age who have never married increased by about 50 per cent since 1970, from 2.9 million to 4.2 million. And the number of persons in that age group heading their own household approximately doubled, from 915,000 to 1.8 million.

At the same time, recent scientific studies indicate that young people have a high regard for the idea of being married. Studies done for the Institute of Social Research at the University of Michigan showed that "marriage and family life are the most satisfying parts of most people's lives and being married is one of the most important determinants of being satisfied with life."

What seems to be happening is that young people are giving more thought to marriage. The women's movement has encouraged many women to enter or continue a career, and the current economic instability has made it necessary for many young women to enter the labor market. The result is that marriage roles are changing. Men are no longer the only breadwinners, and women are no longer the only homemakers.

Also, it is more acceptable to be single and to live together before marriage.

Another factor is that the spiraling divorce rate has made many think twice about the pain and heartache of a bad marriage. In 1975, 10 per cent of all people between the ages of 25 and 54 who had married were either divorced or separated, census figures show.

Norton said the current divorce rate may be reaching a peak because of the recent social, economic and legal changes in divorce. For example, 23 states have reportedly adopted some form of nofault divorce laws.

"It's easier for an unhappy couple to end a marriage now than it was a few years ago," North said.

Census reports show that in 1975 there were four million households in the United States headed by a single person under age 35, double that of five years ago. And a quarter of those who set up their own households had roommates.

But Norton said the government has no figures on how many young men and women live together before marriage because such research would be considered as an invasion of privacy.

Another factor influencing young people's postponement of marriage is what demographers call the "marriage squeeze." This happens when there is a changing level of births and a difference in ages at which men and women marry for the first time. And American women traditionally marry men a few years older than they are.

The "squeeze" in the mid-1960s arose because more women 18 and 19 years old in 1965 were entering the marriage market than men 20 and 21. The women were members of the post-World War II baby boom whereas their potential husbands were born in smaller numbers before the war ended. Also, the scarcity of young men was intensified because of the draft during the Vietnam war.

In a paper on marital instability Norton wrote with demographer Paul C. Glick, the authors state, "The marriage squeeze may have contributed to a pattern on delaying marriage, particularly among young women, beyond ages that have traditionally been considered as the prime ages for first marriage."

They cite a census report showing that in 1960 28 per cent of women 20 to 24 years old were single, but the corresponding portion of singles in 1974 had increased by nearly one-half to a level of 40 per cent.

The authors conclude their report this way, "To the extent that the married state — but not necessarily being married once — is the preferred status, available indicators may portend a relatively optimistic future for married life. The high divorce rate coupled with a high remarriage rate appear to signal a strong desire for a compatible marriage and family life."

Mrs. Constance Wolf, 70, waves to onlookers prior to her flight to mark the 183rd anniversary of the first manned air flight in America. The flight Saturday from Independence Hall was made despite subfreezing temperatures.

Woman, 70, in 20-mile balloon flight

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Constance Wolf, 70, lifted off from Independence Hall in the wicker gondola of a balloon and flew about 20 miles Saturday to commemorate the nation's first manned balloon ascension.

About 5,000 spectators cheered as the silver-haired Mrs. Wolf, wearing a bright red flying suit, was gently lifted a few thousand feet above the skyscrapers by the 70-foot-high helium balloon she built herself.

Mrs. Wolf, who has been piloting balloons and airplanes for 45 years, was airborne for about an hour. She landed safely in a field in Indian Mills, near Medford, N.J., about 20 miles from Philadelphia, said a Federal Aviation Administration spokesman.

She had intended to land in Deptford, 15 miles from Atco. Jean Pierre Blanchard landed in Deptford after his 46-minute flight from Philadelphia on Jan. 9, 1793.

Mrs. Wolf made the ascent as a contribution to the Bicentennial.

"I agreed to pay for the thing and I even agreed to use helium instead of hydrogen," said Mrs. Wolf of Blue Bell, Pa. "With hydrogen, I could have taken a couple of people along.

"Helium is not good enough, so I have to go alone. That's hard on a poor old lady."

Blanchard used the highly flammable hydrogen for his flight.

She first scheduled the ascension for last Friday, 183 years to the day after Blanchard's flight, but postponed it because of winds.

Mrs. Wolf said she had used the balloon earlier for a flight over the Alps. Her husband, Alfred Wolf, is a pilot and lawyer.

No draft lottery expected in '76

WASHINGTON (AP) — Registration for the standby military draft and the annual draft lottery probably will be called off this year because of the budget crunch, informed sources say.

In past years the date of the annual lottery, deciding the order men would be called up if necessary, has been announced by early January, but there are no signs of it happening this year.

Both the lottery and the registration this year would involve men who turned age 18 last year.

2 women—forgery ring suspects—nabbed

Two women believed to be part of a major forgery ring — who allegedly passed bad checks in La Verne, Montclair and Glendora — were being held today in Los Angeles County Jail.

Yolanda Davis, 23, and Michelle Bell, 25, both of Los Angeles, were arrested on forgery charges Thursday by California Highway Patrol officers who stopped their car on the San Bernardino Freeway near Grand Avenue in West Covina.

A Glendora police detective indicated the ring was "well organized" and is suspected of passing bad checks totaling more than $300,000 in one major California bank chain alone.

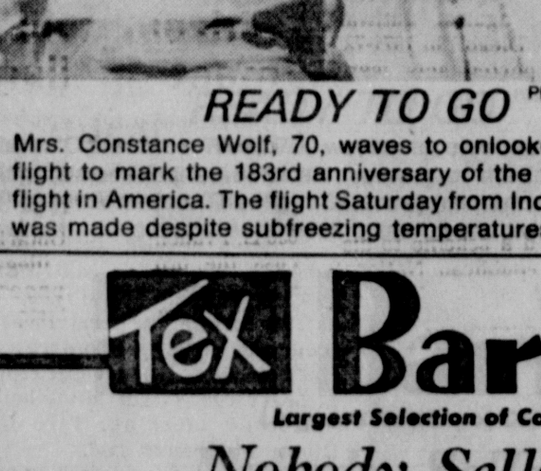

The ring is suspected of bilking banks out of more than $2,500 a day, athorities said.

The pair had allegedly passed checks for $600 each in Glendora on Jan. 2 and Montclair Thursday. According to La Verne police, they attempted to pass a bad check for $500 at the Bank of America branch at 1355 Foothill Blvd., Thursday, but were unsuccessful. Officers indicated bank officials became suspicious after receiving a tip, and the women fled the scene with no money.

According to police, the ring apparently had a stolen check protector or imprinter used to draft payroll or business checks. They were made payable to persons whose signatures and account numbers were somehow acquired by the ring members.

Officers said they did not know where the bank account information was coming from, but assumed the ring had members working inside a number of banks.

MEDICAL DUTY

Three more firemen may now serve Chino as paramedics

Six Chino firemen are now ready to help residents who may suddenly need medical attention.

The three most recent firemen graduates of the Loma Linda paramedic school received congratulations from county Supervisor Robert Townsend, who for more than a year fought to bring the first paramedic unit into the county at Chino.

He called the school performance of Jeff Gaul, Derryl Schuetz, and Gert Hacker "outstanding."

Gaul was first in the class of 18 and Schuetz second. The trio received their Emergency Medical Technician 2 (EMT-2) Certificates from Loma Linda University Medical Center after six months of intensive study and training.

Graduating from an earlier EMT-2 class at Loma Linda University were Steve Fuller, who placed first in his class of 15; Tim Ferguson and Richard Moreland.

All six Chino firemen, with their training completed, are able to provide Chino and southwestern San Bernardino County with 24-hour around-the-clock paramedic emergency service.

The paramedics, by virtue of their training, are authorized to provide more than first aid. The six men may administer intravenous solutions, intracardiac injections, and defibrillation under doctors' orders.

The paramedics, equipped with special radio and telemetry equipment, currently contact doctors at Corona Community Hospital and transmit medical data for diagnosis.

Following the doctors' orders the paramedics prepare a patient for transportation to the nearest hospital. The patient is transported by private ambulance.

According to Chino Fire Chief Ora M. Short the paramedics are called on to use their new medical skills more than 30 times a month on the average. More than 80 emergency calls are answered by rescue team each month.

The paramedics' experience in the area during the past few months have already disproved claims that paramedic services were not yet needed in the area, according to Chief Short.

The critics of the program claimed that paramedic services (any medical treatment away from a hospital environment where medical injections and stabilizing techniques are required to save lives would not be needed more than two or three times a month.

Townsend said that currently a cost analysis of the Chino paramedic program is underway, and additional funding through state and federal Grant for the program is being sought.

Townsend pointed out that in the near future three West End hospitals— Doctors in Montclair, Ontario Community in Ontario, and San Antonio Community in Upland — will be equipped as paramedic base stations. Only Corona Community Hospital is currently equipped with the necessary equipment.

In West End, Ontario Fire Department has trained paramedics on duty and a new paramedic truck with the latest portable medical gear. Other West End cities are considering training firemen as paramedics for their respective communities. Pomona has a paramedic program established.

Vacating portion of street to get hearing

The issue of vacation of a portion of Avenida de la Rambla in the west part of Walnut will be given a public hearing Monday night at a City Council meeting.

The street portion is no longer in use.

Councilmen will also consider extension of an agreement with the Los Angeles County for animal control services. Samuel Siegel, acting city manager, is recommending approval although there has been some feeling among councilmen the service may prove too expensive this year because of increased charges.

Installation of lights at the Suzanne Park baseball field is another agenda item.

Car strikes pedestrian, then auto

An 82-year-old man was in fair condition Saturday after being struck by an auto at the corner of Second Street and Harvard Avenue in Claremont.

Harold Bruner of Claremont was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital after a car driven by Barbara Gustaveson, 18, of Claremont, struck him Friday afternoon. Miss Gustaveson's auto then swerved and crashed into another car driven by Myra De Claire, 43, of Claremont. Neither driver was injured.

Bruner was thrown over the right fender of the Gustaveson car, police said. He suffered numerous cuts and bruises, according to a hospital spokesman.

Retired Persons unit to install

Confidence team bilks elderly woman for $275

An 85-year-old blind woman was the victim of a confidence team working at an Ontario mobile home park who allegedly promised to seal-coat trailer roofs for a low cost and then charge exorbitant fees, police reported.

Police said that Mrs. Lila Stewart, the owner of a small trailer at a mobile home park at 640 W. Holt Blvd., was recently approached by a man and two youths who asked if they could seal coat or patch her trailer roof for a small fee of $50. The elderly and blind woman agreed and the trio went to work.

Mrs. Stewart told police that after 15 minutes the man came down off her roof and told her that she had another leak and that he would fix it for another $15, bringing the total cost to $65. She told the man to go ahead. After another half-hour the man knocked on her door again and asked for payment. She said the man told her the total bill would come to $275.

Police said the woman questioned the man about the high fee. He replied that she had misunderstood him because he said that the aluminum coating for the roof was $15 a gallon and that he had used quite a few gallons. She said that she could not see and asked the man if he would write out a check for himself and she would sign it.

The man wrote out the check to himself for $275, had her sign it and left.

The man is described as a Caucasian 30 to 40, 5 feet 8 to 5 feet 10, of heavy build. He was with two youths 17 to 20 of the same height. Police said the suspects may be a father and sons confidence team.

Terror by group financed by FBI?

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A right-wing paramilitary group financed by the FBI terrorized local political dissidents a few years ago with a firebomb attacks, burglaries, explosions and death threats, the San Diego Union reports.

An FBI spokesman in Washington said "We deny the allegations in the story," copyrighted by the Union and scheduled to appear today as the first of a series.

According to the report, the Secret Army Organization was founded on orders from the FBI and its heavily armed members "waged protracted guerilla warfare against antiwar protestors in San Diego" in 1971-72.

Among its reported acts were break-ins at homes and offices of Vietnam war protestors, bombings of offices including that of an underground newspaper, plots to kidnap radicals, the shooting of a San Diego woman and a scheme to disrupt the 1972 Republican National Convention.

Founder and leader of the SAO, as well as serving as an informant, according to the Union, was Howard Berry Godfrey. The newspaper quoted from county grand jury testimony taken in 1972 in which Godfrey was reported to have said he was in constant touch with his FBI supervisor, reporting on his activities daily.

A spokesman for the Senate Intelligence Committee said two of its investigators obtained information on the SAO and the FBI in San Diego late last year. The committee is investigating a wide range of alleged anti-dissident activities by the FBI.

Willard Worthing

Willard Z. Worthing of 992 E. Grand Ave., Pomona, died Thursday in Garfield Cottage Hospital.

Mr. Worthing was born Dec. 12, 1896 in Omaha, Neb. He came to California in 1942 from Omaha and had lived in Pomona since that time. Mr. Worthing was a machinist for Fairbanks Morse for 24 years. He was a member of the Trinity United Methodist Church, Pomona.

Mom convicted of selling tot

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A young mother faces a maximum sentence of five years in jail after being convicted of selling her 9-month-old daughter to an undercover police officer.

Circuit Judge W. Rogers Turner, who delayed sentencing Jewel Ann Sherman O'Conner, 20, pending a presentence investigation, called the case a "sick, sad and sordid tale."

A jury deliberated two hours recently before returning the verdict.

Mrs. O'Conner testified that she gave up the baby last September, not for the $3,000, but because she was "scared of hurting the child. I started hitting my daughter. I was not myself."

Order firm to make full refunds on 'Body Shaper'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Distributors of "The Five Minute Body Shaper," a reducing device, have been ordered to offer full refunds to the approximately 100,000 Californians who bought the product.

A Superior Court order signed by Commissioner Lee B. Ragins recently ordered the refunds, amounting to $10.50 for each device sold, as part of a stipulated judgment.

A suit was filed in May 1974 by the District Attorney's office and the state Attorney General's office against Joseph Weider and his wife Betty. The suit alleged that Weider made false advertising claims for the nationally advertised, mail-order product.

The suit centered on "before" and "after" photos used in promoting the device. The suit also claimed that the Weiders improperly implied that exercising with the device for five minutes a day could cause significant weight loss.

The Weider Organization admitted no wrongdoing in agreeing to the settlement, Dep. Dist. Atty. Gilbert I. Garcetti said.

The press and the American Revolution

Washington's victory at Trenton

By DR. FRANCIS G. WALETT
Worcester
State College

It was bitterly cold on Christmas day 1776. After dark that night it began to snow and soon a howling storm developed. Despite the bad weather momentous events were underway, because General Washington had planned an attack on the Hessian garrison that the British had left at Trenton, New Jersey.

Leaving the fires of their camp on the Delaware River opposite Trenton, about 2,400 Continentals marched the nine miles northward to McKonkey's Ferry where the river was about 1,000 feet wide. Bloodstains in the snow "from the feet of men who wore broken shoes" marked the painful march. At the ferry the seamen of Colonel John Glover's Fourteenth Regiment were waiting to row the Americans across the Delaware.

Crossing the river would be incredibly difficult, if at all possible. The current ran swiftly carrying with it large chunks of ice. Venturing out on the Delaware on that pitch black night in a raging storm was very risky business. Fully aware of all this, Washington was still willing to take the daring gamble. "Victory or Death" was the countersign he gave for the day.

Perhaps it was a desperate gamble, but after the losses and retreats of 1776 American morale was at a low ebb. Something had to be done to restore confidence and to obtain support for the Continental Army. With many enlistments ready to run out at the end of the year, Washington was determined to get one more battle out of the men.

Tom Paine's new pamphlet, THE AMERICAN CRISIS, which had just appeared, was intended to rally American spirit; it may well have expressed Washington's own feelings. In words that have become immortal, Paine wrote, "These are times that try men's souls: The summer soldier and the sunshine patriot will, in this crisis, shrink from the service of his country; but he that stands it NOW deserves the thanks of man and woman. Tyranny, like Hell, is not easily conquered. Yet we have this consolation with us, that the harder the conflict, the more glorious the triumph." Such persuasive rhetoric helped uplift American spirit, and showed clearly the power of the press.

At McKonkey's ferry Glover's men went about their difficult task. As the heavily laden boats pushed out into the dark river with its churning current, the men were hard put to handle them. Huge pieces of ice that slammed against the sides of the boats had to be pushed aside. Cursing the numbing cold and ice forming on oars and poles, they struggled back and forth with their cargoes.

Much depended on the cannon entrusted to Colonel Henry Knox. In foul weather when priming pans got wet, muskets were unreliable; but cannon could be used in any kind of weather. The successful ferrying of the heavy guns across the river was therefore a critical part of the whole operation.

By 3 o'clock in the morning the entire force had been moved to the New Jersey shore and Washington immediately ordered the march toward Trenton. One division under General John Sullivan followed the river road; the other led by General Nathaniel Greene marched on a road two miles east. As the roads converged they formed the main street of Trenton.

The surprise of the Hessians was complete as the Americans attacked at about 8 o'clock. All was confusion and disorder among the Germans that sleepy morning. Colonel John Fitzgerald of the Continental Army gave some explanation in his diary for December 25: "They make a great deal of Christmas in Germany, and no doubt the Hessians will drink a great deal of beer and have a dance tonight. They will be sleepy tomorrow morning. Washington will set the tune for them about daybreak."

Colonel Johann Rall, the Hessian commander had arrogantly called Washington and the Americans "country clowns." He had not bothered to build fortifications at the important outpost at Trenton. A courageous officer, but also "a lover of strong liquor and stout women", Rall had been celebrating the night before. He had to be called twice the morning of Washington's attack and soon fell mortally wounded as he tried to organize his men. Colonel Rall paid dearly for his scorn of the Americans.

It was all over in about 45 minutes. Some of the Hessians escaped, but over 900 surrendered. As the exhausted colonials sampled the Germans' liquor freely, Washington decided not to carry his attack further into New Jersey. The prisoners were brought over to Pennsylvania. By Dec. 30 an American force of over 5,000 men had been assembled at Trenton.

Sir William Howe, stung by the news of Washington's victory, quickly sent about 6,000 troops under General Cornwallis to retake Trenton and if possible to capture Washington. After preliminary skirmishing near Trenton, Jan. 2, 1777 Cornwallis thought he had the commander-in-chief trapped. "At last we have run down the old fox," he wrote, "and we will bag him in the morning."

That night, however, leaving their camp fires still burning, the Americans slipped away in the darkness around to the rear of Cornwallis and marched to Princeton by morning. Here they met more British forces on their way to Trenton. During the early fighting it seemed that the colonials might be routed by a bayonet attack. When the main body of Continentals reached the scene, however, Washington was able to drive the British back with heavy losses.

After this quick thrust the tired Americans marched off to the northeast, and on Jan. 6, 1777 Washington established winter quarters in the hills and woods at Morristown, New Jersey. This was a strong defensible location on the British flank.

Cornwallis — cursing his luck as he raced back from Trenton — didn't dare to attack Washington in his new position. At this point General Howe decided against further action that winter, and pulled back forces from his advance posts in New Jersey. Why not enjoy the comforts of New York? And wasn't it ungentlemanly business anyway for soldiers to be out fighting in the dead of winter?

It had been a daring gamble that paid off. Starting with Colonel Glover's crossing of the Delaware.

Pilot project aims to cut violence in state schools

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A pilot project to reduce conflict and prevent violence is under way in three Sacramento high schools.

It is being financed by the state Council of Criminal Justice Planning.

The program consists partly of paying 75 student leaders $2.25 an hour for 72 hours of special training and 200 hours of work with other students, school employees, parents and community groups.

Robert Tafoya, school district coordinator, said Wednesday the participants aren't necessarily student body leaders in the traditional sense. "There could be negative leaders or positive leaders," he said.

But he added, "We're not paying them off. We know they have a lot to offer. And there's so many more of them out there and those are the ones we want to reach."

The grant for the program, expected to be a model for all California schools, is $133,334.

Angola: is it another Vietnam?

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent

Is Angola a mirror-image of Vietnam for the United States?

It depends on who you are listening to.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger argues eloquently that it is different, yet uses language remarkably similar to that chosen by the late President John F. Kennedy to justify American aid to Vietnam in the early '60s.

Congressional critics declare that Angola and Vietnam are look-alikes but concede some differences in time, place and politics.

What is the truth?

A look at both countries suggests that in some significant ways Asia's Vietnam and Africa's Angola are very much alike, while in other ways they are markedly different.

Their histories began to merge in the Middle Ages.

Portuguese adventurers were the first Westerners to reach both countries, exploring the coast of Angola in the 15th century, and sailing across the Indian Ocean to Vietnam 200 years later.

The Portuguese remained in Angola until last November. It was another European power, France, that eventually colonized Vietnam, finally departing in 1955.

The French found the Vietnamese to be a proud, nationalistic people with 2,000 years of written history and an elaborate governing system that was allowed to continue functioning under colonial rule.

The Portuguese found in Angola groups of warring tribes who in five centuries of rule were allowed few opportunites for self-improvement, and who entered independence improverished and illiterate.

Both colonial masters offered their subjects Christianity, and it was an ardent Roman Catholic, Ngo Dinh Diem, who formed the first government of South Vietnam in 1955.

The three leaders of the contesting factions in Angola are the sons of Protestant lay preachers, and were educated in mission schools.

The independence of both countries was preceded by years of war gainst colonial rule. With self rule came civil war.

In Angola, as in the former Southeast Asian colonies of Burma, Malaysia, Indonesia and the Philippines, all the nationalist groups now competing for power fought against the colonial government, and can lay claim to the revolutionary mantle.

Not so in Vietnam where, during the long and bloody war against the French, the Vietnamese Communist party under Ho Chi Minh completely took over the revolutionary movement. When the battle for South Vietnam began, the American-backed Saigon government found itself unable to shake the label of being a puppet of Western powers. It was the Communist Vietcong that caught the imagination of the Vietnamese people.

Those arguing that the United States should leave Angola completely alone, point to Burma, Indonesia and other Asian countries as examples of the possible future course of events.

With no political faction strong enough to take over complete power, these countries eventually evolved governments that were able to contain the Communist minorities.

Angola is seen as a similar situation: Even though the faction backed by the Soviet Union and Cuba — the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola, headquartered in Luanda — is seen as the likely victor if foreign support is dropped, many experts doubt this group can establish total, permanent power.

In Vietnam the Communist party harnessed Vietnamese nationalism for a real social revolution.

But nationalism and ideology are less factors in Angola than tribal politics, and the civil war maps of today bear close resemblance to the colonial charts of tribal regions drawn up under Portuguese rule centuries ago. So central rule from Luanda most likely would be contested.

The geopolitical picture is vastly different.

The South Vietnamese Communists fighting first Saigon and then American troops, had the backing of North Vietnam, which secretly smuggled arms and men over jungle trails. North Vietnam was in turn supplied by her giant Communist neighbor, China. The Soviet Union also shipped war goods to the Vietnamese through China with relative secrecy.

But the Angolan group currently aided by the Soviet Union and Cuba has no such easy routes. In fact, the immediate Angolan neighbors of Zaire and Zambia support the two other factions — The National Front and the National Union — as does South Africa, which administers Southwest Africa on Angola's southern border.

Only the Congo has sympathy for the so-called Marxist group, and it has no direct access because the northern part of Angola is controlled by opposing factions.

The Soviet Union and Cuba must, therefore, move in supplies openly across international borders, as did the United States in the Vietnam war.

The strategic situation of Angola today is seen as vital to U.S. interests, just as Vietnam and the rest of Indochina were more than a decade ago. President Kennedy, on March 23, 1961, read a statement to a press conference about a small, remote nation called Laos where several factions were fighting for supremacy, one backed by the Soviet Union.

"It is this new dimension of externally supported warfare that creates the present grave problem ... We strongly and unreservedly support the goal of a neutral and independent Laos ... If these (Communist) attacks do not stop (the United States and others) will have to consider their response," Kennedy said.

Those comments, with the substitution of Angola for Laos, were almost the text of recent statements about Angola by Secretary of State Kissinger and President Ford.

U.S. government spokesmen also have been using the "domino theory" for Angola. They argue that if it should fall to the Communist-backed side, then Zaire, Zambia and ultimately South Africa might similarly be overwhelmed by leftist governments.

The same argument was used for two decades in Vietnam, with Thailand, Malaysia, the Philippines and Indonesia numbered among the falling dominoes. Events have proved this prediction wrong.

Supporters of American involvement in Angola argue that victory for the Communist-backed side would give Russia a port in the South Atlantic and potential control of oil shipping routes.

That argument is an echo of the early Vietnam years when those supporting U.S. intervention argued that ports such as Danang and Cam Ranh Bay were integral to the defense of the United States and should never be allowed to fall into Communist hands.

Just as the U.S. government has perceived the threat to American interests in Angola as similar to the threat it saw in Vietnam, it has reacted not only with similar rhetoric, but with similar actions.

Revelations that secret aid was channeled to Angola through the CIA in early 1975 had a historical ring to them. Similar secret aid was sent to anti-Communist factions in

Algeria-Libya alliance could disrupt Mideast

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Algeria and Libya have entered into a new alliance that could disrupt a string of pro-Western Arab governments from Morocco to Saudi Arabia and jeopardize United States efforts to bring peace in the Middle East.

The alliance grows out of the Algerian-Moroccan dispute over the Spanish Sahara, in which the Algerians suffered a diplomatic reversal. Morocco's King Hassan II cornered Spain into handing over the territory despite Algerian protests.

Looking for a way out of isolation — most Arab states backed Hassan — Algerian President Houari Boumedienne turned to Col. Moammar Khadafy of neighboring Libya.

"The Algerians suffered a political defeat and will try to get back at the people who gave it to them any way they can," remarked a Western diplomatic source here.

Khadafy, himself something of an odd man out in the Arab world, has his own crusade. That is to prevent peace between moderate Arab states and Israel, and to stop the Palestinian guerrilla movement from being drawn into the process of negotiation fostered by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Boumedienne and Khadafy met in the eastern Algerian desert Dec. 28-29 and issued a communique which formalized the new lineup of Libyan oil money and Algerian Socialist militancy. The two countries, it said, will exhibit "a solidarity without breach" in facing "challenges to the Arab nation from its eastern to its western part."

They will oppose any "provocations" against either revolutionary regime, the communique said, adding that "any threat to one revolution will be recognized as a threat to the other as well." Further summit meetings are planned and bilateral relations will be "institutionalized," the communique said.

Talking to newsmen in his own and Khadafy's name, Boumedienne went further.

"We have agreed to follow a revolutionary line by rejecting all concessions, either in the Arab east or the Arab west, as concerns the Palestinian cause or the cause of the Spanish Sahara," Boumedienne declared.

The message was clear: Khadafy will support Algeria against Morocco and its ally, Mauritania, and Algeria will back Khadafy on the Palestinian problem. In the current divided state of the Arab world, that can spell trouble.

Diplomatic sources here said Khadafy has already sent a number of Soviet-built tanks to the heavily militarized border between Algeria and Morocco.

But the sources said the Algerian deployment for the time being was defensive, although te national defense budget for 1976 has been boosted by 20 per cent to an undisclosed figure, its first increase in 11 years.

For the time being, Algeria is hitting back at Morocco through the Polisario Front, an organization of native Saharans financed and Armed by Algeria.

The Polisario demands independence instead of the joint Moroccan-Mauritanian rule over the Sahara formally slated for next month. Spain agreed to cede the mineral-rich territory to the two countries after Hassan sent 350,000 unarmed volunteers marching six miles into the Sahara in November.

For the past month, Algerian newspapers have reported daily clashes between Polisario guerrillas and Moroccan and Mauritanian forces. The strength of Algerian bitterness on the issue is illustrated by official characterization of the Moroccans as "occupation and invasion forces" — the same terms usually applied in reference to Israel.

The Polisario guerrillas are placed on the same exalted footing as the Palestinians. The Polisario flag is a subtle montage of the Palestinian and Algerian emblems. Thousands of Polisario paper flags are pasted on the walls of Algiers.

The alliance with Khadafy and his oil money could serve Boumedienne well in dissuading Hassan from striking at the Polisario enclaves on the Algerian side of the border, diplomatic sources said, especially after Polisario forms a government in exile, as expected soon.

They said the Algerians are concerned that such "hot pursuit" strikes — akin to Israeli action against Palestinian camps in Lebanon — could serve as a pretext for more land grabbing by Morocco, particularly in the Western Algerian region of Tindouf which is rich in iron ore. Algeria and Morocco fought a brief war over the region in 1963 and a subsequent border agreement has not been ratified by Hassan.

The eruption of Khadafy into the Spanish Sahara conflict has worried pro-Western North African leaders. The Libyan leader trumpeted his support for near-miss rebellions against Hassan in 1971 and 1972 and is resentful of Tunisia — sandwiched between Algeria and Libya — because Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba reneged on a union agreement with Libya.

President Moukhtar Ould Daddah of Mauritania was so concerned by the new Tripoli-Algiers axis that he quickly flew to confer with Khadafy. Bourguiba and Hassan try to cool things down.

Despite its portents of instability in the Arab west, the new alliance is perhaps more dangerous for its implications in the Arab-Israeli conflict at the other end of the Arab world.

Khadafy can now expect Algerian support in his running psychological and political war with President Anwar Sadat of Egypt.

Khadafy has also castigated Egypt — and by implication Saudi Arabia, Sadat's main financial backer — for signing the Kissinger-sponsored Sinai pact with Israel in last September. Khadafy charged Sadat with treachery because the agreement binds Egypt to forego war against Israel for at least three years.

In private talks with Western diplomats here, top Algerian officials have criticized the agreement but so far there has been no public broadside against Egypt or Kissinger.

But Boumedienne already is flirting with three radical Palestinian guerrilla groups who reject the principle of any dealings with Israel, get heavy financial aid from Khadafy and are suspect in Egypt and Saudi Arabia because of their extreme leftist ideology.

Two of the maverick Palestinian leaders have already been to Algiers on official visits and the third, George Habash of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, is expected soon, sources said.

Until now Boumedienne has considered Yasir Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization to be the standard-bearer of the Palestinian cause. A shift of Algerian influence to the so-called "rejection front" of Palestinian radicals would widen the divisions in the Arab camp over whether to trust Washington in new mediation efforts with Israel, a goal Khadafy has been pursuing for the past two years with some success.

Angola another Nam?...

Hanoi in 1955, also through the CIA.

Covert American entry into the Angolan war has changed now to open requests for public support for that policy. But what took years to develop in Indochina has taken only months in Africa. The escalation of military help from all sides seems to be faster, too.

The Vietnam example has brought a new factor into the Angolan equation. That factor is the perception of foreign policy from within and outside government.

Whereas involvement in Vietnam received the unquestioned support of U.S. government officials for years, a senior official in the U.S. State Department quickly resigned only a few months after covert Angolan aid began because he disagreed with that policy.

Congressional criticism and debate quickly flowered when the CIA-Angolan connection was revealed, and the Senate has voted to cut off all aid. The House will consider the question in January.

Congress had only slowly questioned the Vietnam war, finally cutting off funds nearly two decades after American involvement began.

Proposes ads for lawyers

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Advertising by lawyers, presently a taboo, would be legal under a new proposal in the California Legislature.

The author, Sen. David Roberty, D-Los Angeles, said Wednesday: "Adequate legal counsel today is still unfortunately too often a privilege of the wealthy." He said advertising would help provide every citizen with adequate access to counsel.

Fire alarm boxes may be junked

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The red fire box on the corner could become a thing of the past in San Diego.

Fire Chief Dee Rogers said Tuesday the city "is taking a hard look" at ripping out the 600 fire telephones scattered throughout the city.

The 600 telephones were installed only four years ago to replace the older pushbutton alarm system.

But Rogers and other city officials said almost all fires are reported by persons using their home phones instead of the alarm boxes.

City Manager Hugh McKinley said the boxes are being used less than two per cent of the time to report fires.

Officials estimate that phasing out the alarm boxes would save the city up to $200,000 a year.

Alioto bids board adieu

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mayor Joseph Alioto has said "be seeing you" to the San Francisco Board of Supervisors as the clock runs out on his eight years in office.

Alioto also promised the board that he'd stay out of their affairs after he leaves office although the high-powered lawyer reminded them he could continue to have a say at City Hall if he chose to.

"There's a charter section that says an ex-Mayor has a seat on the board and that he can come and debate with them," said Alioto, adding: "I've used just about every other charter section around here, but I can assure you, that's one I won't use."

Alioto told a crowded chamber, "Whether I did any good or not is a judgment for posterity to make, but every objective survey made of this town says San Francisco has the best quality of life of any major city in the United States."

He concluded, "I'll be seeing you, some other time, some other place."

Consejal amonesta un oficial de la ciudad

El Sr. Ronald Kranzer, director de Obras Publicas de Pomona, fue amonestado publicamente el lunes por la noche durante la sesion del Concejo Municipal, por violar las ordenes recibidas.

El concejal Sr. Benjamin Ochoa recrimino al Sr. Kranzer enfrente de la concurrencia despues que el ciudadano Jerry Romo argumento en favor de su hermano, dueno de la propiedad ubicada en 768 E. Philadelphia St. El Sr. Romo dijo que la propiedad estaba servida por una fosa moura y que cuando su hermano solicito su conexion al alcantarillado publico, le informaron que la calle se acababa de pavimentar y que el deberia alquilar los servicios de un contratista privado para hacer el trabajo y pagar fuertes derechos para poder socavar un tunel por debajo de la calle un lugar de cortar el pavimento.

La calle Philadelphia fue pavimentada el verano pasado. Se supo despues que no solo fue la propiedad del Sr. Romo la afectada por la falta de conexion al drenaje general sino 12 mas. En ese momento exploto el Sr. Ochoa; y dirijiendose al Sr. Kranzer, le dijo: "Ron, especificamente le he dicho a usted hace tiempo que cuando las calles sean repavimentadas, todos los usuarios deben ser notificados de tal manera que todos los trabajos que hubiera que hacer sean hechos sin tener que volver a romper la pavimentacion una vez hecha.

"Nosotros les estamos pagando a ustedes buen dinero y ustedes no estan haciendo el trabajo," recalco el Sr. Ochoa.

El Sr. Kranzer contesto embarazosamente que el asunto fue debido a una "simple omision".

El alcalde Sr. Ray Lepire dijo que la ciudad estudiaria el problema en un esfuerzo para aliviar a los propietarios de los altos costos de las conexiones debidas al descuido.

Momentos antes de terminar la sesion, los concejales Sra. Georgia Grove y Sr. Adrian Wright reclamaron de todas las autoridades municipales que le den prioridad a la represion del crimen en la ciudad de Pomona como objetivo primordial para 1976.

La Sra. Grove le pidio al administrador municpal Sr. Jerrold Gonce que estudie un nuevo programa para enrolar a jovenes de 18-20 como se hace en otras ciudades a $2 la hora para ejecutar trabajos semi-policiales. Ella dijo que recientemente habia leido un articulo indicando que mas del 75 por ciento de su tiempo lo expenden los policias en actividades agenas a la persecucion del crimen.

El enrolamiento de jovenes para manejar los asuntos meniales permitiria a los policias dedicar sus esfuerzos a alejar el crimen, ella agrego. El Sr. Gonce dijo que tendria listo el informe para la proxima sesion.

El Sr. Wright dijo que la ciudad debe formular un plan completo para erradicar el crimen.

El crimen aumenta en el valle

Claremont es la sola ciudad entre las del Valle en la que ha decrecido el crimen, segun estadisticas publicadas por los departamentos de policia.

El total de crimen promedio descendio siete por ciento en Claremont, comparado con un aumento del 20 por ciento en Ontario — el aumento mayor local.

En el medio queda Chino, con un aumento de solo 4 por ciento; Pomona aumento 7.5 por ciento; La Verne, 11.3 por ciento; y Montclair y Upland cada una aumento 13 por ciento.

Aunque los estimados en algunos crimenes varia, el comun denominador en los aumentos de todas las comunidades fue el robo. En Claremont el robo aumento 87 por ciento con 30 atracos reportados el pasado ano contra 16 el anterior. Upland aumento un 75 por ciento y los atracos 13.7 por ciento.

Solo Montclair reporto un numero de robos similar al del 1974. Montclair reporto 45 atracos para cada ano.

Las estabisticas dadas al publico por el FBI recientemente muestras un aumento de 17.6 por ciento en los crimenes cometidos el pasado ano en los Estados Unidos. Estas cifras tambien revelan un aumento de 15.1 por ciento en robos, 8.5 por ciento en asaltos agravados, 7.8 por ciento en estupros, y 5.5 en homicidios.

Sin precisar entre las cifras de los crimenes graves — homicidio, estupro, robo, atraco a mano armada, estafa, desfalco y robo de autos — se reflejo una disminucion.

Pomona sobrepasa a todas las comunidades del Valle durante 1975 en los asesinatos con un total de 20 homicidios clasificados. En 1974 solo hubo 10.

Ontario tuvo 8 homicidios, un aumento de 60 por ciento.

Chino tuvo 3 comparado a 4 el ano anterior, mientras que Upland tuvo uno como el ano previo. La Verne y Claremont tuvieron uno cada uno, y Montclair ninguno.

En Pomona se cometieron 41 estupros, en Ontario 27, en Montclair 6, en Chino 7, en Upland 11, La Verne 2 y en Claremont 4.

Pomona tuvo 435 casos de asalto agravado, Ontario 271, Montclair 69, Chino 135, Upland 27, La Verne 36 y Claremont 69.

En los robos residenciales es donde los ciudadanos han sido mas afectados, segun las estadisticas. Pomona tuvo 2,040 casos; Ontario 1,716; Montclair 453; Chino 135; Upland 605; La Verne 258, y Claremont 467.

El descenso de Claremont en el porcentage de aumentos se debio mayormente a la disminucion dratica en la comision de grandes estafas. Al final de 1973, se reportaron 1,137 casos. En 1974 hubo solo 981, una disminucion de 156 incidentes.

La mayoria de los jefes de policia del valle senalaron durante la informacion de que a ellos lo que les preocupa es el hecho de que, generalmente, los crimenes violentos (crimenes contra las personas) estan aumentando mas rapidamente que los crimenes contra la propiedad.

Este hecho se refleja a traves de toda la nacion.

Beekeeping has turned into thriving business

PARMA, Idaho (AP) — This spring, bright and early, there will be some 335 billion tame bees — and goodness knows how many wild ones — out there toiling in the fields of America.

To the death.

No labor contracts, no eight-hour-day, no five-day-week, no pension, no fringe benefits — just plain, old instinct and an alliance with Mother Nature that happens to work in man's favor.

Big business now, this bee business.

Farmers rent bees to pollinate their crops. And there's money in honey, and in beeswax too. In 1974, the nation's domesticated bees produced 185 million pounds of honey, at 40 cents a pound wholesale, and 3.4 million pounds of beeswax, at $1 a pound, to make candles.

U.S. honey production has fluctuated in recent years, but has generally been good, partly because people are turning to natural foods, including honey. Production was 221.8 million pounds in 1970, 197.4 million in 1971, 214.1 million in 1972 and 237.7 million in 1973. Whatever the figure, the bee has been generous.

Less than three quarters of an inch long, the female works so hard she only lasts four to six weeks in her work until she dies. Born in autumn, she might live through winter to die in labor in spring. And the male or drone, he lives only to mate with the queen. And the queen might live four to five years to restock the hive continually with new workers, new drones.

And the beekeeper? He used to be a hobbyist, or a middleaged or elderly man who worked his bees and collected his honey in a diminishing market. But this once fading craft is a thriving industry today, and the sons of beekeepers are staying on to run their fathers' hives. One estimate is that honey and beeswax bring in up to $80 million a year to beekeepers.

Not bad, little bee.

Still, as in all of man's endeavors, all is not rosy for beekeepers.

"What's good for agriculture isn't necessarily good for the beekeeper," says Robert Morford, a young Idaho bee man who hauls 5,000 colonies — perhaps 80,000 bees apiece — to California each year to pollinate almond orchards.

"The damage being done by insecticides is by far our worst problem," says Jim Powers, operator of the largest chain of apiaries in the nation with 28,000 colonies in Idaho, North Dakota, Arizona and Hawaii.

Even alfalfa farmers, whose crops produce much of the nectar for the honey the bees produce, may have second thoughts about this busy little creature of nature. There is evidence that alfalfa produces a hay richer in protein if it is cut before it blossoms. Beekeepers sometimes pay farmers to let their bees reap alfalfa nectar before the harvest.

Another threat to the bee business is, in this artificial world, artificial honey. There is a sugar, derived from corn starch, which defies detection when mixed with only 25 per cent honey — although new methods of detection are being developed.

Powers, who is chairman of the national Honey Industry Council, says a defense fund of more than $100,000 has been collected to fight against cheap substitutes. Although few incidents have been uncovered so far, he says, five Los Angeles area packers were found with fake honey last year.

In the pollination business, the honeybee is not without competition. There is, for instance, the little black and white striped leaf-cutter bee. This creature, entomologists say, "trips" every blossom it hits, while experienced honeybees often manage to suck out the nectar without pollinating.

So, it is little wonder that farmers are paying up to $100 for a small colony of leaf-cutter eggs. And still other wild bees are being considered for pollination marketing.

But honey is really the name of the game. Honey is the source of a bee's energy and the product of it. The bee, unlike most creatures, make more of its sustenance than it needs. Man reaps the surplus.

However, when the honeybee is used for pollinating crops — and some 50 crops depend on bee pollination — it frequently doesn't produce much honey because beekeepers over-saturate an area with bees to insure pollination.

California is the biggest honey producing state, with Nebraska and Florida next. But where there's a profitable business, there is also man's worst nature. And guess what that means. Bee rustling.

Hives, generally placed in remote fields with little or no security, can hold more than $100 worth of bees and honey.

Beekeepers in some parts of the nation have started branding their hives, or wiring them with burglar alarms.

AT WORK — A bee with pollen-laden legs is poised on a flower head — a simple, natural act now part of big business. Some 335 billion tame bees will be out this spring toiling in the fields of America, pollinating crops, and producing millions of pounds of honey and beeswax.

Home zoo: a pet issue for Claremont

Woman receives citizen support

MEET SPIKE

Holding Spike, an iguana, is Mrs. Jackie Jacobsen of Claremont. Her backyard zoo has attracted more than 4,000 school children on tours since she obtained her first zoo guest, an alligator, about nine years ago.

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

Citizens are rushing to the support of a Claremont woman who keeps a strange collection of animals in her backyard.

Neighbors are writing letters and collecting signatures on petitions urging the Claremont City Council to allow Mrs. Jackie Jacobsen to keep her menagerie at 184 Brown Drive.

Bruce Richards, director of the Humane Society of the Pomona Valley, has received numerous telephone calls blaming him for trying to make Mrs. Jacobsen get rid of her zoo.

Mrs. Jacobsen said she feels the attack on Richards is unjustified, and that he is only doing his job to enforce the city's animal ordinance. "He's been on our side 100 per cent," Mrs. Jacobsen said.

She said she has asked supporters not to attend en masse the City Council meeting Tuesday when her special matter will be discussed.

What is causing the tempest in a teapot?

Over the past nine years Mrs. Jacobsen has collected 11 alligators, several squirrel monkeys, an iguana, a chuckwalla, capuchine monkeys and a stump-tail macaque, because they needed a home.

A couple of years ago, an official from the Marin School at San Rafael heard her give a lecture on alligators.

Since his school was studying alligators, the official got in touch with Mrs. Jacobsen, and the result was a research grant to study captive alligators, of which she now has 11. In fact, the school gave Mrs. Jacobsen one of theirs.

The city staff will be presenting to the council a recommendation that Mrs. Jacobsen be granted a special permit to continue her educational research project.

It seems that a Claremont resident would like to keep a mountain lion, which is not permitted under the city's animal ordinance. So the resident asked why Mrs. Jacobsen should be allowed her animals if he couldn't have his lion.

The city's animal ordinance allows a resident to keep crocidilians, which includes alligators, up to 30 inches long. But all of Mrs. Jacobsen's gators are easily more than 30 inches, and as much as 8 feet long.

"I don't know where the city came up with such an arbitrary figure," Mrs. Jacobsen commented.

More than 4,000 school children have been taken on a tour of the Jacobsen zoo since the animal lover received her first alligator about nine years ago.

A Pomona fireman who was going to Europe asked her if she wanted an alligator. She refused at first, because she pondered how she could keep an alligator.

Her husband, John, who is a retired captain from the Pomona Fire Department, built a concrete pond with a special sewer connection for the new resident.

Several years later, he built still another pond to house some bigger alligators, by names such as Gates, who is 32, and Roscoe Yummy, who is only 17.

The big pond houses four large alligators, the smaller one seven. They all have affectionate names.

One of the alligators came into her possession because three months ago a man who owned it said in his will that the creature must be given a good home.

Roscoe Yummy came to her because a restaurant named Yummy's on Roscoe Boulevard decided that the two alligators had outgrown their pond home of 15 years, and a late-night television station broadcast the news that the animals were available.

If an alligator doesn't like you interrupting its solitude, it will hiss continuously at you until you leave, and bubbles will pop out of its eyes.

Visitors, especially the youngsters, are surprised at the inactivity of the alligators, except when the sun might draw them out of the water.

Mrs. Jacobsen explained that the animals went into their six-month dormant period, beginning in October. As the weather gets colder, they will settle to the bottom of their ponds.

In fact, they became stiff as boards, and can be carried from place to place.

The Jacobsens said that they appreciate the fact their lot is one-half acre because it affords them adequate space for the animals.

A visitor is given a hint of what he can expect when he sees on the garden gate a sign warning to watch out for, not the usual dog, but the alligator.

Other tenants at the Jacobsen zoo are five squirrel monkeys, an iguana named Spike, a chuckwalla from the Sea of Cortez, two capuchine monkeys named Chico and Sniffles, and a stump-tail macaque called Judy.

A truck driver owned Judy before Mrs. Jacobsen took her in. The animal was so accustomed to sitting in a truck cab that she would welcome the chance to jump into one of Jacobsen's sports cars and grab the steering wheel.

Probation officers trying to patch up family problems

By L. T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

The San Bernardino County Probation Office is waging a battle in Ontario designed to keep parents and children having problems together with counseling.

Rather than processing children through the juvenile court system which could mean probation or placement in foster homes, two officers now seek to bind the wounds by having the parents and juveniles openly discuss their problems and then seek ways to solve them.

Since Nov. 15, the Probation Department has offered its free counseling service in a residence at 1327 N. Euclid Ave., owned by the Ontario First Baptist Church.

Parents or children needing outside assistance may phone the office daily from noon to 9 p.m. The number is 988-1406.

The staff consists of Ralph Bettencourt and Theodore C. Cumberledge, probation officers. They are assisted by Gary Paytas, supervising probation officer, plus four volunteers.

Those cases handled by the officers involve youngsters who are termed incorrigible by their negative behavior. This could involve the children constantly staying out late at night or always fighting with their parents.

"Should we receive a call from a parent who believes their son or daughter is a potential referral to juvenile hall because of their behavior, we try to meet with them the same day."

The counseling sessions aren't limited only to the "problem child," but include all the brothers and sisters.

"We try to get the entire family here," said Bettencourt. "While the other children may not be bearing the brunt of the problem, they are living with the family situation on a daily basis."

The family members are urged to recognize the problem areas and then decide on a positive solution. "We just want them to realize what is happening and recognize their own problems," he added.

"Most families realize what is going on and what areas need changing. A lot of what we do is get the family to realize they have the interest, there is a care and they can make something positive of the situation."

Paytas emphasized the importance of making the family realize this is their problem. "In the past, we assumed the problem for them and thus created even more of a problem. The parents were able to dump the entire situation on us by stating they did not want their children any more and for us to take them.

"We would take them off their hands and place them elsewhere. The parents may have cared about their children, but the frustrations in trying to deal with them became so great they washed their hands of the whole thing."

Under the new program, the Probation Department is now giving this back to the parents, he added. "We are telling them this is your problem. Do not come and state the child is beyond your control. Let us deal with this."

The counselors have handled about 100 cases since opening the Ontario office. They deal with an average of 10 to 12 families a week.

Counselors offer up to four counseling sessions. For those families needing long term action, they are referred to family counseling services, psychiatrists or medical doctors.

"We have found that most solutions can be reached at this level," said Paytas. "Those we can't reach are usually children with severe mental or emotional disturbances."

Based on the center's two-month history, about 65 per cent of the youngsters referred there are girls. "Their average age is 15 and a common denominator is an older boyfriend creating problems in the family," he added.

The youngsters come from all communities within the West End of San Bernardino County and represent a cross section of families. "They range from families on welfare to families with financial means," said Bettencourt.

The county began the unique program initially in San Bernardino when officials realized they weren't obtaining lasting solutions by processing these youngsters through normal court procedures.

"Based on statistics in San Bernardino, before that unit opened about 60 to 65 per cent of those youngsters who came to our office with runaway problems eventually ended up in court," said Paytas. "We have been able to cut that to four or five percent, which is a drastic reduction."

Counselors assigned to the program have received special training in crisis and family counseling, he added. "We want to keep this training going through workshops. We have also brought some people here for instruction and have sent officers to other areas for instruction."

Because of the small staff, the program excludes those on probation or classified as "dependents of the court." Counselors work with youngsters up to 18.

"For the youngster who has not done anything wrong and whose parents want someone to 'brow-beat' them, it is very difficult," said Paytas. "We shouldn't even see them, but in some cases it is helpful to meet with them since there does exist some problem."

Volunteers are being sought to assist in the program, both for clerical and counseling work. Those assigned to counseling would work with the probation officers, said Paytas.

Anti-graffiti drive working

An anti-graffiti campaign jointly launched just over a month ago by the City of La Puente, the Hacienda La Puente Unified School District, the La Puente Valley Chamber of Commerce and a number of concerned citizens is already beginning to show tangible results.

School buildings and walls on city property — the prime targets of graffiti artists — are cleaner than they've been in years and a maintenance program is continuing to keep them that way.

Gordon Bailey, a painting contractor hired by the city, reports that he has removed graffiti from all city property at least once. "With the exception of a few areas, we seem to be keeping up with the problem," says La Puente's assistant city manager Frank Ruiz.

"We've gotten calls from a number of residents who have expressed appreciation for our clean-up efforts," Ruiz remarked. "And only one call registering mild disapproval. That call was from a deputy sheriff at the Industry station who laughingly told us he nearly got lost on his way to work because we had removed the graffiti he'd been using as a landmark."

School buildings throughout the Hacienda La Puente Unified School District have been thoroughly cleaned of graffiti and a weekly maintenance program assures rapid removal of any new markings, reports Henry Carter, director of maintenance for the district.

Carter estimates that over 5,500 square feet of concrete surfaces have been sandblasted and some 10,000 square feet of surfaces have been painted to remove graffiti during the current school year.

"Our district has received a good deal of help from the East Los Angeles Community Union which has done both interior and exterior painting at La Puente High School and completely repainted the exterior of Amar School," Carter said. TELACU is funded by the Governor's community jobs program, so the district's only contribution is to furnish the paint for projects they undertake in our schools, Carter added.

Addition to city's planning on agenda

The Pomona City Council will hold a public hearing Monday to consider adoption of several new sections to the city's general plan.

The sections to be considered for adoption are the residential element, economic development element, circulation-transportation element, and the plan for land use.

After a series of public hearings of its own, the city's planning commission has recommended adoption of the various sections.

Other agenda items for the 8 p.m. meeting include council consideration of a request by the Pomona Valley Historical Society to relocate the Barbara Greenwood Arroyo Kindergarten Bungalow onto the Casa Primera property at Park and McKinley Avenues for historical preservation.

The bungalow was built over 67 years ago and was the first kindergarten in the city. The Pomona school board donated the structure to the historical society rather than tear it down, on condition that it be moved from its original location at 605 N. Park Avenue.

The historical society and local residents who attended the school have been raising funds to move the structure.

Humane Society sets record

The Humane Society of Pomona Valley set a new record for animal adoptions during the Christmas holidays, Bruce Richards, executive director, announced Saturday.

During the week of Christmas, said Richards, a total of 121 pets were placed in new homes, surpassing the record of 111 set by an animal shelter in San Francisco.

Richards said the record would be submitted to the American Humane Association's headquarters in Denver, Colo.

The total included 86 dogs and 35 cats.

Pomona Catholic registrations set

The Pomona Catholic High School is accepting registrations for the 1976-77 school year.

Forms are available in the school office at 533 W. Holt Ave., between 9 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Registration will close Feb. 4.

The high school placement test will be administered at the school Feb. 7 from 8:45 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. to prospective ninth grade students.

Open house for parents of students interested in attending the school will be held Jan. 18 at 2 p.m. Sister Mary Lucy, principal, will explain the school's curriculum, activities and policies.

Salty solution for the hungry

As if the world did not face an acute enough problem already in feeding its burgeoning billions, another threat to the global food supply has appeared.

It is salt, creeping into farmland waters at a disturbing rate, reports NOAA magazine, a publication of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

Salt is encroaching not only in coastal areas that have never been arable; excessive and growing amounts of salt are intruding into areas that have long been intensively irrigated, such as the lower Colorado River Valley, posing a major agricultural problem.

That's the bad news. The good news — and it could be very good news for an increasingly hungry world — is that the salt problem may literally contain the seeds of its own solution.

Many varieties of plants, called halophytes, can live comfortably with salt. Indeed, much of the earth's plant life actually depends on water that has a high salt content. This includes not only all the plant life in the oceans but many species of land plants, some of which can tolerate higher levels of salinity than that of seawater.

For the past three years, a team of scientists at the University of California in Davis, with support from NOAA's Office of Sea Grant and the National Science Foundation, has been engaged in an effort to make salt-tolerant plants even more so, as well as to develop new strains of valuable crop plants not now naturally tolerant to salt.

The goal is nothing less than the creation, through selection and breeding, of seed-bearing plants that can be grown in soil irrigated with either brackish water or seawater, or that can be grown directly in seawater in hydroponic tanks.

The process of developing such crop strains is a long-term one. But if it is successful, the results would be of inestimable value to the world. Crops could be harvested in regions presently totally unsuitable for agriculture. At the same time, the salty water itself could provide concentrations of several major plant nutrients — potassium, calcium, magnesium and sulfate — that are currently supplied by chemical fertilizers whose cost, in terms of both energy and dollars, is becoming increasingly high.

A comforting thought

Radio astronomers have picked up the sounds of what they believe was the explosion of a stupendous "primeval fireball" out of which the universe was created 10 billion years ago.

Meanwhile, anthropologists have discovered the fossil remains of manlike creatures in Africa's Great Rift Valley which push back the origins of the human race at least three million years.

Either figure is mind-boggling. Most of us have all we can do wondering whether we will be able to make it through another 12 months. By way of something encouraging or inspirational to think about at New Year's time, we would much prefer evidence that the human race will not, in the course of one or another of the crises it will inflict upon itself in 1976, write an end to its earthly universe in a fireball of its own creation.

Yet there is some comfort in the knowledge that both the universe and mankind have been around for such unimaginably vast periods of time and that both can reasonably be expected to be around for equally unimaginable periods in the future. There is not much we can do about the universe, but certainly our own continued existence rests entirely with ourselves.

Think on these things

Oh, the number of things we want to blame on age . . . when age is simply an accumulation of years that magnify what we have been all the time . . . If we have carried a seed of grumpiness with us . . . then it is sure to germinate when enough time has passed . . . if we have gained any wisdom it is because we wanted to learn very early . . . if we have been a pain in the neck . . . with the years one cares less about letting it show.

What we are, we have been for a long time . . . we have thought a certain way for long periods . . . and it simply comes out when we reach a place where appearances matter less to us . . . It is up to us what we intend to be . . . for now is the time to make that decision.

Utopia is right here

Dear Editor:

"The White Flight" — a thought provoking, challenging screamer across the front page of the Progress Bulletin! It took a lot of thinking for us, Californians of Spanish descent to come up with this reply.

Strange that we have always considered ourselves as members of the caucasian race! Strange, indeed, that historians call our ancestors the first "white" people to settle in California! Stranger still, that our children — those who still bear Spanish surnames must be lumped together under a non-white label! Strange that presumably educated people are not aware that there is no such thing as a "brown" race! To them the only "white" people are those of Anglo-Saxon ancestry!

A study of California history will reveal that the Spanish and Mexican Californians became Americans following the conquest in 1846. They learned English; taught their children English; asked for no special favors or privileges.

Today, Californians with Spanish surnames would like to be recognized for what they are — Americans! Those who live in Pomona Valley would like to be placed under the classification to which they belong — "white". Yes, Mayor Lepire, you will find many of them in our parochial schools. They have not joined the great "white flight."

To the Mexicans and other Latin Americans who have made California your home, our message is — learn English! Teach it to your preschool children! Many avenues of learning are open to you. If your children are taught to obey our laws, they will not run amuck of the law. Preserve your heritage and traditions! We appreciate your artistic talents and capabilities. If our Vietnamese citizens have demonstrated such eagerness to learn, why cannot those who have been with us since our beginnings avail themselves of our educational opportunities?

Let us all — those of all races and nationalities, make a resolution in this our bicentennial year to respect our greatest of all governments! Pomona Valley has a fine educational system! But our families must instill in their children the moral and religious principles they need to reach their goals. They will gain nothing by demonstration, protest and violence. Those who believe they may find Utopia elsewhere, will find that terrorism and violence predominate throughout the world.

We believe that all of us, of all races may achieve Utopia right here in Pomona with study, observance of our laws, love of our neighbors and civic pride! Rise up, Pomonans! Let's prove it to the world! And to those who have "flown", we hope you find your Utopia! Perhaps Pomona will profit from your exodus! — Isabel Lopez de Fages, Alphonse B. Fages, Pomona

Patrons stand up

Dear Editor:

Everyone who rides the RTD buses to and from Pomona would, I am sure, agree with me in declaring that the old transportation depot adjacent to the Southern Pacific tracks in Pomona was no thing of beauty.

But, at least, bus patrons could sit down, either indoors or outdoors, on benches to await the eventual arrival of the buses. There was a public address system used to call out the bus numbers and their destinations. The drivers had a certain rapport with the bus patrons.

Since December 1 the depot has been closed and bus patrons must stand on the hard cement or on a blacktop driveway that is littered with debris to await their buses on Commercial Street near Gordon in downtown Pomona.

Many bus drivers arrive early but keep their doors locked and refuse to allow patrons into the buses until about one minute before departure. The drivers are very uncommunicative when a stranger asks about different buses. They couldn't care less.

The other day two elderly women had to sit on a patch of grass for 20 minutes while the driver sat inside the bus and ignored pleas for entry. Then one of the elderly had difficulty getting up to board the bus.

Is this the kind of service we are to get from RTD? And WHAT HAPPENS when the rains come? — M.G.R., La Verne

Americans abused abroad

WASHINGTON — In our swashbuckling days shortly after the turn of the century, a Barbary pirate named Raisouli made the mistake of kidnapping an American citizen named Perdicaris. Teddy Roosevelt immediately fired off a cable from the White House: "Perdicaris alive or Raisouli dead." To lend emphasis to the message, Roosevelt landed a detachment of Marines on the Barbary coast. Perdicaris was hastily released.

There was a time when Americans could count upon the protection of their government when they traveled abroad. Today, any foreign potentate can drag them off to his torture chambers without risk of retaliation.

The State Department clearly is more interested in preserving its cozy relationships with dictators and despots than in upholding the human rights of American citizens. Those unfortunate enough to get caught in the coils of a foreign police can expect little more from the State Department than a polite murmur of protest.

This has been dramatized by two contrasting incidents in the military oligarchy of Chile. The dictatorship last week released Dr. Sheila Cassidy, a British citizen, who had been stripped naked, lashed to a bed and tormented with electric shocks by the official torturers. The moment she was safe on British soil, the British government withdrew its Ambassador from Chile and issued a stinging statement.

"Dr. Cassidy was tortured by the Chilean security police," the statement charged. "In order to obtain information from her, they stripped her and gave her severe electric shocks. No British government can accept such uncivilized, brutal treatment of a British subject at the hands of a foreign government."

A year earlier, an American art teacher, Amy Conger, was abused by the Chilean Air Force. She was hauled through the streets with breasts bared and later slammed on a bed and tortured. She was deprived of water, denied sleep and forced to stand until she almost collapsed. Once she was blindfolded and then catapulted down some steps.

The American consul in Santiago, Fred Purdy, quietly secured her release. The State Department filed no formal protest but, on the contrary, conspired to keep her case quiet. When we finally published her story, Purdy spoke up in support not of Amy Conger but of the Chilean torturers.

She has pleaded with the State Department to investigate her case. As evidence, she provided a 16-page report describing how she had been treated. But the State Department hasn't even bothered to answer all her correspondence.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger simply doesn't want tortured Americans rocking his diplomatic boat. Rather than offend the torturers, he has even risked antagonizing Congress.

A year ago, Congress amended the Foreign Assistance Act to bar money from countries that consistently violate human rights. The law requires the President to report to Congress on the status of human rights in recipient countries.

In compliance with the law, the State Department cabled more than 60 ambassadors and asked them to file human rights status reports. These were assembled for submission to Congress. But at the last minute, Kissinger classified the information and refused to release it. Instead, he delivered a general report which omitted the sordid details. Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., has been clamoring in vain for the full information, which the law requires Kissinger to divulge.

This American appeasement has merely encouraged the despots to continue their harsh routines. There is no better example than the Chilean military junta, which started out brutalizing communists but is now using the same savagery against anyone who gets in the way.

Our sources in Chile have documented the case, for example, of Pedro Araya Ortiz. He is a former construction worker who got himself elected to the Chilean Congress as a Christian Democrat. He is a political moderate, an anti-communist, a family man with an 18-month-old son an aged mother to support.

He provoked the wrath of the junta, apparently, by searching for four union leaders who had mysteriously disappeared. Like himself, they were also moderate Christian Democrats.

Last September, Araya was seized on the streets as he was leaving his mother's home. Four security agents beat him, shoved him into the back of their car and held him down with machine guns at the back of his neck.

They sped with their prisoner to a special torture center near the Air Force base in Antofagasta. We have been provided the details of his detention, down to the street locations of the two torture centers where he was held.

At first, he was stripped bare to a metal table. For 48 hours, the torturers worked him over. They wet down his feet and applied electrical shocks. They beat the soles of his feet. They burned the tender part of his arms with lighted cigarettes. They gave him no food or water.

Eventually, the junta let Araya go. Several friends gathered at the prison gate to greet him, but they saw a white station wagon speed out with Araya inside.

It was later learned that the Congressman was whisked, blindfolded, to a special clinic — located on Santa Lucia Street next to the Chilean-British Cultural Institute — where torture victims are nursed back to health. A doctor treated him for nine arm burns, severe burns on the soles of his feet and a dislocated tendon in his right foot.

Then Araya was dumped on a street near Santiago's athletic stadium and left to hobble to the home of a friend. His friends insisted that he see a doctor. He was examined first at Santiago's Diagnostic Institute, later at the Institute of Neurosurgery at Salvador hospital. He remains today under intensive psychiatric care and is able to walk only with the aid of crutches.

Meanwhile, the United Nations and the Organization of American States have denounced torture in Chile. The British have withdrawn their ambassador in protest. But the United States remains on cordial terms with the torturers.

Just in jest

In these days, if a motorist doesn't have a car with power steering, power brakes, power operated windows, automatic transmission, air conditioning, stereo tape, cruise control, cabaret roof, bucket seats, white sidewalls and personalized license plates, he's really slumming.

But how different were the requirements for successful motoring back around 1915. At that time no automobilist worthy of the name would dare crank up and venture even 10 miles from home without first making doubly sure he had with him a plentiful supply of cold patches with which to repair minor punctures.

The seasoned motorist, of course, carried with him not only those cold patches but also hot patches and an alcohol heated vulcanizer for more serious tube repairs. He also had on hand tire carcass plugs and boots in assorted sizes to be used in case of blowouts . . .

But although motoring at that time was a never ending challenge and adventure, in some ways it was far less frustrating than it is today. For one thing, since cars didn't have bumpers back around 1915, prospective buyers were spared the necessity of agonizing over whether they should be content with standard bumper equipment or insist on special ordering oversize chrome beauties on which they would be able to display more and larger bumper stickers.

The professional unemployed

As one of those most fortunate men who so enjoys his work that he prefers it to what most people call play, once in a while I have to remind myself that not everybody is so fortunate.

The guy who stands on a production line punching out widgets all day has seen his uninteresting job automated, yet I do remember sacking groceries 17 hours a day for a dollar, and I do visit enough industries during my travels to recognize that many jobs are more tedious and less fun than others.

But the day this job fails to feed my family I will go back to sacking groceries or digging potatoes or whatever it takes. And there is no more damning commentary on our once-proud American society than the fact that our government maintains an idle army of unemployed while American industry is begging for workers willing to work.

We have neighbors in our Chicago suburb who offer a thousand dollars a month for housekeepers to do domestic work — yet area employment agencies will tell you nobody wants to cook and clean at any wage!

Nor are industrial jobs any more appealing to the idle. Chicagoland reports 9%-plus unemployed.

Yet a suburban industrialist, James Olive, writes, "I'm tired of all the clamor about high unemployment. My small manufacturing company has been trying to hire people and nobody wants to work.

"We'd like to build another shift to handle increasing work loads but we are competing with unemployment compensation and we lose every time.

"A single man grossing $180 a week with us will take home about $130 after deductions. Under the law now he can sit at home and draw $92 a week tax-free. Throw in food stamps, no transportation costs — subtract the aggravation of an alarm clock going off every morning — and you really can't blame workers for not working.

"Let's at least be honest," Olive continues, "and admit that federal and state giveaway programs account for a sizable percentage of those currently unemployed. Let's further admit that many or most are unemployed by choice.

"There are plenty of jobs around so let's not get all up-tight about 'unemployment.'

"What we should be getting concerned about, instead, is a political and social system that makes mass unemployment so attractive as to be almost irresistible.

"Meanwhile," says this frustrated employer, "my company will continue seeking a few people who will come to work anyway — though we are not optimistic."

For enough generations now our politicians have been buying votes with promises of more something-for-nothing to where the once-proud American worker is a lickspit!

Look it up; it's in the dictionary! Unemployment has become a profession — and it pays well — but, well, let me say there is only one other profession where you lie down on the job and get paid for it.

Fight against V.D. needed

Dear Ann Landers: I was overjoyed that both you and "Once Was Enough For Me" had the sensitivity and wisdom to address yourselves to a problem too often shoved under the rug because it is considered "indelicate." I am talking about V.D.

"Once's" suggestion that your answers might help thousands of young people was a gross understatement. You can help MILLIONS of people in a way that can change their lives. In a free society, knowledge is the one weapon that can eliminate V.D. We must acknowledge honestly and openly the following facts:

The problem is enormous. Over three million people become infected every year.

V.D. doesn't care who has it. It can happen to anybody. Even some very "respectable people" get it — and pass it on.

V.D. can be prevented.

V.D. must receive prompt medical attention. It will not disappear unless it is treated.

Silence, fear and guilt are no longer warranted. The knowledge gained from medical research holds the promise of the eventual eradication of V.D. Work is currently underway to find better tests, better treatment and better vaccines.

I urge every concerned citizen to get involved in the fight. The American Social Health Organization at 1740 Broadway, New York, N. Y., 10019, is a non-profit group that needs broad support in terms of volunteers and money to continue educational programs and medical research.

Please, Ann Landers, put another nail in the coffin of V.D. by printing this letter. — Charles A. Hoffman, M.D. (Past President of A.M.A.)

Dear Dr. Hoffman: Here's another nail, with an added word from me — at the risk of boring my readers to death. I've said it so often, but I'll say it again.

Anyone who suspects that he (or she) may have V.D. should go at once to the emergency room of any hospital, to the county or city health department, or to a doctor, and be tested. It takes only a few minutes. If you are a minor, your parents will not be notified. Most places will test you free or charge very little. You will learn promptly whether or not you are infected. If you are, you can usually be cured simply with medication. If you aren't — what a relief to know you have nothing to worry about.

Any reader who wants to put his own nail in that coffin, and can spare the time or money, please write to the American Social Health Organization, as Dr. Hoffman suggested. They will be delighted to hear from you.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a girl, 16, who has been asked to pose nude for a boy who is a wonderful artist. He is 17. Rick has shown me some of his paintings which are terrific and I mean terrific.

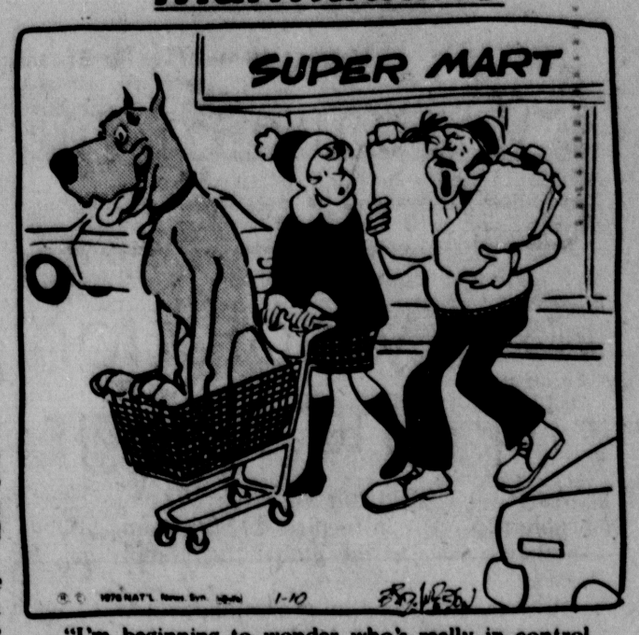

What bothers me is whether or not I should do it. Rick tells me the human body is beautiful, nothing to be ashamed of, and that I have a hang-up. He says I should be proud he picked me out as a model.

I don't know what to do, Ann. He has been pressuring me a lot lately. What's your opinion? — A Big Maybe

Dear Maybe: If Rick is such a terrific artist, he should be able to sell some of his paintings and hire a professional model. Keep your clothes on, girl.

Teaching your kids about the facts of life can be easy or awkward. Ann Landers' new booklet, "How, What, and When to Tell Your Child About Sex" can spell the difference. Send 50 cents in coin, along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request, to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120.

Clumsy puppy has problems?

DEAR DR. MILLER: Bozo is terribly clumsy for a four-month-old puppy, it seems to me. My wife thinks it's perfectly natural and he'll grow out of it. How do you know whether clumsiness like this is natural, or whether something is really wrong with him? — E.C.

DEAR E.C.: Bozo's at an awkward age, certainly and the bigger the breed (breeds?), the more clumsy a four-month-old puppy would be. However, your concern could be justified. There are a number of ambulatory type ailments associated with rapidly-growing puppies. Detection of most of these problems is difficult, at least in the early stages, even for the professional. X-rays are frequently required to confirm a suspected skelatal problem. If Bozo's still bouncing about in the same haphazard manner and you haven't had him checked yet, you should.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I'm planning on making some bird feeders, and can work in either wood or aluminum. Wood seems a little more natural, but wouldn't the aluminum be more practical? — M.Y.

DEAR M.Y.: Aluminum allows for easier maintenance, perhaps, but wood is better for birds. They prefer it, and it's warmer, literally. In really cold weather, metal can freeze on contact to a bird's flesh, tongues in particular, with devastating consequences.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Our cat, Blackie, whom we took in as a stray, is having a peculiar sickness. He develops this pouch below his right ear. It gives him a hot head and makes him dopey. Then it bursts open and drains this horrible-smelling stuff. Finally, it heals up and he feels better. This has happened four times in the last six months. Could you put in something in your column as to what to do for this kind of condition? Blackie's beginning to pouch up again. — R.C.

DEAR R.C.: Perhaps you've already taken poor Blackie in to the doctor? Certainly he does, or even has, needed help for the fever, infection, and other problems related to these recurring abscesses. Most such deep-seated infections are treated with a combination of surgery to remove the involved tissue, and antibiotics to help overcome the infection. Any such flareup may become a generalized, overwhelming, fatal infection. Even if the damage is not that immediate, these repeated attacks may leave the body weakened, with kidney damage for example, so that the unfortunate animal would have a greatly shortened life span.

DEAR DR. MILLER: We just allowed Piggie to have her first affair. The boar we borrowed was an old hand at this sort of thing. What we're wondering is, what's the earliest possible time we can find out whether or not she's pregnant. We're quite anxious to know and we're willing to pay to find out as soon as possible. — W.R.

DEAR W.R.: The very latest technique utilizes a transducer probe, an ultrasonic analyzer with echoes displayed on an oscilloscope. If this type of diagnostic equipment is available, Piggie's pregnancy or lack thereof could be determined 30 days after the initial event.

Shouting at teenager natural

At a luncheon last week, a woman was telling about driving in the car with her teenager.

"Debbie turned into a dead-end street," she explained, "and I said to her, 'Turn.' She kept going, so I raised my voice and said, 'TURN.' She sat there frozen to the wheel and when I saw a guard rail looming in front of us, I leaned over and shouted in her ear, 'TURN!!' "

She slammed on her brakes and cried, "There you go again. You're always shouting at me."

We all nodded our heads sympathetically. There wasn't one of us who didn't have varicose veins of the neck from "talking" with our teenagers.

The reasons were varied. One woman said she shouted at her teenage daughter because she had to compete with radios and stereos. "Everytime I said something to her she just stared back with a fixed, glazed smile, clicking her fingers. I got so mad I threatened to plug her into a faucet. Then one day I fugured, if you can't beat beat 'em, join 'em."

"What did you do?" we asked.

"Every time she asked me a question, I'd replay with a loud phonograph record. When she opened my drawer to borrow my last pair of panty hose, I'd turn up the volume on The Beatles playing 'Let It Be.' Once, when I made her spend a Saturday helping me clean, I played 23 choruses of the Carpenters singing, 'We've Only Just Begun.' "

Another mother said she shouted because her son hums when she chews him out. "If we had a drum and a guitar, we could record," she said bitterly.

I confessed to being a shouter because I can never find my kids to face them directly in a quiet, civilized manner.

One day I shouted under the bathroom door for 45 minutes delivering a lecture on why a wet towel should not be left on the bed. (I hate to sound immodest, but it was one of my finer efforts. It included a dissertation on a mother's place in the social system, how the IRS exemption for children is comedy at its best, how gross it is to cut your toenails in the living room and the sin of leaving five empty ice cream cartons in the freezer.)

My husband finally tapped me on the shoulder and informed me my son had left the house 20 minutes before.

We all agreed the term "rapping" had lost a lot in the modern-day interpretation. Finally, a small, quiet woman said, "I think raising kids is like working in a boiler factory. You shout from habit. Besides," she said, "I know I love 'em when I shout. They know I love 'em when I shout. But how will everyone else know unless I shout?"

No. 2 merely works harder

Trees with square trunks, that's what scholars at the University of Florida are trying to grow. Hold on, it's not the nonsense it seems, not at all. In Panama is a valley full of such trees. They're cottonwoods of a sort. Why their trunks are four-cornered I don't know, but that's the case. And those Florida researchers have gathered up a batch of saplings from that forest to see if we can grow some square trees around here, too. Wouldn't they be dandy? Consider the space they'd save when stacked as logs. At the moment, though, no place else in the world besides Panama grows square trees.

LOVE AND WAR

Q — "Why is it that the second wife always seems to work out better than the first wife?"

A — Our Love and War man finds your query puzzling. When a widower marries again, the second wife doesn't always work out better than the first wife. And when a divorced man marries again, the second wife just about has to work out better than the first wife, if another divorce isn't in the offing. This is likewise true of second husbands, please note. However, our L. and W. man further would like to call your attention to the advertisement: When you're No. 2, you try harder.

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

"Being of sound mind and body" is a familiar phrase in the typical last will and testament of modern times. Something like that phrase was included in the first of all last wills and testaments in recorded history. An Egyptian pharoah's son named Nik'ure wrote it before his death in 2,601 B.C. He left 14 towns and a couple of fancy estates to his wife, their three youngsters and to a certain ladyfriend. And the document, which was chiseled into his tomb, specified that he had made the decision "while living upon his two feet and not ailing in any respect."

Client asks, "How come the word 'colonel' is pronounced 'kernel'?" It used to be spelled both "colonel" and "coronel," each pronounced in three syllables. Slowly, the pronunciation of "coronel" was shortened to two syllables, and it stuck. But the literary spelling of "colonel" also survived.

Legs cramp at night

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I've had a problem for the last two months. My legs cramp and wake me about 4 or 5 a.m. Last night for the first time both of my legs cramped. It starts just above my ankle and spreads to my toes, mostly, it turns up my big toe.

I'm 62 and had my blood pressure checked and it was 140 over 90. I am a barber and, of course, stand a lot but only walk about 10 blocks a day.

Would you please send me any information that might help me to overcome this problem. I do try to help myself before bothering my doctor because I seem to be in good health otherwise.

DEAR READER — An occasional leg or foot cramp with no other problems in standing, walking or using the feet is usually not important. But anyone who has frequent or recurrent leg or foot carmps will need a doctor's examination.

Some cramps such as you have are related to poor circulation to the legs because of obstructions that develop in the main arteries. In many of these cases, the best treatment is surgical correction of the obstruction. I do not know that you have such a problem but neither will anyone else without examining you first, including feeling the arterial pulsations to your thigh area, behind the knee and in the foot.

Other leg cramps are caused by orthopedic problems. You may have some difficulties because of standing all day to do your barbering.

Still other leg cramps occur for no apparent reason. These sometimes can be helped by taking calcium, and in other cases by using quinidine or related medicines.

As many of my readers know, wearing long warm wool or heavy socks to bed at night often helps prevent cramps. The retained body heat seems to relieve the tendency to cramping. The feet normally get colder than the rest of the body during the night because they are farthest away from the heart. This can be demonstrated by measuring skin temperatures.

Try the long warm socks if you like but I really wish you would let your doctor examine your feet.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am on a hypoglycemia diet. Among other foods the diet indicates I may have one or two eggs for breakfast and again for lunch.

With all the discussion about cholesterol these days, I asked my doctor if this was not too many eggs. He said studies have shown that as long as the eggs are soft-boiled they would not increase one's cholesterol level. Is this true?

DEAR READER — Absolutely not! Some lucky people can eat high cholesterol foods and not have a rise in their own blood cholesterol level but that has nothing to do with whether an egg is raw, fried, poached, soft-boiled or otherwise. There is no special way to prepare eggs to eliminate their cholesterol content.

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Monday, Jan. 12, 1976

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Use your imagination today in selling others on your point of view. A touch of dramatics will have an impressive impact.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Take plenty of time today to think things through in financial and business dealings. The clock is your ally.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be realistic today in evaluations that have a direct effect upon your interests. Results should be favorable.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You may be the recipient today of a favor, in exchange for somthing nice that you did for another some time ago.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Take a firm position today with a friend on an issue you feel strongly about. It can be done so as not to disturb the relationship.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be extra-persistent today in your endeavors, especially where important goals are concerned. It will pay.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today's concerns should not be limited to present events. Look beyond. Begin now to build a solid foundation for future success.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're likely to become more ambitious toward evening today. Could be a late night, but a productive one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're a shade slow in making decisions today, but that could be good. Don't let anyone pressure you beyond your pace.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Though you may be a bit slow in starting today, your resolve is apt to increase when others begin to let down.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Plan something of a social nature for this evening, but not with too many people. The change of pace should do you good.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Give explicit instructions to anyone performing work or services for you today. Be sure they understand each detail.

Your Birthday, Jan. 12, 1976

The coming year should be socially interesting and fun. Associate yourself with an organization which draws its membership from the full spectrum of society.

Battery cleaner costs pennies

By NORMAN H. STARK

Automobile starting problems may be caused by poor battery contact as a result of corrosion. This problem can be easily and inexpensively corrected and prevented.

To correct the condition, remove clamps from terminal posts. Now measure out one-fourth cup of sodium bicarbonate (ordinary baking soda) and add sufficient water to mix to a paste. Apply liberally to terminals and clamps, and allow the mixture to "work" until bubbling action (the result of a base neutralizing an acid) has stopped. Wipe off residue, and wash your brush in preparation for the next step.

To help prevent a recurrence of corrosion build-up, you'll need a small jar of sodium silicate (this is ordinary waterglass that most druggists carry). Brush a thin coat on the battery terminals and all exposed surfaces of the clamps, allow to dry and reconnect the clamps to the terminals.

The cost of making your own auto battery terminal cleaner and corrosion preventative is approximately four cents per ounce. To determine your savings, divide the cost of your store-bought brand by the number of ounces it contains. Then multiply the per ounce cost — you'll be surprised at how much you can save for so little effort.

Note: Material costs are based on the prices at retail outlets of national drug, grocery and hardware chains. These costs will vary, depending on the geographic area. If you wish to make up a larger quantity — and save even more — buy your materials at a chemical supply company.

Like any product you make at home, you should store this one safely, label it — listing ingredients and noting any cautions — and keep it out of reach of children.)

(There has never been a how-to book so practical and helpful as THE FORMULA BOOK. Hundreds of easy recipes and savings and fun into the making of your own personal and home care items. # Heart contract is best

By Oswald & James Jacoby

When do you use a Stayman two-club response to an opening notrump in preference to a transfer bid? In general, you use Stayman because you have five cards in one major and four in the other.

South has 11 high-card points, four spades and five hearts and responds two clubs. His jump to three hearts at his next turn is a forcing bid.

North's first thought is to bid three notrump. He only holds jack and two small hearts. Then he thinks some more, decides that his partner's bidding has shown decided weakness in at least one minor suit and that four hearts is the place to be.

It sure is. West gets his two aces and South collects the other 11 tricks.

Had North bid three notrump, East might have led the 10 diamonds. In that case North would be one down. Against a club lead, North would make four notrump, but that would be 20 points less than the points South scored at hearts.

A Pennsylvania reader wants to know what North should open with: ♠ A K Q ♥ A Q J ♦ Q J 10 8 4 ♣ K 9.

This is a standard opening two notrump. North has 23 high-card points, all suits stopped and 5-3-3-2 distribution.

Grant given Care Center

A $7,500 state grant made Thursday to the La Verne College Hanawalt House Day-Care Center will assist the low income college student who has a child or young children and wishes to return to school or complete degree work.

The grant was announced by Don E. Reed, California state administrator of the Office of Child Development, at a La Verne College workshop meeting of directors of day-care centers from more than a dozen campuses throughout Southern California.

Reed said the money was part of an assembly bill which has made a $200,000 state grant available for campus child care centers throughout the state. This money will allow the children to receive quality day care at a reduced cost while the parent is in class, he said.

Reed said that more than $80 million of state, federal and local money is presently being chaneled into quality child care for preschool children of parents who are either working, in professional improvement programs or enrolled in college courses.

"Though our primary concern is the welfare of the children," he said, "our long-range goal is to put the parents into a position where they will be capable of supporting themselves and their families."

The grant was made to Hanawalt House, now in its third year of operation, following a screening visit to the center by Joseph P. Barankin, consultant with the state office of Child Development, who praised the facilities and its director, Ruth Hersch, a veteran of more than 12 years of work with young children.

"I found a warm, supportive atmosphere here at La Verne," he said. "The children are open and friendly and the 'old home' concept of Hanawalt House gets away from the institutional feel that we like to avoid, if possible."

Barankin explained that the grant to La Verne will continue through June, providing funds through the spring semester. "It's my strong hope," he added, "that we can secure additional funds for next year at Hanawalt House."

The center at La Verne presently has 50 children enrolled, many on a part-time basis. Approximately two-thirds of the children have parents who are students at La Verne. Mrs. Hersch said that parents do not have to be enrolled in La Verne College, but that LVC students are given first priority. She also said that the size of her staff allows for additional enrollments in the Center.

According to Joan Calkins, assistant professor of education and director of the Early Childhood Program at LVC, this new grant will assist many young mothers who qualify for financial aide for their school work, but up until now have been unable to afford the necessary child care while they were absent from the home.

COLD DUCK — Two ducks take off from a patch of open water on Lake Cornelia as others sat in the mist on the ice this week in Minnesota. The temperature at the time was -5 degrees.

Claremont's home zoo...

Judy drinks milk fortified with vitamins from a paper cup handed to her through the cage bars.

Jacobsen estimates he has spent $5,000 in building cages for the animals. His newest project is a new enclosure for the iguana and the chuckwalla, because their present glass cage is too small.

"I decided to call it a lizardarium, not an iguanatarium," Mrs. Jacobsen joked.

One of the squirrel monkeys is Adam, who has not been accepted by the other monkeys, and so lives in a cage by himself.

Mrs. Jacobsen said that Adam is a tragic example of how people treat animals. Adam is a reformed alcoholic. His former owner got him drunk at least three times a week, she said.

Now Adam is strictly a milk drinker.

Mrs. Jacobsen estimated it costs at least $600 a year to feed the alligators. She said that neighbors help out with chicken necks and fish, which are fed by hand to the alligators.

She said that because the alligators are an endangered species she can't sell them, except with a special U.S. Department of Fish and Game permit to an educational institution.

She said that she could donate them if someone takes the entire herd. Zoos don't accept anything raised in captivity, she said.

She is on leave from the Claremont School District where she has taught 25 years.

She teaches art at the Foothill Country Day School and is looking forward to being a docent or guide at the Los Angeles Zoo.

Through UCLA Extension she is studying the biology of captive wild animals, and will specialize as a guide in primates.

She has written a book for five-six-year-olds about "The Alligator in My Backyard," and intends to write one on iguanas.

Everyone in the Jacobsen family, including daughter Jody, a Citrus College coed, feeds the animals and looks out for their welfare. Jody has her own small menagerie, a turtle and a rabbit.

The domesticated animals in the Jacobsen household include Killer, a chihuahua, and Jock, a French poodle.

Also to be settled by the Claremont council Jan. 13 will be whether a resident should be charged $10 a year per household or $10 for each animal.

Almanac

By Associated Press

Today is Sunday, Jan. 11, the 11th day of 1976. There are 355 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1943, during World War II, the United States and Britain relinquished extraterritorial rights in China.

On this date—

In 1569, the first lottery in England was drawn in St. Paul's Cathedral under the patronage of Queen Elizabeth I.

In 1788, a band of colonists set out for Ohio from Hartford, Connecticut.

In 1861, Alabama seceded from the Union.

In 1962, an avalanche buried a village in the Andes in Peru, and 3,000 persons were reported killed.

In 1964, Panama suspended diplomatic relations with the United States after clashes between Panamanian students and American troops in the Panama Canal Zone.

In 1970, in Nigeria, the 32-month-old secessionist Biafran regime collapsed under onslaughts by the Nigerian central government.

Ten years ago: A state of emergency was declared in Rio de Janeiro when heavy rains sent floods swirling through slum areas, killing scores of people.

Five years ago: Eight members of a Panamanian tanker, the "Texaco Caribbean," were killed when the ship collided with a Peruvian ship in the English Channel, split in two and sank.

One year ago: The Soviets launched a manned spaceship to rendezvous with a space laboratory that had been sent into orbit around the earth.

Today's birthdays: Writer Alan Paton is 73. Actress Eva Le Gallienne is 77.

Thought for today: I am always ready to learn, but I do not always like being taught. —, Sir Winston Churchill, 1874-1965.

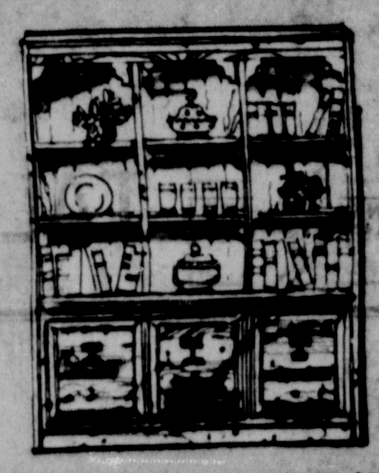

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, the Maryland Convention in Annapolis instructed its delegation to the Continental Congress in Philadelphia to remind other delegates that the American colonies were seeking a redress of grievances and their historic rights, not independence.

Oregon State's Lonnie Shelton bends over backwards to avoid fouling UCLA's Marques Johnson (54) Saturday afternoon in Corvallis. Beavers beat Bruins, 75-58.

Bruins fall at Corvallis

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — "I think we have a good chance at winning it," Oregon State's Lonnie Shelton said with a modest smile. "But quite a few teams do, especially now."

Shelton, a junior from Bakersfield, Calif., scored 20 points as Oregon State overpowered the third-ranked UCLA Bruins 75-58 in a regionally televised Pacific-8 Conference basketball game Saturday.

Oregon State outshot, outrebounded and outdefensed the defending NCAA champions before a noisy, highly partisan crowd at Gill Coliseum.

"It was probably the greatest defensive game we've had in a long, long time," said Oregon State Coach Ralph Miller. "We kept them shooting from outside, and it had to be one of our best games on the backboards.

"According to our plan, we had to outdefense them," said Miller, whose Beavers gave him his 401st career coaching victory. "And we thought we could run with them and score."

They succeeded on all counts.

"This is probably the greatest victory of my career," said Miller, who coached the Beavers to a second place finish and a spot in the NCAA playoffs last season.

Oregon State, which committed only one foul in the second half, now is 2-0 in the conference after surprising 18th-ranked Southern Cal 80-70 Thursday night in Corvallis.

"Oregon State played a great ball game, as nearly perfect as they could," said a subdued Gene Bartow, the first-year coach of the Bruins. "They controlled the tempo of the game. We couldn't get the rebounds.

"If they play this way every game they can play with anybody," Bartow said of Oregon State.

The Beavers took the lead after 2½ minutes, 8-7, and never trailed.

Shelton sat out 13 minutes of the first half with three fouls but played the entire second half. Guard George Tucker added 11 points while directing a patient Oregon State offense.

Richard Washington, UCLA's All-American junior forward from Portland, Ore., topped all scorers with 21 points. Guard Andre McCarter scored 15 for the Bruins, now 1-1 in the Pac-8.

Oregon State is 9-4 this season. UCLA now is 11-2, previously losing only to top-ranked Indiana in the season opener.

Shelton got two points on a goaltending call 2:27 into the first half, putting the Beavers on top 8-7. OSU poured in eight consecutive points for a 16-7 lead.

McCarter hit a jump shot to pull UCLA within 16-9 for the smallest margin the Bruins could manage for the rest of the game.

A long jump shot by Tucker gave the Beavers a 33-20 advantage at halftime.

The Bruins pulled within nine points in the second half. Washington drove for a layin, cutting the margin to 45-36 with 14:06 to play.

OSU forward Don Smith answered with a free throw and a jumper from the corner to make it 48-36 with 12:50 to go, and the Beavers were not seriously threatened thereafter.

With five minutes left, OSU Coach Ralph Miller put his team into a delay offense, getting easy shots under the basket.

Washington, McCarter and Marques Johnson hit for UCLA from the outside but couldn't get by Oregon State's man-to-man defense. The Beavers outrebounded the Bruins 37-29.

Shelton hit a layin with 1:03 on the clock, giving the Beavers their largest lead at 73-54.

The 6-foot-8 center could have collected two more points with 30 seconds left but slammed a dunk shot through the net and drew a technical foul. Dunk shots are illegal in collegiate play, but Shelton was mobbed by his teammates and fans.

Washington missed the free throw for UCLA.

"He really shouldn't have done it," Miller said of Shelton's dunk, but the OSU coach hardly was being critical. "Well, we were ahead and everybody knew we were going to win and I guess Lonnie decided to add something special."

Oregon State, which upset the Bruins here two years ago, shot 67 per cent from the floor in the second half and finished with a .564 mark on 31-55, UCLA was .487, hitting 27 of 61 shots.

UCLA went to a full-court zone press with about eight minutes left, but Oregon State handled it without trouble.

Cal Poly ready for conference action

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

Cal Poly showed it is ready for the start of the conference basketball season.

The Broncos fell to touring Athletes in Action, 81-78, at Kellogg Gym Saturday night but Coach Don Hogan was inspired about the way his team rallied from a 48-36 halftime deficit to make it a game against a club which had beaten the likes of Cincinnati, Vanderbilt, Arkansas, Houston and Oklahoma and took North Carolina State into overtime.

"We played a very good game," Hogan said after the narrow loss. "This was an imposing team we played tonight, probably the best we play this season. I feel this game establishes the fact we're ready to play. I'm optimistic. It took a great effort to come back the way we did."

Free throws were the difference as AIA was able to hit the big ones near the end when it went into a four-corner offense and Poly was forced to foul.

Eldon Lawyer, a former Oral Roberts player, sank a pair of free throws with five seconds left to ice the victory.

Poly's Paul Newton, who scored 27 points and grabbed 12 rebounds to lead both teams in both departments, had a chance to tie the score at 79-79 with 11 seconds left. He made his first free throw but the second went off the rim and AIA's Tim Hall grabbed the rebound.

AIA converted 25-of-30 free throws while Poly hit on 12-of-17 to take away Poly's 33-28 edge in field goals.

The visitors, who also spoke about their Christian faith at halftime, were a physically strong and poised team as one would expect from a team of college graduates which tour the country playing top college clubs.

Hall, a 6-foot-8 product of Colorado State, scored 22 points and 6-11 Dan Knight, who started for Kansas, added 20 to pace the touring team.

Besides Newton's 27 points, Poly got a big night from guard Joe Sills, who added 25 in making 11 of 20 shots. However, Jack Gamulin had an off night in only making 5-of-14 for 10 points.

AIA had the lead all the way after going ahead 12-10 early in the game. The visitors outscored the Broncs, 17-6, in one stretch to build their halftime margin.

Leopards need a new beginning

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

La Verne is going to have to figure some way to start a game other than at the beginning.

For the third game in a row, the Leopards got off to a horrible start. Then they expend themselves catching up and don't have anything left for the last five minutes of the game.

It was that way again Saturday in a 75-70 loss to Whittier in the Supertent.

The Leopards had seven turnovers in the first five minutes and 22 seconds. They couldn't even get a shot off the first five times they had the ball.

As a result, visiting Whittier jumped off to an 8-0 lead that went to 15-2 before the Leos got into gear. By that time, the half was more than half over.

When they did break the ice, they broke it with a vengence and outscored the Poets 33-19 to forge ahead, 35-34, at intermission.

But it was back into the ice box and more turnovers when the second half started and the Leos eventually fell 10 points behind. The Leopards made their usual comeback and, as usual, fell short.

"We're at the point where the guys are getting frustrated because they are losing," commented Bias as he emerged from a 25 minute postgame meeting.

Asked if the Leos were playing far less deliberately by design this year, Bias answered in the negative. "It's not be design," he said. "We're not staying in our patterns. We're shooting too soon and we're turning the ball over too much."

La Verne had 11 turnovers in the first half and 17 in the game.

The Leopards (0-2 in conference play and 5-9 overall) have put themselves in a hole in the SCIAC race by losing two at home.

"We can't afford to lose anymore games, that's for sure," said Bias. We're in a bad streak now. We've lost four in a row and seven of the last eight. We've just got to put things together."

The Leos travel to neighboring Claremont-Mudd (1-1 and 3-11) Wednesday night. They return to the Supertent Saturday to meet defending champion Occidental (1-0 and 9-4). Oxy was surprised by Cal Lutheran, 68-66, in a non conference game.

Whittier will be tougher next time with a 6-10 center and 6-3 All-American eligible. The Poets (2-0 and 5-8) have won two on the road.

"That's a good way to start," grinned a happy Dave Jacobs. "It's especially good to win in the 'tent' after the game we had here last year and the battle we had up at Chico (four overtimes).

"We were lucky tonight," he continued. "They've got guys that can hit coming off the bench and that gives them a lot of firepower."

Ducks' defense earns win against Trojans

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Oregon's aggressive defense shut down 18th-ranked Southern California in the closing minutes Saturday night as the Ducks scored a 77-72 Pacific-8 Conference basketball victory.

It was Oregon's first victory over the Trojans since 1971 and gave the Ducks a 1-1 conference record. Southern Cal now is 0-2 in the Pac-8.

Oregon led nearly all the way. The Ducks, now 8-7 overall, trailed only once 57-55 when USC's Marv Safford sank a jumper with 8:40 remaining.

The Ducks, who had lost 10 straight games to the Trojans, earned a 57-57 standoff on freshman Danny Mack's tip-in. The winners went ahead to stay 65-63 on Mark Barwig's shot from the key with 6:35 to go.

Southern Cal went scoreless from the field for about four minutes until Casey Jones hit a 20-footer that pulled the Trojans within 73-70 with 1:08 to go.

Ron Lee and Mack then scored layins, and USC suffered its second straight loss and saw its over-all mark fall to 11-3.

Safford led all scorers with 30 points but left the game with an injury with a little less than three minutes remaining.

Greg Ballard tossed in 22 points for Oregon. Lee added 17 and Stu Jackson 16.

Late goal beats Kings

TORONTO (AP) — Inge Hammarstrom's controversial goal at 17:14 of the third period lifted the Toronto Maple Leafs to a 4-3 National Hockey League victory over the Los Angeles Kings Saturday

Rod Seiling shot the puck at Kings netminder Rogie Vachon. The rebound flipped up and Hammarstrom, at the side of the net, hooked the bouncing puck around the goal post and into the net. Vachon and team captain Mike Murphy protested that Hammarstrom was in the goal crease, but the goal was allowed.

Miller trailing Weiskopf

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Tom Weiskopf has the lead but Johnny Miller has a feeling—just a little premonition of the way things may turn out.

"I figured I had to shoot a 68 to win," Miller said Saturday after the third round of the $200,000 Tucson Open Golf Tournament, an event in which he has been a record-setting winner for the last two seasons.

But he didn't shoot 68. He shot a 67 in the brilliant sunshine, including a 30-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole—that watery monster that grabbed him for a triple bogey on the first day of competition.

"I'm not saying I will win, but I'm in position to make a run at it," Miller said after his 206 total left him tied with British Open king Tom Watson, one stroke back of Weiskopf's leading 205, 11 strokes under par on the 7,200 yards of cactus-studded desert real estate that make up the Tucson National Golf Club course.

"I had a goal today. I wanted to shoot four under and get within one stroke. Now I'm there. I just wanted to give myself a run at it in the final round.

"I'm playing good and these other guys have to know I've played this course pretty well before." He paused for a smile and a recollection of his 25 under par winning total of last year. "That might make them think just a little in the last round."

Weiskopf, the center of a raging controversy in this tournament a year ago, came out of the closely bunched field with a five-under-par 67 that gave him the lead alone.

Weiskopf, who was accused— and later exonerated—of unprofessional play in this tournament in 1975, shared the lead with Watson Saturday until the spunky little British Open champ hit his tee shot in a lake on the 18th. Watson managed to salvage a bogey and a 68.

Veteran Rod Funseth followed with a 66-207, two shots behind the leader. Dave Hill, with a 71, and Dave Stockton, with a 69 that included a double bogey on the 18th hole, were tied at 208.

The bulky group at 209 was made up of Lee Trevino, Don January, Gibby Gilbert, Howard Twitty and tour sophomore Bruce Lietzke, leaving 11 men locked within four stokes of each other going to Sunday's final round of play for a $40,000 first prize.

The husky Lietzke had a remarkable round that included nine birdies, a double bogey and a triple bogey, the triple bogey coming on the treacherous 18th, which is bounded by water on both sides of the 460 yard fairway The same water led to Johnny Miller's triple bogey seven in the first round of competitive play on the pro tour this year.

Olympics may need miracle

MONTREAL (AP) — "If a miracle is needed, a miracle must be made."

That was the response of a newspaper here to continuing problems with construction of facilities for the 1976 Summer Olympics. It is becoming clear that a miracle may be needed.

Victor Goldbloom, the Quebec government minister responsible for Olympics construction, and other officials have recently refused to guarantee that the main stadium will be ready for the July 17 opening of the Games.

"Neither I nor anyone else can make that guarantee," said Goldbloom. Later he said, "There are thing that are going to have to be done in the stadium right up to the early morning of July 17."

There has been no official panic by the International Olympic Committee. But an IOC meeting scheduled for Jan. 31 in Innsbruck could bring some hard questions for the Montreal organizers on whether they can stage the Summer Games.

If they can't—and that possibility seems to grow daily—international sport's main forum will be in chaos.

One Canadian official noted recently that the Mexican government has offered the hold the Games in October. The official said if Mexico could do it in October, why couldn't Canada do it then? Which is not the kind of statement one would expect of a confident government.

Goldbloom says Lord Killanin, president of the IOC, has made clear there can be no postponement of the Games.

"So we've just got to come through," he said. "It is my intention that we do come through. It has been made very clear that it is not possible to postpone the Games."

The IOC also said no changes in Olympic plans were being considered and none had been requested.

A change of the July 17 opening at Montreal would cause havoc. The training schedules of athletes, the schedules of television networks, communications satellites and transportation companies would be in turmoil.

Goldbloom is confident Montreal builders can surmount their various problems, which include a faulty portion of the main stadium that may have to be replaced. But he repeated that success depends on continuing labor peace at the main Olympic site, which was plagued by strikes before the Quebec government took over responsibility for construction in November.

Whatever happens, the turmoil caused by these Games could scar Canada and create inner political fights for years to come.

Originally, Canadian officials said it would cost $300 million to hold the Summer Olympics. Now that figure has skyrocketed to $1 billion and there are published reports that it could be $1.2 billion. There has been some talk of a tax to help pay for the mounting debt.

Observers say the many problems have forced a return to some of the simplicity promised by Mayor Jean Drapeau after he persuaded the IOC nearly five years ago to award the 1976 Summer Games to Montreal.

The uncertainty surrounds only the core of the Olympics— the 70,000-seat main stadium, one of the most striking architectural concepts in the world with a projected 550-foot leaning tower and retractable roof. All other projects are on schedule, including the Olympic Village that will house 11,000 athletes and officials.

Engineers say the tower will probably go no higher than its present height of 138 feet before the Games. The main press center has been shifted from the $485-million stadium and there is every likelihood that dressing rooms and locker facilities will not be finished.

"Our principal concern is that athletes be properly housed and properly received in the various facilities that must be made available to them for dressing, training and medical examination," Goldbloom said.

"If some of these things can be done in temporary installations it would take some burden off us in terms of physical completion of the stadium. But it is not our intention to do any of this at the expense of reasonable comfort and convenience of the athletes."

There are reports mobile trailers might be pressed into service as dressing rooms in parking areas.

While the stadium will be the site of the opening and closing ceremonies and four of the 21 Olympic sports, the Montreal Forum—home of the National Hockey League's Canadiens— will host five sports. Engineers say the swimming hall, adjoining the stadium, will be ready on schedule. The adjoining cycling velodrome is near completion.

One official says the prospects of reaching all construction targets is 80 per cent, barring walkouts among the 3,800 workers who have been back to work for a week after a two-week Christmas vacation.

One problem in the chill Montreal winter is to maintain "humane" working conditions, especially when men are whipped by wind and snow while operating in cranes high above the ground. "If we continue making progress we will be in better and better shape," Goldbloom said. "There are two kinds of obstacles in our way.

"There is the technical obstacle—the difficulties that the construction itself involves. These come up every day and we resolve them one by one as they come along. We are confident we can lick them and that they will not block us from holding the Games."

But Goldbloom said he fears it would be impossible to compensate for time lost in strike action.

"This is why we attach so much importance to the human factor and good relations on the job site," he said. "If we can maintain this atmosphere I think we can maintain a willingness to go right through to the end. Hopefully, public opinion will keep the lid on conflicts until the Games are over."

His last statement indicates that even if the Montreal Olympics come off, the problems they have caused will scar this country for years to come.

Vols edge Kentucky

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Tennessee's Bernard King hit a spectacular one-hand shot while almost flat on his back to send the game into overtime Saturday night and the Volunteers, led by Ernie Grunfeld's 43 points, then took a 90-88 Southeastern Conference basketball victory over Kentucky.

Tennessee, outscoring Kentucky 31-15 during the final 7:54 of regulation and the overtime period, chewed up a 14-point Wildcat lead to earn the triumph.

Grunfeld hit 16 of 26 from the field and 11 of 12 from the foul line while King added 24 points.

Poly stays with AIA

AIA still held a 10-point lead at 72-62 with 6:30 left when Poly made its run.

The Broncs scored six straight points on a pair of baskets by Sills and one by Newton. After Knight broke the string with a bucket, Sills converted a three-point play to narrow the gap to 74-71 with 2:48 on the clock.

Both teams traded baskets when Poly, trailing by two at 79-77, got its break when Charlie Neal, a starter at Oregon State last year, missed the first of an one-and-one foul opportunity with 33 seconds left.

It set the stage for the final free throws.

Poly, 5-6 for the season, will complete its preconference schedule Tuesday night at Azusa Pacific and opens CCAA play next Friday at home against Cal State Northridge.

Evert, Goolagong will clash today

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Chris Evert overwhelmed teen-age pal Martina Navratilova 6-0, 6-3 in the semifinals of the $100,000 World Series of Women's Tennis Saturday.

Miss Evert's victory over the Czech, who now is a U.S. resident, put her into today's $50,000 final against old-rival Evonne Goolagong of Australia.

Ms. Goolagong rallied from a 3-1 deficit in the first set to beat Virginia Wade of Great Britian 7-5, 6-0 in the other semifinal.

Miss Evert sprayed precision shots all over the court, which her friend, a muscular lefthander, simply did not have the speed to reach.

Miss Navratilova won only four points in the first set and muttered to herself in English on several occasions as Miss Evert's shots whistled past her. Once she even smiled in admiration as a delicate shot dropped just over the net.

Four questionable calls in the match seemed to upset Miss Navratilova and Miss Evert said later, "She let too many things bother her. It is just her temperment... She is very emotional. Mentally, I have something over her."

Miss Evert said she hit to Miss Navratilova's backhand, because "her forehand is really tough"

She said her foe in the championship match, Ms. Goolagong, "is always difficult for me to play. She's so loose... She's a great athlete."

The noon final will be nationally televised as was Miss Evert's victory over Miss Navratilova.

Fans mar exhibition

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Play was interrupted twice during the second period of Saturday night's exhibition game between the National Hockey League's New York Islanders and the touring Wings of the Soviet by people who threw bags filled with a red liquid onto the playing surface at the Nassau Coliseum.

The first delay came with 4:10 played in the session, when a woman hurled a bag—said by officials to contain marbles and red dye—just past the head of a Russian player as he skated in his defensive zone. It took five minutes for a maintainance crew to remove the substance from the ice.

Stags belt Tech, Sagehens lose

Claremont-Mudd returned to the win column Saturday night, bombing host Caltech 102-51 in a Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Association basketball contest.

Pomona-Pitzer was also on the road, but the Sagehens didn't fare as well, as SCIAC rival Redlands beat them 71-53.

The Stags took an overwhelming 25-2 lead at the start of their contest with Caltech and cruised home from there. Bob Smith led all scorers with 27 points, while Rich Roth contributed 16 points and 12 rebounds to the victory.

The 102-point total was the second highest in C-M history, only two points shy of the school record 104.

The win gives the Stags a 3-11 season record, and a 1-1 conference mark. Caltech is now 0-5 on the year.

Pomona-Pitzer took a quick 10-2 lead at Redlands but the hosts quickly caught the Sagehens and pulled away for the victory.

Steve Pinkston led the 'Hens with 13 points, who were without the services of high-scoring forward Brandon Boyd for half the game. Boyd, still recovering from the flu, played half the contest and sank nine points.

Tom Buffum led Redlands, now 2-0 in the SCIAC, with 19.

Pomona-Pitzer (0-2 in conference, 3-10 overall) will be back in action Wednesday night, as will Claremont-Mudd. The Stags will host La Verne while the 'Hens play at Whittier. Both games will start at 8

Ashe set for finals

COLUMBUS (AP) — Topseeded Arthur Ashe won his third consecutive match Saturday without losing a set to advance to today's final of the $6?,'000 World Championship Tennis tournament.

Ashe's latest victim was Australian Phil Dent who fell 6-2, 7-5, in just 63 minutes. However, Ashe thought the tough second set should help him in the finals after 6-2, 6-1, triumphs in his first two matches against South African Bob Hewitt and Russian Alex Metreveli.

Ashe will meet Andrew Pattison of Rhodesia for the $17,000 winner's check. Pattison advanced with a 6-3, 6-4 triumph over South African Cliff Drysdale Saturday night. Pattison and Drysdale both now live in Lakeway, Tex.

'The Count' not happy about Toronto move

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — John Montefusco, star pitcher for the San Francisco Giants and the National League rookie of the year, had a curt reaction to the prospective move of the team to Toronto: "I ain't going."

While San Francisco Mayor George Moscone met with financiers Saturday and the city attorney prepared a multimillion dollar lawsuit, the brash Montefusco was offering a conspiracy theory about Friday's announced sale of the team to Canadian interests for $13.25 million.

"I don't think we're going to Toronto," he said. "I think this is a publicity thing to make people around here do something, to get someone to raise the money to keep the Giants here.

"I'll tell you this, I ain't going to Toronto," continued The Count. "No way I'll go. If the team really does, then I'm playing out my option."

Montefusco's contention that the proposed sale, which must be approved by at least nine of the 11 other National League club owners, was an attempt to jolt San Francisco business interests into action drew some support.

"If not," asked one Giants' front office staff member, "why would they pass out that news release with the exact price of the sale? When was the last time you saw a club announcing an exact money figure for any kind of transaction?"

Most of the other Giants' players expressed disappointment but said they would go to Toronto.

"I'm sorry to see it happen," said shortstop Chris Speier, 'but if it does happen, we'll make the best of it."

Meanwhile, opposition to the move continued to grow in San Francisco.

Moscone, inaugurated as mayor last Thursday, announced Saturday he will meet with National League owners in Phoenix on Wednesday to urge that the sale be rejected in favor of an offer by local financier Robert Lurie, who would keep the Giants in San Francisco.

The mayor also has said he would meet Monday with New York investor Raymond Rossi, who wants the Gaints to stay here.

Moscone said Friday he has 'instructed City Atty. Thomas M. O'Connor "to draft a complaint for an injunction and damages. I can't say how much the damages would be but it would be in excess of $10 million."

City officials say the Giants owe the city $23.5 million on a lease for Candlestick Park which runs through 1995. Giants' officials said $5.1 million had been set aside to break the lease.

National League club owners meet at Phoenix, Ariz., on Wednesday to vote on the sale. At least two owners, Walter O'Malley of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Ray Kroc of the San Diego Padres, are expected to oppose the move.

Penrose, Todd start

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Alabama's Richard Todd for the South and San Diego State's Craig Penrose for the North were named Saturday as the starting quarterbacks for the 27th annual Senior Bowl all-star football game today.

Todd will be backed up by Scott Gardner of Virginia and Penrose will get help from Gene Swick of Toledo.

East surprises in Hula Bowl

HONOLULU (AP) — Kentucky running back Sonny Collins, who caught the West napping to set up the only touchdown in the 30th Hula Bowl, was a bit perplexed that he didn't carry the ball in the second half of the game won by the East 16-0.

"I felt really great," Collins said of his 41-yard first half effort, which included two 14-yard runs in the East scoring drive. "I felt I could have continued but we just changed plans in the second half."

On a third and eight at the West 18, Collins took a wide pitchout from North Carolina State quarterback Dave Buckey and looped around left end to the four. Purdue's Mike Pruitt scored for the East on the next play.

"In a regular college game, I would have scored. I was real fortunate to get loose," Collins said.

West Coach Barry Switzer of Oklahoma said his team was set up for a pass, not for a pitchout. "The man-to-man is no good against the pitchout," Switzer said.

Switzer said that play and the East's grudging defense were the difference in the game, which was the first shutout in Hula Bowl history.

But Oklahoma defensive lineman Leroy Selmon shook off the defeat.

"It was just a fun game. I don't think anyone played to the best of his ability," Selmon said.

Don Bitterlich of Temple added three field goals including a pair of Hula Bowl record kicks from 46 yards out.

Both teams started shakily, fumbling and losing the ball to each other within the first 90 seconds.

But the East, using the power running of the 210-pound Pruitt and the slashing outside speed of the 190-pound Collins, put together a 17-play 80-yard touchdown drive in the second quarter capped by Pruitt's four-yard touchdown burst

The East rolled up 286 yards on offense and limited the West, with All-American John Sciarra of UCLA sharing quarterback chores with Steve Davis of Oklahoma for the West, to only 123 yards total offense.

COACH OF YEAR — Newly honored Ted Marchibroda of Baltimore Colts holds game ball marking his first Colt victory, 23-20 over Denver.

Colts' 'rookie' Marchibroda named NFL coach of year

NEW YORK (AP) — Ted Marchibroda, the low-keyed, first-year leader of the Baltimore Colts who directed one of the most remarkable turnarounds in sports history, was named National Football League Coach of the Year overwhelmingly Saturday by The Associated Press.

Marchibroda, who took a team that shared the NFL's worst record in 1974 at 2-12 and molded it into the champion of the American Conference East with a 10-4 mark this year, received 51 of the 78 cast by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Bum Phillips, the first-year coach of the resurgent Houston Oilers was runner-up with 12 votes, followed by Miami's Don Shula with six. The remaining votes went to Dallas' Tom Landry with four, St. Louis' Don Coryell with three and Minnesota's Bud Grant with two.

The 44-year-old Marchibroda was hired by Colts' General Manager Joe Thomas last Jan. 15 after 14 years as an assistant coach, the last nine with George Allen with both the Los Angeles Rams and Washington Redskins.

"I try to be myself and not anyone else I've coached for," says Marchibroda, who says he "learned the X's and O's" from some of the veteran players and coaches when he was offensive backfield coach at Washington under Bill McPeak.

"I learned organization, how to put in long hours, from Allen," he says, stressing that his own players "are also willing to work extra hours. The total thing is good team preparation."

In his playing days, he quarterbacked St. Bonaventure College during 1950-51, then, when the Bonnies dropped football, transferred to the University of Detroit in 1952 and was one of the nation's leading passers.

In 1953 he was the Pittsburgh Steelers' first-round draft choice. His rookie year was interrupted by military service and, in all, he played four NFL seasons at quarterback, completing his career with the Chicago (now St. Louis) Cardinals.

"I believe in the basics," he says. "You win with blocking and tackling, with dedication and playing them one at a time. I'm a low-key coach who believes in sound, basic football."

That was provided by many of the players brought in by Thomas, reaping the rewards of a daring move several years ago, when he dismantled the one-time Super Bowl champions, unloading aging veterans like Johnny Unitas and John Mackey.

With their departure, the new breed took over. The offense is spearheaded by quarterback Bert Jones, running back Lydell Mitchell (the team's leading receiver and first 1,000-yard rusher ever), and a high-spirited defensive line which calls itself the "Looney Tunes" and drove opposition quarterbacks a bit batty with a league-leading 59 sacks.

This was a season written off by most experts as a rebuilding year at best. They figured a break-even season of 7-7 was the best that could be expected from a team which had suffered through three losing campaigns. In fact, Marchibroda admitted as much.

"I thought we had maybe a .500 team, but I never envisioned anything like this happening," he acknowledged after the Colts locked up the division title.

Five weeks into the season, it appeared even .500 was too much to ask. The Colts won only one of five games and were tied with New England, last in the division.

Then they proceeded to run off nine straight victories. One of the crucial ones was a 42-35 triumph over Buffalo, in which the Colts wiped out a 21-point lead by the Bills. And two others were even more critical, a pair of come-from-behind victories over the Miami Dolphins that wound up deciding the title chase.

Not until the Colts were defeated 28-10 by Pittsburgh in the first round of the playoffs did the bubble burst.

Of the pressure-cooker life he and his men led through the long comeback season, Marchibroda said: "If you have character, I don't think the pressure bothers you that much."

Norton wins at will

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Ken Norton said he could have stoped Pedro Lovell in the first round but he saw no reason for doing it.

"I wasn't even applying pressure in the first round," said Norton after stopping Lovell in the fifth round Saturday of their scheduled 12-round bout. "I needed the work and didn't want to apply pressure too soon. What sense would it be to take him out in the first round.

"I hadn't boxed since August, so I thought I'd just see what pressure he put on me."

Norton said he got just what he expected from Lovell, no pressure whatever, and decided he would try to put him away in the fourth round. Norton almst did, staggering Lovell and finally stopping him at 1:40 of the fifth.

Norton says he is now looking ahead to a possible July 4 heavyweight championship fight with Muhammad Ali, with whom he has split two previous 12-round decisions before Ali regained the title.

"As soon as they put the contract down on my desk, I'm signing," Norton said. "I've hired two people to keep the doors to the bank open."

Fighting at 220 pounds—his heaviest ever and 12 more than his opponent from Argentina— Norton said he felt strong but a little sluggish. Against Ali, Norton said he would likely fight at around 210.

"I felt good at 220 all week and didn't see any reason to go lower," Norton said. "But for Ali, it's a different story. I'll be going 15 rounds and Ali is a 20 times better fighter than Lovell."

Lovell was in a philosophical mood after his defeat, saying "You can beat the fighter but never the man."

Norton, 30, one of only two men ever to defeat Ali, set up Lovell with a series of lefts and rights to the head, and referee Ferd Hernandez stopped the nationally televised fight at 1:40 of the fifth round after a smashing right to the head buckled Lovell's legs and caused him to turn his back on Norton.

Lovell held his own in the first three rounds, scoring well with a left jab and sending home an occasional hard right.

Then Norton, pushing his career record to 35-3, almost took Lovell out in the fourth round. He staggered his opponent with a left uppercut to the chin in a neutral corner, and then pushed Lovell to the center of the ring, continuing to land shots to the head. As the bell sounded to end the round, Lovell walked slowly back to his corner.

In the fifth round, Lovell's speed seemed gone as Norton quickly resumed his relentless attack. Lovell's record slipped to 16-2-1. Norton, fighting at 220—his heaviest ever and 12 more pounds than Lovell—keeps alive a tentative July 4 title shot against Ali.

Don King, promotor for Ali's fights, said prior to the bout that Norton would be Ali's next major opponent—after Jean Pierre Coopman Feb. 20 in Puerto Rico—with a fight tentatively planned for July 4 in New York, Washington, D.C, or Philadelphia. However, Ali probably will fight someone like Henry Clark between his match with Coopman and the time he fights Norton.

King said Norton had the advantage as Ali's next "bigfight" opponent over former champion George Foreman because Norton has been more active and has fought well against Ali twice before.

Norton defeated Ali in 1973, taking a 12-round decision and breakimg Ali's jaw. However, he lost a split decision to Ali later in the year.

Norton picked up $100,000 for the fight. Lovell had been guaranteed $50,000.

The bout was televised live on CBS television but only about 1,000 people showed up at the Las Vegas Convention Center.

Aztecs schedule Cosmos

LOS ANGELES — Pele, soccer's world famous super star, will lead the New York Cosmos against the Los Angeles Aztecs on Sunday, April 11 at the L.A. Memorial Coliseum in a special prelude to the 1976 season.

Last year the Aztec's game against Pele and the Cosmos was a sellout 72 hours prior to the match at El Camino College Stadium, which has a capacity of 12,200.

"But because of the special nature of this pre-season game we are scheduling it at the Coliseum to give an opportunity to all Southern California soccer fans to see this great player in action," said Chaffetz.

Chaffetz also announced that the Aztecs will return to El Camino College Stadium to play their 1976 North American Soccer League 12-game regular season schedule.

American Bowl won by North

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Veteran South head Coach Ralph "Shug" Jordan ended almost a half century of coaching football with a disappointing 21-14 loss to the North Saturday in the eighth annual American Bowl.

"It would have been nice to have won the last game," said Jordan, who retired from Auburn at the end of 1975. "But when you've been involved in a lifetime of football, you lose your perspective if you count on that too heavily.

"I feel that in my 43 years of coaching, at one time or another, we've accomplished everything there is," he added. "There comes a time to quit, and this is it."

The South was hampered by six turnovers, five of them interceptions.

"The turnovers were the big difference in this game," said Doug Barfield, Jordan's successor at Auburn and offensive coordinator for the South. "It's easy to go back and pick out things when you lose. When you win, it doesn't make any difference."

Barfield's counterpart for the North, Bobby Bowden of West Virginia Tech, agreed.

"Their turnovers made the difference," Bowden said. "The North's offensive line was the big question mark. We didn't know if it was big enough to handle the South's defense."

A pair of talented quarterbacks, Mike Kruczek of Boston and Charles Baggett of Michigan, teamed up to give the North a 6-2 lead in the post-season series before a crowd of 15,321.

The South opened the scoring with 40 seconds left in the first quarter when Tulsa's Jeb Blount connected on a 14-yard pass with running back Wille Collins of Bethune-Cookman to cap a 62-yard, eight-play drive. The conversion attempt failed.

The North bounced back in the second quarter to take a 146 halftime lead, scoring twice following a fumble recovery and a pass interception.

The first tally came after Washington linebacker Paul Strohmeier snatched up a fumble by Collins. The North marched 51 yards to score on a four-yard pass play from Kruczek to Sherman Smith, a Miami of Ohio, wide receiver who was deep in the end zone. Illinois' Ronnie Perrin's kick put the Yanks ahead 7-6.

Buckley tops Roth

ALAMEDA, Calif. (AP) — Roy Buckley of Columbus, Ohio, won the $7,500 first prize Saturday in the $65,000 Alameda Open Bowling Tournament.

Buckley, 32, won his fourth Professional Bowlers Association title by defeating top seeded Mark Roth of Staten Island, N.Y., 243-222 in the championship game.

Buckley jumped to an early lead but Roth pulled ahead with two runs of three strikes each, separated by a spare. Roth spared and struck in the 10th frame for 222, forcing Buckley to strike on his first ball.

He got two to close out a string of six, then picked up eight pins on his final ball for 243.

Roth received $4,000 for second place.

Butch Soper of Huntington Beach, Calif., was third, Gary Dickinson of Ft. Worth, Tex., was fourth and Jay Robinson of Los Angeles finished fifth.

LL meeting set Monday

The Northwest Little League will hold a special meeting Monday night at 7:30 p.m. at Kennedy Park Community Center.

Purpose is to elect a board of directors for the 1976 season. A poor turnout might mean the end of the league. Anyone interested in seeing the league continue operation is urged to attend.

World Series idea catches on

JOHNNY MILLER has won 15 tournaments on the PGA Tour in seven years and Tom Watson has won two, plus the 1975 British Open, in four years. Yet both sound like rookies when they talk about the newly-expanded World Series of Golf.

"I'm very happy about the changed format," said Watson, who won the 1975 World Series when it was a four-player battle over 36 holes. The new World Series will bring some 30 of the year's hottest-playing golfers together for a 72-hole championship set for the South course of Firestone Country Club, Akron, Ohio, Sept. 2-5.

Watson said, "Now the championship will truly be a World Series because the total world is involved. All the professional golf circuits will be represented, as well as the winners of many national championships and the best from the American tour."

Going into the NBC Tucson Open, the Winter Tour point standings are: 1. Don January, 121.25, 2. Jack Nicklaus, 117; 3. Hubert Green, 100; 4. Dave Hill, 100; 5. Johnny Miller, 100; 6. Billy Casper, 57; 7. Rod Curl, 57; 8. Larry Hinson, 57; 9. Rik Massengale, 57; 10. John Schroeder, 57.

Points are awarded to the first 10 finishers in each PGA Tour event. First place is worth 100 points; second 57; third 36; fourth 22; fifth 19; sixth 17; seventh 15; eighth 13; ninth 11 and tenth 10.

The Spring Tour will start with the Doral-Eastern Open, March 11, and will continue through the Kemper Open, starting June 13. The Summer Tour starts with the U.S. Open, June 17, and concludes with the American Golf Classic which will be played the week before the World Series of Golf.

Winners of the seasonal championships, if not otherwise exempt, will gain a place in the World Series field. If they are otherwise eligible, their places will go to the highest leading point winner who is not eligible.

FOUR PLAYERS from the PGA Tour have placed their stamps of approval on changes made to the East Course of the Inverrary Country Club specifically for the 1976 Tournament Players Championship which opens on the South Florida site Feb. 25.

Bob Murphy, Raymond Floyd, Ed Sneed and David Graham, all neighbors of the Lauderhill, Fla., club joined three amateurs in a "test round" during the recent holiday season. The amateurs were Jackie Gleason, Inverrary's No. 1 amateur and host to the TPC; Jack Tuthill, PGA Tournament Director; and, Frank Tutera, PGA Planning and Projects Coordinator.

"The course is tougher than it was when I won here," said Murphy, referring to his victory in the 1975 Jackie Gleason Inverrary Classic. "The changes have toughened several holes. I know that the guy who wins the Tournament Players Championship will have earned the title."

Alterations were made to 14 holes since the last Gleason tournament. The modifications include the extension and changing of several tees. Ten fairways were widened and the landing areas improved. Several greens were changed; some are now smaller and others larger than before. Mounds for spectators have been created in back of several greens.

SIX OF THE BEST third basemen in baseball, including National League batting champion Bill Madlock of the Chicago Cubs, will compete in the 10th annual American Airlines Golf Classic Jan. 30-Feb. 1 at the Canyon Hotel Racquet & Golf Club.

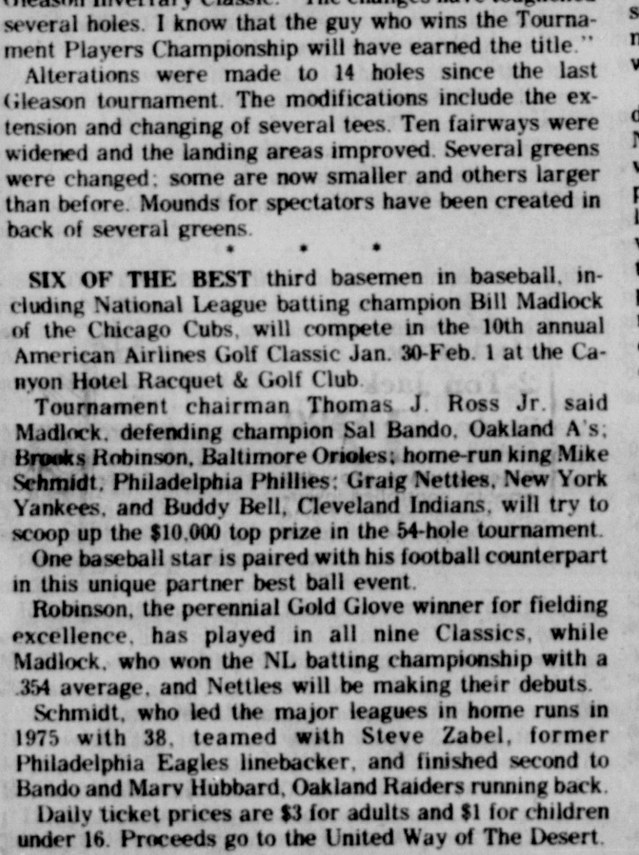

Tournament chairman Thomas J. Ross Jr. said Madlock, defending champion Sal Bando, Oakland A's; Brooks Robinson, Baltimore Orioles; home-run king Mike Schmidt, Philadelphia Phillies; Graig Nettles, New York Yankees, and Buddy Bell, Cleveland Indians, will try to scoop up the $10,000 top prize in the 54-hole tournament.

One baseball star is paired with his football counterpart in this unique partner best ball event.

Robinson, the perennial Gold Glove winner for fielding excellence, has played in all nine Classics, while Madlock, who won the NL batting championship with a .354 average, and Nettles will be making their debuts.

Schmidt, who led the major leagues in home runs in 1975 with 38, teamed with Steve Zabel, former Philadelphia Eagles linebacker, and finished second to Bando and Marv Hubbard, Oakland Raiders running back.

Daily ticket prices are $3 for adults and $1 for children under 16. Proceeds go to the United Way of The Desert.

NCAA tries to solve economic problems

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Faced with repeated threats of withdrawal, including some from big-time football schools, the National Collegiate Athletic Association holds a crucial annual meeting this week. It is actually two conventions in one, but the theme in both is economics.

One likely result will be formation of a super-conference of about 75 schools, which will pretty much spend what they want on football.

First, the hundreds of delegates will hold the NCAA's third special convention to consider 79 proposals left over from last August's special convention on economy. Then they will consider 224 pieces of legislation submitted for the 70th annual convention—and that doesn't include scores of amendments.

Among the controversial proposals to be considered are establishment of the super division of big-time football schools, a national championship major college football playoff, sharing of football television receipts among all NCAA members, athletic scholarships based only on the recipient's need of one and personnel and squad size limitations.

The special convention is scheduled for Wednesday afternoon. The annual convention is set to begin Thursday afternoon and end Saturday, although it will get under way Thursday morning if the special convention completes its work on Wednesday.

The policy-making NCAA Council, the Executive Committee, associated groups and conferences and other NCAA committees began meeting late last week. The American Football Coaches Association also holds its annual convention this week, climaxed by the Coach of the Year dinner Thursday night.

"We are faced with a monumental task to complete the business before us," said John A. Fuzak of Michigan State University, president of the NCAA. "We are faced with many challenging matters important to the future of intercollegiate athletics."

Noting that it has become increasingly popular to bring suit against the NCAA, Coach Barry Switzer of Oklahoma's two-time national football champions said that if proposals such as financial aid based on need and sharing the TV wealth among all schools pass, "There won't be any need to go to court because 70 or so schools won't be in the NCAA any longer.

"No one wants to withdraw. We just want some form of reorganization. But if certain proposals pass, without question some schools will withdraw.

"Look at the things that happened last year. For instance, they legislated how many assistant coaches you can have. Four or five years ago we didn't care how many coaches Texas or Nebraska had; we just knew how many Oklahoma needed. And the squad limitations...it costs us $600 a game to sit the players we can't dress up in the stands."

The financial need proposal is the first one on the agenda for the regular convention. A resolution establishing a committee to develop a plan for athletic scholarships based on need was adopted at the special convention in Chicago last August.

The committee's proposal establishes a procedure for awarding financial assistance to a student-athlete beyond tuition and mandatory fees—which would not be based on need—according to his family's ability to pay for his education.

A significant revenue-producing proposal is the major college football championship playoff. Coach Joe Paterno of Penn State has estimated it could command a $20 million television package in addition to the regular-season $18 million TV series.

The NCAA currently administers postseason football championships in Divisions II and III. Football is the only sport which does not have an official Division I championship playoff.

The NCAA's Division I Football Championship Feasibility Committee, headed by Temple athletic director Ernie Casale, proposed a four-team post-bowl playoff to the NCAA Council. The Council voted to submit plans for a two-team playoff as well and requested the Executive Committee to develop details for both. That information will be made available to the delegates here.

Neither plan would affect the administration of any bowl games. A number of major conferences oppose the basic idea of a football championship, especially at the expense of the lucrative bowls.

Besides the threats of withdrawal from major football institutions, the IC4A, the major Eastern college track group, has asked its schools to withdraw if the NCAA limits the size of track squads and the number of meets a team may enter during the winter and spring seasons.

When the 1974 college football season ended, Oklahoma led in consecutive wins with 20. The streak began after a 1973 tie at 77 with Southern Cal.

Finley jockeys for position with Veeck

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I'm in a tough division now that I have Bill Veeck to cope with," says Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley. "I can't be out-Veecked."

And so Finley supposedly is offering to hire champion jockey Laffit Pincay to play second base for his A's.

For those who don't recall, Veeck, who recently bought the Chicago White Sox, is a pastmaster at baseball stunts.

"Can you picture what I would have with Pincay at second base?" enthused Finley.

"On opening day, I would have the world's greatest jockey riding the world's greatest mule into the ball park."

This tale is related by columnist Melvin Durslag in the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner. There's even a photograph of Pincay in an A's uniform and oversized cowboy hat. He's holding a bat somewhat awkwardly in a semi-bunting stance.

It all reportedly began at a dinner here recently hostessed by Marjorie Everett, principal owner of Hollywood Park who has expressed interest in buying the A's from Finley.

Pincay casually mentioned to Finley he was an all-star baseball player as a teen-ager growing up in Panama and once dreamed of playing in the major leagues. The A's owner asked him what position he played.

When Pincay said second base, Finley inquired:

"Do you think you could still play it?"

Pincay responded, "I could with a little practice."

And so, it goes, Finley sent Pincay an A's uniform, a dozen of his range baseballs, a couple of bats and instructions to get in shape.

According to the yarn, Pincay is supposed to zip down to Arizona during spring training to work with the A's the two days each week he has off from Santa Anita and Finley has promised to start him against the California Angels in an exhibition game at Palm Springs.

For those who doubt the sincerity of all this, Pincay makes an estimated $400,000 a year riding — and winning. And star A's outfielder Reggie Jackson can't budge his boss to pay him anywhere near half that amount.

But spring training is only a couple of months away and it's time for the baseball birds to unlimber their wings.

'Green Machine' is just 18

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — Sean O'Grady can't go out for sports like other athletic seniors at Northwest Classen High. He's already turned pro— pro boxer, that is.

A year ago Sean, now 18, became the youngest bantamweight professional. Now 27 consecutive victories later, he's ranked ninth in the world by the World Boxing Association and looking for the championship.

He's set for his first big-money fight, against Danny Lopez in Los Angeles Feb. 25, with a guarantee of $5,000 and a chance at a gate percentage that could mean $25,000.

The take-home pay from that will go a long way toward medical school, and that's been his goal since the age of four. But now it's possible he'll be a champion prizefighter before he's a doctor.

The boy's handsome face hasn't a mark on it. He has never known defeat in the ring. He won all 17 amateur matches, 10 of them by knockout, and as a pro he has knocked out 23 of his 27 opponents.

Most of his matches have been set up by his father, Pat, a leading boxing promotor in Oklahoma, a state much less enthusiastic about prizefighting than it is about college football.

Because of the lack of Oklahoma support for boxing, Sean probably is better known in Omaha, Neb., site of his next fight Jan. 22, which may whip up more local interest than his Jan. 20 bout here.

His opponents later this month have yet to be named, but it's the Lopez fight that's most on Sean's mind now.

He'll be giving Lopez, a featherweight, more than five pounds, but at 69 inches Sean has the reach advantage.

He calls himself the Green Machine, and in green trunks he carries through the Irish motif. He drives a green car and gets one of his two sisters to keep him company running around the high school track— the one named Rosie O'Grady. The other sister is named Colleen.

Sean's home from school earlier than most of his schoolmates, because he gets an hour's academic credit in physical education for the time he's keeping his body ring-ready.

That conditioning schedule gets him up at 6:30 every morning for running around the track and calisthenics. Then after school he goes to his father's gym for shadow boxing and sparring with partners.

He's ready for the question of whether his father has lined Sean up with a string of weak opponents so as to build an impressive win record.

"You can do that once or twice but sooner or later you're going to have to meet somebody. He wouldn't do that to me. He wants me to be champion as much as I want to be champion," says Sean.

And Pat is ready for the question whether his son risks injury in the ring:

"I just tell them there's risk of injury in any sport, and there's a lot of things a boy could be doing, like taking dope or running the streets at night. At 10 p.m., Sean's at home in bed. He's worn out from training," says Pat O'Grady.

GREEN MACHINE — Sean O'Grady, 18, goes by that nickname in the ring. The bantamweight Irishman is ranked ninth in world.

Palmer won't give up

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Arnold Palmer was discouraged and disappointed. Those emotions have been his familiar, constant, nagging companions for the last three years, as common and unshakable to the aging master as a sleeve-tugging drunk.

He sat slumped on a bench in the locker room, his massive shoulders hunched and bowed, his gray, thinning hair falling in disarray over his lowered face. It was a scene that has become painfully repititious over the last three seasons.

Not so familiar, however, was the look of haggard puzzlement, of wonder and pain and disbelief. "Dammit," he said, pounding a big, clenched fist on a bench. "If I played bad all the time I'd quit."

He'd just played his first competitive round of the year, a five-over-par 77 that included four three-putts and not a single birdie.

"It's not embarassing," said the man who was once king of this game. "It's just damn awful is what it is.

"I came out here playing good. I wouldn't have come if I didn't think I was playing good. But I go out there and my putting is awful and I don't get the ball close to the hole and I don't make a birdie and it was just awful.

"If I played bad all the time, I'd quit," he said again. "But I work on it and I start getting my game where I want it. I start getting it where I think I can do something with it, where I've got something to work with, and then I come out and it just all goes to hell.

"But I keep getting it close enough so that I think I can still do it. I'm gonna try it another half dozen tournaments and then we'll just see."

That doesn't mean he's entertaining ideas of quitting the game he, more than any man, raised to its current high popularity. It means that if he can't get it going, he may curtail his playing schedule.

"If I don't start playing decently, I may not play but about a half-dozen before the Masters," he said.

But he'll definitely play there, in the familiar gathering place of golf's spring rites where so much of the Palmer legend has been built and nourished.

"Over the last few years, I've played my best golf in the Masters and the (U.S.) Open. That's what keeps me going. That and the hopes of winning another one or two majors."

But it's little more than that, a glimmering hope, a search that so far has been unsuccessful in his rummage through the lengthening past for the magic.

Palmer—now 46, thicker in the waist, thinner in the hair and long since surrendered to the middle-age need for eyeglasses—hasn't won a major title since the 1964 Masters. He hasn't won at all in this country in three years and has only one American title in five years.

"I still want to play," he said. "I still think I can play.

"I like the competition. I like the life. I wouldn't still be playing at all if I didn't think I could win. I think this life and the competition help keep me young.

Top cartoons published by New Yorker

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN
PB Staff Writer

THE NEW YORKER ALBUM OF DRAWINGS, 1925-1975. Viking Press. $15.

"Well, back to the old drawing board."

"My man don't wrestle till we hear it talk."

"Oh, it's you! For a moment you gave me quite a start."

"All right, have it your way—you heard a seal bark!"

Any long-time reader of the New Yorker will immediately recognize these as captions of some of the classic cartoons that have brought laughter to several generations of Americans.

Remember "Hey, Jack, which way to Mecca?" And "Watch out, Fred! Here it comes again!" Or "Can they really make a Yale man a private?" Or "Well, if I called the wrong number, why did you answer the phone?" And "Come along. We're going to the Trans-Lux and hiss Roosevelt!" The list is endless, and for the veteran New Yorker subscriber each conjures up the hilarious cartoon above it. Some can even name the cartoonist.

It would be pointless to tell the cartoons that accompany these captions—nothing is unfunnier than trying to describe a cartoon—but if you're curious or nostalgic, pick up "The New Yorker Album of Drawings, 1925-1975." The LIFE-sized volume contains 500 "comic drawings," as New Yorker calls them, and 5,000 laughs.

Here again are Helen Hokinson's clubwomen in their hysterical hats, John Held Jr.'s woodcuts, O. Soglow's Little King, the lower class families of William Steig and Syd Hoff, the fragile upper crust by Mary Petty, and Barbara Shermund's wonderful ding-a-lings.

The collection, dating from the Coolidge era, takes us through the Depression ("I was in the Big One!"), several wars, television and other man-made disasters, providing the blessed leavening of laughter from stylish Rea Irvin, Peter Arno, Chon Day, James Thurber, Robert Day, Alice Harvey (I'm only naming my favorites) Mischa Dichter, Gardiner Rea, Whitney Darrow Jr., Robert Taylor, Alan Dunn and dozens of others.

Here are Charles Addams' riotous gallery of weirdos and his mind-boggling situations—not really sick, but outrageous — and George Price's wonderfully hilarious people doing incredible things. And well-represented are my two absolute favorites, Gluyas Williams, a keen observer of human foibles, a man who draws hands and faces with the skill of a Dutch master and depicts character as shrewdly as Chaucer; and artist-journalist Saul Steinberg doing imaginative renditions in his clean, tangy style, funny, wry, and intuitive. His "comic drawings," more than any of the others, make the observer pause and think.

The New Yorker album clearly shows that the Golden Age of Cartooning has passed—the first part of the book, even discounting nostalgia and familiarity, is infinitely richer than the latter half. The work of recent years shows uneven talent, less insight, overly sophisticated humor.

My favorites among the "newcomers" to the New Yorker stable are Frank Modell, William Hamilton, whimsical Tom Smits and Edward Koren, with his delightful shaggy people and bestiary.

"The New Yorker Album of Drawings" will provide oldtime readers with hours of reminiscent chuckles and afford newcomers the wealth of a newly discovered kingdom of mirth.

Writer's yearbook out

WRITER'S MARKET, 76. Edited by Jane Koester and Rose Adkins. Writer's Digest, $12.50.

The fattest edition of Writer's Market, in all its 47 years, is out.

In this new edition, 5,000 editors tell what they want to buy, how much money they will pay per word, or per article or story, and most importantly, they describe their company's editorial requirements.

Writer's Market covers every markets that pays for material regardless of its editorial policy. These markets include such old standbys as Atlantic Monthly (they pay $100 a page for material, and new writers will be glad to learn that Atlantic specializes in publishing fiction "First"); National Enquirer, whose circulation has grown to three million since they dropped off-color headlines, says: "We'll bid against any other magazine for once-in-a-lifetime photos." Among the general interest publications, Reader's Digest pays $300 for fillers of only 200 words for the Life In These United States Department.

Writer's Market is a pretty thick book: 976 pages. The 5,000 markets are divided into categories, and it requires four pages just to list them. Among the categories of markets that buy fiction, non-fiction, fillers and features are magazines on the subjects of gambling, young people, puzzles, religion, poetry, sports, science fiction, hobbies, child care and gardening.

Most of the markets are the king the average person may never have heard of: Berkeley Bard, Earth's Daughters, Jim's Journal, Lune, Northwest Passage, and The Second Wave are from one category called Alternate (or, as sometimes known, counter culture magazines).

Put it all together and it's quite a reference for freelance writers who want to write for pay.

Another amazing career

Byrons gave more than poet

By WILLISTON WIRT

BYRON OF THE WAGER, by Peter Shankland, Coward, McCann, and Geoghagan, $8.95.

(Williston Wirt is a staff member of the Pomona Public Library.)

Midshipman John Byron, second son of the fourth Lord Byron, became grandfather of the famous English poet, Lord Byron. In this book, his own amazing career is related, and beyond any argument it is a true adventure which, if it were fiction, would be incredible.

In 1740, it was not unusual for a titled son to volunteer for a Naval career. It was John Byron's fortune to be assigned as a junior officer on the Wager, one of the gunboats in a large squadron commanded by Admiral Anson. Their purpose was to sail around Cape Horn and capture Spanish treasure ships and raid Spanish settlements on the Pacific coast.

Sailing late in the year, their squadron came to grief while attempting to round Cape Horn. The Wager was wrecked on the lower slopes of Tierra Del Fuego, and the survivors found themselves on a bleak and barren sea island. The soldiers on board the gunboat, not under the command of the ship's captain, formed a separate clique. The captain himself, ill and incapacitated, lacked control. It was not a promising situation, and the author spares no detail.

To reach civilization meant constructing small boats from the Wager's timbers. But which way would they sail—north or south? One group backed the captain (Byron was among them) and they decided to head north. The other group, headed by a gunner named Bulkeley, was for heading south. They knew they would face charges as mutineers if they showed up in England.

The story of the sufferings and hardships endured on their island is an epic one. One is reminded of that other true story, "Mutiny on the Bounty," and its harrowing sequence on Pitcairn Island. For, of course, this is not fiction. This is what makes the book so absorbing. It really happend.

The outcome is equally enthralling. Both groups finally sail away, although their numbers are greatly diminished from hunger and exposure. The captain's group reached Valparaiso, and found a friendly French ship. Bulkeley's group made it through the Straits of Magellan. Both groups finally got back to England.

For those who savor adventure stories, this is a great one. For those who prefer true accounts rather than a novelist's imaginings, this is for you. And for those who enjoy history and genealogy, here is a vivid description of the ancestor of that future Lord Byron, the famous poet.

A little further research will reveal that Midshipman Byron had a distinguished career following his escape from the wreck of the Wager. He became an admiral and later (1744-1746) sailed a squadron all around the globe. Still later, he became governor of Newfoundland. One can only marvel at the true account he could summon up if ever he was petitioned by his small grandson, "Grandpa, tell me a story!"

De Gaulle succeeds Louis XIV in comedy

By RALPH BOBB

THE MISANTHROPE by Moliere, adapted by Tony Harrison. The Third Press, $2.95.

(Ralph Bobb is professor of English at Cal Poly, Pomona)

In adapting for the National Theatre Company Moliere's high comedy "Le Misanthrope," first performed in 1666, the English poet Tony Harrison has imaginatively, and effectively, shifted the setting from the reign of Louis XIV to that of Charles de Gaulle, "circa 1966."

Now Alceste wears not green ribbons, but in his disheveled way, an apparent dinner jacket of green velvet; the Lully he feeds his melancholy on is hi-fi. Harrison's perky rimed couplets — one hesitates to call them "heroic" — are colloquial, specific, foaming with topical references — in short, scarcely in the neo-classicial mode of the original, yet somehow plausibly transposing it.

For instance, responding to Alceste's dismal invitation to retreat with him to a wilderness, Moliere's Celimene protests that "La solitude effraye une ame de vingt ans."

The concise generalization, with its theological remnant, has vanished in Harrison's contemporary

"I'm only twenty!
I'd be terrified!
Just you and me, and all that countryside!

but the transposition is admirably executed.

In a passage assigned to Celimene's cousin, Eliante, Harrison seems to have returned to Moliere's original Lucretius, perhaps with some hints from the W.H.D. Rouse translation. A single couplet suggests the new key: "the girl whose face is pinched and deathly white 's not plain anaemic, she's 'pre-Raphaelite.'"

We await Harrison's brand-new version of Racine's "Phedre," reset, we learn, not without disquiet, among the British governors of 19th Century India.

Meanwhile, the generous offerings of photographs of the Old Vic production of "The Misanthrope" makes us wish that Alec McCowen and Diana Rigg would bring their Fifth Republic melancholaic and coquette to Los Angeles.

Market roars ahead in buying surge

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market roared ahead this past week in a surge of buying that produced the second-busiest week in New York Stock Exchange history.

Prices posted their biggest weekly gain since the fall of 1974 with encouragement from signs of slackening inflationary pressures and falling interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, rising in all five sessions, piled up a 52.42 gain to 911.13. It was the largest advance for the average since it took a record 73.61 jump from Oct. 7 through 11, 1974.

Nearly 9 out of every 10 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange rose in price, including all 25 of the most active stocks.

The final tally showed 1,807 gainers and only 165 losers among the 2,072 issues changing hands.

Turnover on the Big Board came to 141.94 million shares, falling just short of the record of 145.68 million set late last January.

The activity reached a peak on Wednesday when 33.17 million shares were traded for the third largest daily total on record.

At first there seemed to be little hard news behind the upsurge. There were, as of Monday, continued bright sales reports coming in from the nation's retailers and auto manufacturers.

But uptrends in both industries had been in the making for several weeks.

What appeared to happen, analysts said, was a shift in psychology that started with a few investors buying, producing gains that attracted more investors who had been waiting restlessly for a sign of which way the market was headed after six months of inconclusive fluctuations.

As often seems to happen in the market, once a trend was established the economic news fell into line to support that trend.

On Tuesday, the Federal Reserve made a move in the money markets which credit experts said confirmed that it had decided to relax its credit policy further.

That conjured up visions of lower interest rates in the financial community — and it didn't have long to wait.

Cleveland Trust on Wednesday lowered its prime lending rate from 7¼ to 7 per cent. By Friday most of the nation's major banks had matched that reduction.

And analysts were predicting a further decline to 6¾ or even lower in the basic charge on corporate loans.

The government, meanwhile, reported that its wholesale price index had fallen 0.4 per cent in December, after adjustment for seasonal influences.

The index wound up 1975 with a net rise of 4.2 per cent — a distinct drop from the 20.9 per cent jump it registered the previous year.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index climbed 4.05 to 94.95, and the NYSE's composite index rose 2.25 to 50.29.

Both the Dow and the NYSE index passed milestones — the Dow closing above 900 for the first time since November 1973, and the NYSE holding above 50 for the first time since last July.

In all, 352 Big Board issues reached new 1975-76 highs, against just six new lows.

One of the biggest gains of the week was posted by Aztec Oil & Gas, which shot up 9⅛ to 24¾. Mesa Petroleum offered $22 a share for the company's stock, and Aztec opposed the offer as inadequate.

Texaco topped the active list on the NYSE, up 1⅜ at 25¼.

Among big-name blue chips, General Motors gained 2⅜ to 60¾; American Telephone rose 1⅛ to 52; General Electric added 4 to 50⅝, and U.S. Steel picked up 5⅝ to 71.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 4.51 at 88.82.

When is the right time to buy land?

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Is it a mistake to put the entire savings into land until you can afford to build a house, even though it may be years away?

That question asked by a young couple gets a variety of answers from people who have bought land on a similar basis.

But they agree that the answer depends entirely on why you want the land now and when you can afford to build the house.

If land is a good investment and can be unloaded easily if you decide not to build, fine.

If it was a bargain and gives satisfactory meanwhile use — camping, bird watching or whatever or if it is in a location that you must be in where land is scarce — why not.

If you can afford to build on it within a reasonable time, great.

Those are good reasons to buy the land, but there are a lot of drawbacks to owning it if it is just bought to hold until you can afford to build many years from now, even if the taxes are low, these knowledgeable people point out.

For one thing, it is expensive to build a house even if you do it yourself. In an inflationary period how long would it take to raise the money for the house?

Land is often bought because it is cheap and has conservation-appeal but young people forget they are going to use it as a house site, too. Then they perhaps need to remove trees, build a road, connect electricity and so on. The land may be in a remote area with a beautiful view, uncontaminated air, pure water. But to get your money's worth, a house may be needed.

A swamp, marsh or pond may be an environmental asset attracting birds, waterfowl, little animals, but the big consideration must be: is there a good site for the house? If it must be placed far from these attractions so that they will not be seen, it may not fulfill the aim of a bucolic view after all.

Towns are eyeing marshes, swamps and other watering spots. Whereas formerly they leveled some of these natural wonders into parking lots, they are now trying to protect them, they say. This means that land purchased for building may be subjected to scrutiny as town fathers decide whether the house and its septic system and so on will be detrimental to that choice environment. What prevails when the land is bought really may be no indication of how a town acts tomorrow. Laws are being enacted every day.

Most people agree, too, that land prices have remained status quo — there are few bargains unless there are some drawbacks. If there is a great deal of acreage the house no doubt will be away from all conveniences, including good rail transportation.

Some young people have made wise investments, holding out for some kind of little house to go with land. One couple managed to get an early dwelling in disrepair. They remodeled it and used it as a meanwhile house. After five years they can afford to build a small house on two other acres of the land and already have a buyer for the old house they've made livable. This is an ideal investment that takes careful planning. They did make some sacrifices, but they had something to build their dreams on and their project was debt-controlled.

If two people have scrimped for a long time to own a home, chances are they will not be satisfied indefinitely owning the land without a house. Then, too, if they find a home they like and wish to abandon the land, they will need to find a buyer, perhaps quickly. It may not be easy.

Lewis Homes offers new 'dazzler' model

Designers hired by Lewis Homes to develop the ideal two story home have labeled it as their "44" plan. But the firm's sales personal call the house the "Dazzler" because of the fascination it holds for buyers.

The plan, with 2,194 square feet of floor space and a three car garage, is featured in new Lewis Homes developments in Upland, Claremont, Alta Loma and La Verne, said Randall W. Lewis, vice president.

"It had been designed for just one of our development sites but when we saw how enthusiastically buyers were taking to it there, we felt compelled to feature it at other locations," he explained.

"The '44' plan makes an instant claim to its right to be known as the dazzler with its intriguing exterior motifs, its two tiers of cedar shake roof sloping down to form a covered porchway, embellished with Mediterranean-like arches."

The first floor has a family room, separate dining room, breakfast nook, luminous ceiling garden kitchen, sunken living room, corner fireplace, separate entry foyer and a powder room.

The upstairs has four large bedrooms and two bathrooms. The master bedroom suite is spacious and features "Mr. and Mrs." wardrobes and dressing room.

The "44" plan is being featured at the Lewis Homes — La Verne development located on Base Line Road east of Wheeler Avenue, in Alta Loma on Carnelian Avenue a half-mile north of 19th Street, and Claremont on Base Line Road a fourth-mile east of Mills Avenue.

PLAN 44 — This is the designation given this two story home constructed by Lewis Homes in developments in Upland, Claremont, Alta Loma and La Verne. It has 2,194 square feet of space.

Overhaul could affect buyers

Home buyers who depend primarily on thrift institutions for their mortgage loans would be severely hurt if proposals to overhaul the nation's financial institutions are enacted into law.

So declared Lawrence B. Simons, a New York homebuilder and chairman of the National Association of Home Builders special committee on housing funds, when he appeared recently before a House of Representatives subcommittee on banking, currency and housing.

The subcommittee is making a study on the Financial Institutions and the Nation's Economy (FINE) study. This is part of a congressional effort to reorganize the nation's banking system.

The senate recently approved the Financial Institutions Act which would expand the short-term lending powers and consumer services of thrift institutions while still directing their activities at real estate investment. Once the FINE study is completed, the House is expected to write its own bill.

Despite the housing slump of the past two years, Simons said the U.S. has become the best housed nation in the world because a separate system of thrift institutions has been maintained for the principal purpose of providing a source of funds for residential mortgages.

For the past 10 years, savings and loan associations and mutual savings banks have accounted for more than 55 per cent of the nation's mortgage loans.

The FINE study, Simons said, proposes even more sweeping changes than the Senate-passed Financial Institutions Act. If the House follows the study's recommendations, the present dual financial system would be abolished and thrift institutions would be turned into commercial banks.

Simons warned that once thrift institutions were given the power to make short term commercial and consumer loans, issue credit cards, service checking accounts, and provide other banking services, as the FINE study proposes, there would be little incentive for savings and loan associations to invest in residential mortgages. Thrift institutions would also lose their preferential tax treatment, he added.

Real estate

Simons also criticized the FINE study for ignoring two other major sources of funds which could, given proper incentives or direction, "help significantly in expanding the availability of residential mortgage credit." He identified these two sources as life insurance companies, which up until 10 years ago played a major role in financing housing, and pension funds, which have taken a severe beating in the stock market in recent years.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — I mount the Polly's Pointers I think will be helpful to me on small recipe cards and hang at eye level in the area they pertain to, such as washday hints in the laundry room. After reading and putting them to use several times, they become good habits. — BEVERLY.

DEAR POLLY — You can make an expandable shoe rack by putting boards on top of bricks placed on your closet floor. — TERESA.

DEAR POLLY — At a recent wedding we used bird seed instead of rice to throw at the bride and groom. No sweeping up, as the birds ate it. — ANNE.

DEAR POLLY — I put shredded wet newspaper on dusty garage and basement floors to keep billowing dust down when sweeping! — LISA.

DEAR POLLY — Never discard men's old crew socks. Cut off the knit tops to the desired length. Use them as pull-on coasters for sweaty glasses. — ONNIE.

DEAR POLLY — When our family goes to a parade or similar outing, we always take along some big plastic garbage bags. If rain comes we poke holes in the bottoms of the bags and slide them over our heads and have no worries about getting wet. No umbrellas along to worry about, either. — JO ELLEN.
(Polly's note — How about some holes to poke the arms through, too.?)

DEAR POLLY — Those who like to start plants from seeds will find that the caps off hair spray and cleaning cans make excellent containers for starting them. — PEGGY.

DEAR POLLY — Wiping the shower stall with a mop-and-shine product is an easy way to clean it. This light coat of wax also seems to retard discoloration of the grout. — DORIS.

DEAR POLLY — An ice chest is excellent to use for transporting plants. Water the plants, place in the chest and close. I have had plants survive a week in the chest with no ill effects, as the chest seems to act as a terrarium. — REBA.

DEAR POLLY — Empty one-gallon plastic milk jugs can be used for many things, but one of my favorites is as a boat anchor. Fill with sand, put top on and tie a rope to the handle. — KEVIN, age 13.

Her Shrink
She'll like wearing this bright shrink in easy-crochet. No. 5666 has crochet directions for sizes 2 to 12 years.

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

SUZANNE SHARPE OF FT. WALTON BEACH, FL, ASKS:

"WHY DOES THE OCEAN LOOK BLUE ?"

SEAWATER IS REALLY COLORLESS. BUT WHEN SUNLIGHT FALLS ON THE OCEAN, WHERE THE WATER IS DEEP AND CLEAR, ONLY THE BLUE RAYS OF SUNLIGHT ARE REFLECTED AND THE OCEAN LOOKS BLUE. THE OCEAN MAY NOT ALWAYS LOOK BLUE. IT MAY REFLECT THE COLOR OF A STORMY SKY AND LOOK GRAY INSTEAD. SOMETIMES BILLIONS OF TINY OCEAN LIFE CALLED PLANKTON HAVE GROWN IN THE WATER AND THE OCEAN MAY SHOW SUCH COLORS AS GREENS, REDS AND BROWNS.

DINA OUSLEY: ACTRESS & HAIRDRESSER — BUT ALWAYS HERSELF

Even at her young age, Dina (pronounced as "Dinah") Ousley is pursuing a second career as a police detective's daughter in Bronk, the new one-hour action drama on CBS, Sundays at 10PM.

The diminutive (5'2") blonde from Texas juggles a tight schedule between her days of acting as the recovering invalid daughter to Bronk star Jack Palance and acting as hairdresser to famous Hollywood heads including Robert Blake, Helen Reddy and Herb Alpert.

"I love having two careers," Dina says with characteristic good-natured simplicity, "because I love to keep busy. While I'm studying acting and aiming for a full-time career, being a hairdresser also helps me keep things in perspective — and pay for the acting lessons."

In Bronk, Dina's character of Ellen Bronkov was injured in an automobile accident that also widowed the detective. "Bronk's relationship with Ellen shows a facet of the man apart from his career," Dina explains, "and there is a great deal of caring and tenderness between them. It's a wonderful side of Jack (Palance) that people have not seen much of in his other roles."

"Although I've been studying acting for several years," Dina continues, "this is my best role so far. No matter how much success I might have as an actress, though, I don't want my life to change," she reflects seriously. "I want to feel free to be myself — whether as an actress or a hairdresser."

GEORGE PEPPARD: HE LEARNED EARLY

With an operatta singer-teacher for a mother, George Peppard — who stars as Dr. Jake Goodwin in NBC's Doctors Hospital — heard about show business early in life. However, he entered Purdue University to major in civil engineering, planning to join his father's construction business.

While at Purdue, he discovered he was interested in the theatre. He wrote sketches and performed in plays at the Purdue Playshop, then transferred to Carnegie Institute of Technology where he earned a degree in fine arts. While at Carnegie, he worked as a disk jockey and station engineer for a radio station in Braddock, Pa. He earned a living by teaching foils, sabre, and epee and earned dramatic experience in Shakespearean plays and Greek dramas. He acted in two productions at the Pittsburgh Playhouse. One was "The Crucible," in which he had the leading role.

After two seasons at the Oregon Shakespearean Festival at Ashland, in 1951 and 1952, he headed for New York. He remembers that he was so confident of immediate success on Broadway that he demanded an unlisted telephone number. Nobody called for a long time.

He entered the Actors Studio, and studied with Lee Strasberg for three years while he worked at various jobs including Wall Street bank clerk, motorcycle shop cleanup man, and cab driver.

He was a cab driver only one night when he was offered a role in television's "Lamp Unto My Feet." He never drove a cab again although he had spent a year working to obtain the hack license.

Then he got a part in the film, "The Strange One," made in Florida. After that, he appeared in the Broadway comedy, "The Girls of Summer," and in increasingly important roles in New York television dramas.

'BONNIE' BUDDY EBSEN ADOPTS SCOTLAND

Not one drop of Scottish blood flows in the Nordic veins of Christian Rudolf "Buddy" Ebsen, but the soft-spoken former dancer perhaps ranks as Hollywood's foremost historical authority on the colorful folk of the land of lochs, moors and glens.

It was several summers ago, while on a European trip with his family, that the star of "Barnaby Jones," broadcast Thursday (10:00-11:00PM) on the CBS Television Network, became enamored of the history of Scotland, especially the 16th Century period that embraced the brief but stormy reign of Mary Stuart, "Mary, Queen of Scots."

Already a history buff whose attention had been principally drawn to the American Civil War period, Ebsen found in the Scots, "an interesting people who were strong, active, colorful and violent."

While doing research on Mary Stuart, across Scotland, Ebsen encountered an historian, Robert Kemp, then professor of history at Aberdeen University.

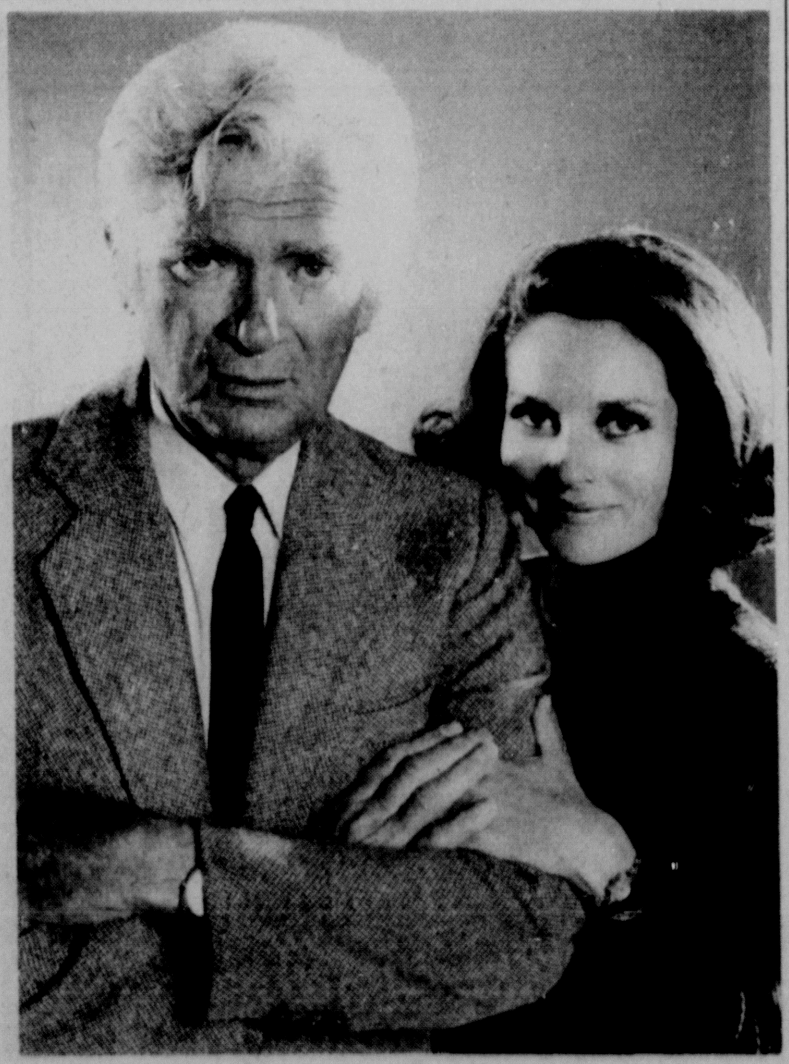

It was their friendship that led to the establishment of an academic prize at the University for "meritorious writing about Scottish history" by a student of that major.

Kemp had been kind enough to write a column for a Glasgow newspaper in which he "doubted that anyone in Hollywood owns as extensive a collection concerning Scottish peerage as Mr. Ebsen does."

After Professor Kemp's death, the Kemp Memorial Prize was established; it is presented in the name of the Ebsen-Wolcott Family Foundation only when a student is deemed worthy of the award. Wolcott is the maiden name of the actor's wife, Nancy.

Only recently, Ebsen received a letter from the latest recipient of the Kemp Memorial Prize, a student named R. Angus.

In his letter, the appreciative Mr. Angus pointed out the advantages accruing from his American benefactors: "It gives those students, like myself, who intend to pursue academic studies at a professional level, a chance of devoting time to academic work which otherwise would have to be spent on remunerative employment."

COVER CLOSE-UP

'ELEANOR & FRANKLIN'

"Eleanor and Franklin," a special two-part four-hour presentation about the private lives of Eleanor and Franklin D. Roosevelt, starring Jane Alexander and Edward Herrmann in the title roles, airs in two segments Sunday (Jan. 11) 9 to 11PM and Monday (Jan. 12) 9 to 11PM on ABC. The ABC Theatre presentation is based upon the Pulitzer Prize winning book "Eleanor and Franklin" by Joseph Lash.

The screenplay was written by James Costigan, who won Emmy Awards in 1975 for his original teleplay "Love Among the Ruins," also an ABC Theatre presentation, and in 1973 for "War of Children."

Location filming for the insightful portrait of the Roosevelts included sites in Pasadena, Calif.; Tacoma and Seattle, Wash.; Burkeville and Keysville, Va.; Georgetown and Washington, D.C.; Warm Springs, Ga.; and Hyde Park, N.Y.

Miss Alexander, who plays Eleanor from the age of 18 through 60, received both a Tony Award and a Theatre World Award for her stage role in "The Great White Hope," later won an Oscar for her screen portrayal of the role. She made a rare television appearance this past season in ABC's "Death Be Not Proud."

Herrmann, who has appeared on Broadway and also in the feature films "The Great Waldo Pepper," "Paper Chase" and "The Great Gatsby," plays Franklin D. Roosevelt from the age 20 through 50.

About her role Miss Alexander says, "I prepared for this part for a year and a half. Naturally, I read Joseph Lash's book on which the screenplay is based," she says, "as well as all the biographies I could find."

When writer Costigan was asked to do the screenplay, he almost turned it down. After mulling it over for days, he says, trying to think how to do the screenplay he was about to bow out when during a Sunday evening stroll a thought came to him.

"I remembered the time, when immediately following President Roosevelt's death, Mrs. Roosevelt went to Warm Springs, Ga., where she was alone with his body for a time. The length of time has variously been reported as anywhere from five minutes to one hour.

"There has always been something mysterious about what went on there — what she thought about during that time alone," Costigan says. "That gave me the hook I needed — that is my script."

She also saw hundreds of feet of film on Mrs. Roosevelt at Hyde Park, N.Y., where there is a tape library, and listened to a number of recordings, the earliest being one made in 1924 when she was 40.

Herrman learned the value of patience while he waited to hear whether he had the part of RFD. When word came (after two long years) that he had the role and production was going to begin, he also immersed himself in the project by intensive reading.

Costigan not only authored the screenplay, he switched hats and became an agent — of sorts by suggesting Jane Alexander for Eleanor to producers Audrey Maas and Harry Sherman.

In due time, Mrs. Maas asked Miss Alexander to meet with Joseph Lash and Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., Literary executor of his mother's estate.

After a short discussion, Roosevelt said to the room at large: "Obviously, I never knew my mother as a young woman but I'd like to think she was exactly like Jane Alexander." Turning to her, he said, "I don't know how much my vote counts but I vote for you."

"TELE-TALK"

Members of the cast and crew of ABC's comedy series, On the Rocks, which takes place inside a minimum security institution, recently played baseball against an unusual team. The opposing nine was composed of members of "The Seventh Step Foundation," a group of ex-prisoners. The foundation was formed in 1963 in Lansing, Kansas, by Bill Sands who was once imprisoned. Sands wrote the books, "My Shadow Runs Fast" and "The Seventh Step Handbook." Sands, now deceased, firmly believed that a former inmate can go back into an institution to give inmates a "hand up" by visits and counseling, and that when a paroled person is given a chance, he can become a taxpayer rather than a tax burden. Currently, within the United States there are 51 chapters within institutions and 42 outside chapters. And now, back to the game: the score was "The Seventh Steps" — 21, "On the Rocks" — 13.

On the Rocks airs Thursdays at 8:30PM.

When in Rome, you're ahead of the game if you talk like the Romans, and when watching NBC's Doctors Hospital, Wednesdays at 9PM, you're ahead when you understand "hospitalese", or hospital jargon.

Some terms used frequently in the series follow:

"Dr. Goodwin, you're wanted in OR-4." Dr. Goodwin (series star George Peppard) is either needed to use his surgical skills or pass judgment on the work of the surgeons on his staff in Operating Room 4.

"Get the defibrillator." The patient in OR-4 has an irregular heart beat. The defibrillator is a machine used to shock the patient's heart into a viable rhythm.

"Bring in the code blue team!" The poor patient has suffered a cardiac arrest and the code blue team (used in some hospitals), a group of doctors and nurses adept at handling resuscitation, are on their way.

"Credit the success of that operation to the control doctor." Control doctor #1 is in charge of the code blue team's resuscitation attempt.

"Dr. Ortega, you're wanted in ICU. Dr. Purcell, you're wanted in ER. Dr. Goodwin you're wanted in OR-3 stat." Dr. Ortega (Victor Campos) is needed in the Intensive Care Unit where patients are watched constantly on monitors. Dr. Purcell (Zohra Lampert) is needed in the Emergency Room. And Dr. Goodwin is needed again for surgery immediately.

Barbara Walters, co-host of Today on NBC, was saluted as Person of The Year by the Television Bureau of Advertising. Walters was honored as "the personality who contributed most to the long-term growth of television as a show business and advertising medium." The award has been presented for the past two years as a salute to the man or woman who has made a significant contribution to television's growth as a communications, marketing and entertainment medium. The past recipients have been Howard Cosell (in 1973) and Mary Tyler Moore (in 1974).

Walters was named 1975 Broadcaster of the Year by the International Radio and Television Society. Additionally, she was the recipient of a recent Special Trustees Award from the Newswomen's Club of New York and was awarded an Emmy by the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences as Outstanding Hostess in a Talk, Service or Variety series.

ANGIE DICKINSON: GREATER UNDERSTANDING

A veteran police chief, on being introduced to "Sergeant Pepper Anderson" in the person of "Police Woman" star Angie Dickinson, remarked: "I was born 30 years too early. Can you image riding a patrol car with her?" Whereupon he sighed deeply.

Angie's job as a plainclothes officer has her impersonating go-go dancers, gambling den dealers, models and dozens of other characters — all of whom offer her an opportunity to make the character of the police woman credible. Her success is reflected in a citation from the International Conference of Police Associations, which commends her for "giving the public greater understanding and insight into professional police work."

Born in Kulm, N.D., the daughter of parents who owned and operated a local weekly newspaper, Angie later moved to Edgeley where her parents published the Edgeley Mail. Their next move was to Burbank, Calif., where she attended parochial schools and, briefly, Immaculate Heart and Glendale Colleges.

A television beauty contest offering some prizes which appealed to her, prompted Angie to give in to the urging of her school friends and enter. There, she was spotted by a casting director who arranged for her to appear on a Jimmy Durante TV show guest-starring Frank Sinatra. Having been bitten by the show business bug, Angie took a job as a secretary to finance studies at the late Batami Schneider's Acting Workshop in Hollywood. Her first movie job to attract real attention was as Feathers, a dance hall girl, in Howard Hawks' "Rio Bravo." After this, she was in "Bramble Bush" with Richard Burton, "Rachel Cade" with Peter Finch, "Jessica" and "Oceans 11." Later, after signing with Universal Studios, she was the female lead in "Captain Newman, M.D." with Gregory Peck and Tony Curtis, and "The Killers" with Lee Marvin and John Cassavetes.

After leaving Universal, Angie appeared in "Young Billy Young" with Robert Mitchum, "Point Blank" with Lee Marvin and "The Chase" with Marlon Brando, among other films. Her most recent movie is "Big, Bad Mama" a comedy set in the 1930s.

Married to composer Burt Bacharach, Angie is the mother of 8-year-old Nikki. They live in Beverly Hills, Calif.

'TENNIS ANYONE'

In countless stage plays, the cliche line, "Tennis anyone?," seldom evoked interest in the actors or audience. But that's not so on the set of the ABC's daytime drama series, General Hospital. Every day, for the past seven years, when the cast and crew break for lunch, John Beradino, Rachel Ames, Peter Hansen and Valerie Starrett race for the tennis court, rather than the studio commissary. Once on the court the performers take their tennis game as seriously as their starring roles on General Hospital engaging in brisk singles and mixed doubles competition. Since both Rachel and Valerie are actress/homemaker/mothers and do not have as much time to practice during their off hours as the men, the women play either mixed doubles or compete against each other. The foursome often play at the Penthouse Rachet Club on top of the ABC Entertainment Center on the Avenue of the Stars in Century City.

"I can stay trim, get a tan and keep away from temptation," says Valerie. "The exercise is the greatest, my game has improved immeasurably since we started and the playing keeps my reflexes sharp for flying," explains pilot Peter Hansen. Rachel adds, "I'd rather watch my back hand than my waistline." "I love the game and the competition," says former major league baseball player John Beradino.

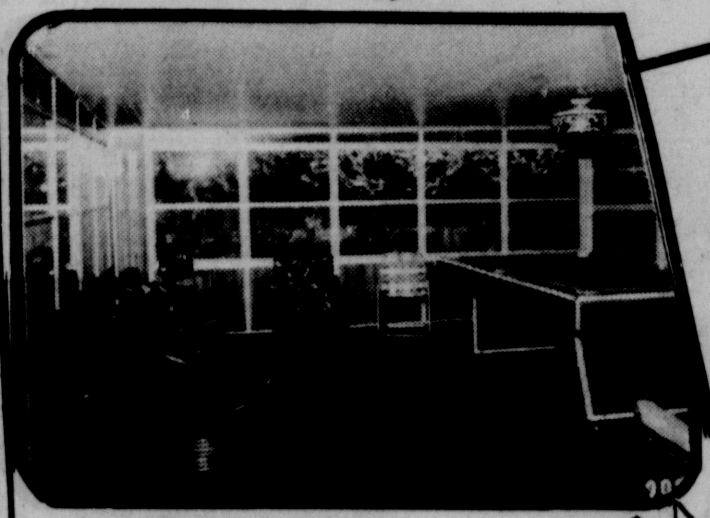

General Hospital airs Monday-Friday at 3PM.

Your Surgicard!

for SURGICARE®

Your new personalized identification card when you apply for Surgicare. A different way for people of all ages to have supplemental Surgical Insurance Protection and Fast Personal Claims Service...

Surgicare can cost as little as $3.60 a month.

SEND NO MONEY NOW—WE WILL BILL YOU LATER

NATIONAL HOME LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY

"Hospital and surgeons' bills will cost even more this year. That's why you need SURGICARE®."

Art Linkletter is a Member of the Board of Directors and has a financial interest in the Company.

Why you need SURGICARE

Ten years ago, even if your basic health insurance plan didn't pay the whole bill for surgery, you probably could have afforded to pay the rest.

Now, with the steep 240% rise in hospital costs of the past 12 years, (physician's bills alone are up over 100%) it's a different story!*

Few Americans realize their basic health insurance plans usually do not cover all the bills for a surgical operation.

Most have some form of health insurance, yet Americans paid over $36 billion out of their own pockets for health care costs last year.

And, far too many of them may have to dig into savings or go into debt to meet the high costs of their operations.

But under your Surgicare Insurance Plan, benefits are payable for every covered operation. If an operation is not listed in the policy schedule you will be paid in accordance with time and difficulty of the operation. And here's another Surgicare feature—unless you request otherwise, benefits are paid direct to you!

*Source: Dept. of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics.
Social Security Bulletin, Feb. 1975.

SURGICARE

- Pays for ANY covered Surgery.
- Pays in or out of the hospital.
- Pays regardless of Medicare, or any other company's insurance.
- Pays from $10.00 to $1,000.00 for any covered Surgery, according to the surgical schedule.

That's why you should have Surgicare, the insurance plan that tells you exactly how much we pay when you have an operation covered by this plan, and puts the amount in black and white right in your policy.

When more than one operation is performed at the same time in different operative fields, we pay for the one that has the highest benefit amount plus 50% of the scheduled benefit for all others.

How your Surgicard helps when you need it.

When you are covered by SURGICARE you receive a SURGICARD to carry with you at all times.

It identifies you as a SURGICARE policyowner—eligible for all the benefits of your SURGICARE policy, including a special telephone number that you can call collect to talk with your own personal SURGICARD REPRESENTATIVE. She'll answer any questions you have about your claim and give you quick information about your SURGICARE policy.

65 and Over? SURGICARE can help you too!

Medicare is surely a blessing to older Americans. But what many people don't realize is that even Medicare, generous as it is, doesn't pay for everything.

Under Medicare, some part of your bill must always be paid by you. That's why thousands of folks like yourself who are 65 and over are receiving benefits under Surgicare.

And these benefits are paid in addition to Medicare, Medi-Cal, or any other coverage you have!

Surgical bills can be the most expensive part of going to the hospital.

Anyone who's been through surgery lately will probably tell you about the high cost of hospitalization.

It's not surprising!

The medical expenses from an operation that may have cost $500.00 in 1963 would probably cost as much as $1,535.00 today!

Inflation has so increased the cost of medical care that what your plan doesn't pay is far more expensive than even a few years ago!

"Hi! I'm Carol Simpson, your Personal Service Representative. I'll be here to help make sure you receive all benefits you're entitled to with your Surgicard.

"Right now . . . I'd like you to examine this outstanding protection. Simply fill out the short enrollment form on the back page. Your first month's premium is a dollar, but send no money now—we'll bill you later. See your policy first, before you decide.

"And remember, there's absolutely no obligation. The only obligation is ours."

This is Surgicard!

Your SURGICARE®

  —(215) 647-8060—
- Convenience: Unless you tell us otherwise, we pay benefits direct to you. No delay!
- Value: SURGICARE® is a modern, surgical insurance plan that can easily fit your family's budget.

These are just a few of the many types of operations listed in your policy. And we pay from $10.00 to $1,000.00 benefits for every covered operation. Even if it is not listed in your policy, we'll pay benefits based on the time and difficulty of the operation as related to the amount specified for a comparable listed operation.

Add this "Optional Hospital Benefit" $900.00 a month ($30.00 a day) from the very first day you are hospitalized for any covered accident or illness . . . for as long as you stay.

The price of surgery can be shocking. But remember how expensive all the other costs of hospitalization can be! And your basic health plan may not cover all the regular bills when you are hospitalized. The part you have to pay could cost you a fortune.

That's why we've offered this "Optional Hospital Benefit"—it entitles you to benefits for every day you're hospitalized for any covered accident or illness. And, of course, unless you request otherwise, benefits are paid direct to you.

What the "Optional Hospital Benefit" pays—

in hospital benefits—regardless of age. Coverage starts the very first day of hospitalization for any covered accident or illness and continues for as long as you stay, no matter how long that may be. And remember, there is no reduction in benefits because of age.

■ $900.00 a month ($30.00 a day)

when your child is hospitalized (if you have Coverage for Children); benefits begin the first day for any covered accident or illness and continue for the entire stay.

Today's hospitals are full of people who felt fine just a short time ago. Why gamble on your future when you can make your whole family, and your savings more secure with National Home's "Optional Hospital Benefit."

SEE HOW EASILY SURGICARE CAN FIT YOUR FAMILY'S BUDGET.

SURGICARE® PAYS FOR ANY COVERED SURGERY

These are the exclusions

- Any illness, disease or physical condition originating during the one year period before the policy went into effect. These conditions are any for which medical advice or treatment was given. (These pre-existing conditions are not covered until the policy has been in force for one year.)
- Pregnancy or miscarriage and during the year following birth, for any complications of pregnancy or miscarriage.
- War injuries or losses sustained through any act of war.
- Any mental or functional nervous disorder; or loss due to the use of narcotics or intoxication.
- Dental repair or surgery, except where repair is necessary due to injury to natural teeth.

California's Gov. Jerry Brown with his father, Pat Brown

"I think my son could be President. It's possible he could do what Kennedy did. He's a greater intellectual and he's not that wealthy, but he has that mass appeal. Not individual appeal—he's more of an introvert—but mass appeal." —Pat Brown

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR EILEEN FULTON, star of "As the World Turns"*

Did you ever do love scenes with someone you personally didn't like?—H.C., Miami Beach, Fla.

● Yes. There was once an actor (who shall remain nameless) whom I loathed. I couldn't stand his smell, his jokes or getting near him—let alone kissing him. The first thing I did was give him a bottle of my husband's favorite cologne, so one problem was eliminated. About the others—well, I tried to make up nice things about him. First I'd think of something sweet my husband did, then transfer it to the actor. Once a scene began, I'd be O.K. That's because I assumed the role of the character I was portraying. But it was tough going until the cameras started to roll.

FOR BOB HOPE

Who is your favorite comedian?—M.Y., Wilcox, Lansing, Mich.

● There are a lot of comedians I enjoy, really too many to make a complete list. I like Shecky Green, as well as many, many others who appear in Las Vegas. Some of the people who make me laugh hardest are behind-the-scenes people. For instance, I have a comedy writer named Charlie Lee who really breaks me up.

FOR SEN. BARRY GOLDWATER (R-Ariz.)*

Why are you such an outspoken defender of our military forces? Can't the world's most extravagant military establishment defend itself?—R. Barney, San Antonio, Texas

● The U.S. does not have the most extravagant military system. I would bestow that honor on the Soviets. But to answer the main question, as long as there's a threat to our freedom or that of our allies, America must remain militarily strong. That threat has been, is and will continue to be the Soviet Union until we are mutually able to reduce it.

FOR SUNNY GRIFFIN, model*

Do you feel that fashion is more down-to-earth today?—P.P., Scranton, Pa.

● Yes, for a very good reason—clothing has become a major investment. So, you'll be seeing more and more understated but chic clothing as long as the recession continues. I'd like to offer one hint about make-up for all the earth-colored clothes that are now the rage: complement them with deeper but not darker shades of make-up. Otherwise, you'll look invisible!

FOR JIMMY COCO, actor*

You've been on Johnny Carson's show so often. What's he like?—L.E., Chattanooga, Tenn.

● Terrific to work with. He keeps guests at ease and out of embarrassing situations. He's the sort you want to know better away from the studio. And what a sense of humor! He passed a hotel room and heard the announcement on TV, ". . . And he-e-e-re's Johnny!" He knocked on the door, and the fellow who opened it cast one eye on the TV Johnny and his other eye on Johnny in the flesh. Johnny just asked him: "Can you tell me what time it is?"

FOR SANDY DUNCAN

Is this your first or second marriage, and do you have any children?—D.C., Vancouver, Wash.

● Tom (Calcattera) is my second husband. He's a doctor and was one of a team who examined me when I had my eye surgery. We've been married since January 1973. Scott, my 10-year-old stepson, is as tall as I am (5'4"). He's all I could want in a child. In fact, I'm not sure I want any of my own. He's fulfilled my maternal instincts.

FOR ABIGAIL VAN BUREN, "Dear Abby" columnist

Have you ever been asked a question that was impossible to answer?—Allen Spence, Blountville, Tenn.

● Stumped? No. But when a problem concerns something that one cannot change, such as a physical deformity that absolutely defies correction, the only answer to give is: "Learn to live with it, dear."

FOR EARL BUTZ, Secretary of Agriculture

Are the Russian people being told where all this wheat they're getting came from?—Hal Borden, Crystal Beach, Fla.

● No, I'm afraid not. The Soviet Union does not, as a matter of policy, report on grain imports in the public press. But some Russians will learn about these imports via foreign radio broadcasts, such as Voice of America.

FOR GRAHAM KERR, "The Galloping Gourmet"

Tell me, what happens to the food you prepare—who eats it, who pays for it and who cleans up?—Lenora Renshaw, Arroyo Grande, Calif.

● Our crew eats it, every single scrap. I pay for half the cost, and our production company takes care of the rest. Carol and Ann, who, incidentally, gave 10 percent of their wages to Freedom from Hunger relief, make everything nice and shipshape in the studio.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

I saw an amateur production of "The King and I," and it reminded me of Yul Brynner. What's he doing these days?—B.E., Albany, N.Y.

● Brynner, now 55, is appearing in "Home Sweet Homer," his first Broadway show since he did "The King and I" 24 years ago. His last movie was "Westworld." You don't hear too much about him because he lives in Normandy, France, with his wife Jacqueline and adopted Vietnamese daughters, Mia, 19 months and Melody, 7 months (Yul has two children, Rock and Victoria, by previous marriages). He has made many documentary films for the U.N. World Refugees Organization. Oriental-born, he speaks 11 languages, and is shocked when he hears himself on tape. "I sound like a lousy foreigner," he complained. "It upsets me because I think of myself as an American actor." Brynner rejected his "King and I" role when it was first offered to him. He was 31 at the time, and felt he could not play a 55-year-old man.

The Governor's Son as Governor:

An Inside-the-Family Look At California's Controversial Leader

"The Brown children all vividly remember fiery discussions at the dinner table, and in particular, Jerry's debates with his father. . . . His father thought he was helping him to find his identity, Jerry thought he was being squelched."

Jerry Brown as teenager—in his first tux.

By Peer J. Oppenheimer

California's 34th Governor, Edmund Gerald Brown, Jr., has always wanted to do things on his own. But from the time he was born, he was cast in a role that had to be played out in the shadow of his effusive father, ex-Gov. Edmund Gerald (Pat) Brown, Sr. That overwhelming fact seems to have made Jerry Brown the kind of man he is today.

His father did the casting. "Pat had wanted his son to be named after him," said Bernice, wife of an ex-Governor named Brown, and mother of the present Governor of the same name. I never liked the idea of calling him Ed, so I used his middle name." Last January, 37-year-old Jerry Brown took over the governorship his father filled for eight years. Since then, the big political question has been: Just who and what is this rather puzzling, slender, intense-looking, heavy-browed, easily annoyed man who holds one of the nation's key political offices?

Is he, as first suggested, the intellectual leader who can rekindle the national spirit shot down by Kennedy's assassin? Or is he just a fellow pointing to tracks long imprinted in the sand? And how hard is he trying to prove to the world and himself that he's his own man, not just Pat Brown's son?

Jerry Brown seems to be doing everything he can to be as unlike his father as possible. He was quoted as saying he felt he almost lost the election because people associated him with his father. After he took office, he remarked, "I don't think my father thought I'd make it," and he refused to live in the new governor's mansion which he sarcastically calls "that $1.3 million Taj Mahal." Kidding, he says, "Maybe we can turn it into a halfway house for lobbyists."

Governor Brown now: Paying the rent.

His father, who loved the pomp of the office, chuckled. "I'd sorta hoped they'd let a retired Governor use it. Bernice and I could do all of his entertaining for him. But I'd never suggest that. Jerry wouldn't like it."

The new Governor seldom entertains. If he has to, he usually takes guests out to dinner or meets them at the office to talk. "I think he's missing out on a lot that way," his father said in his roomy law office in Beverly Hills. "One of the nicest things about being governor was getting to entertain interesting people like Sadat, Indira Gandhi and Khrushchev. I loved it!"

When I asked Jerry Brown why he turned down the mansion, he said, "First of all, it saves about a million dollars on security (a fact which worries his mother a lot) and in upkeep and maintenance fees. And even if I were married and had a family, I wouldn't want to live 25 miles away in a wealthy suburban area that bespeaks the affluence of a past era. To me, this symbolizes the disconnection between my job and what it stands for. If the old governor's mansion was still available, and if I had a family, that might have been O.K. But it's ridiculous to consider a place that's so big and expensive that there can't be five people in all of Sacramento who could maintain it! You can see where I stay from my office window," he said, pointing. "It's in walking distance, and I only sleep there anyway, so it's perfectly adequate."

He pays the rent himself, and one reporter wrote that he slept on a mattress on the floor, implying a monastic existence. "I wish they hadn't said it like that," said Jerry's mother. "Besides, Jerry has a nice home in Los Angeles. [It features a large room with fireplace, lots of books and plenty of windows overlooking Hollywood.] It's rather isolated, with lots of trees around it, the way Jerry likes it."

(I had asked Jerry if he was raised frugally. "Let's say I didn't have much of an allowance," he said. "I was given the option of making an effort and doing chores—or not getting an allowance." He grinned. "I usually opted for no allowance and no chores.")

His mother remembers: "When he was in high school, he'd come home around 3:30 and fix himself a steak and salad. That was his idea of a snack. And believe it or not, he could still sit down and eat dinner! He never gained weight then—maybe it was all that swimming and weight lifting he did. But now, he watches it. He'll say, 'No potatoes for me.'"

Jerry Brown has also refused Ronald Reagan's private jet, preferring to fly commercially ("You sit next to interesting people . . ." but airline officials shudder at the security risk). He has brushed aside the limousine used by his predecessors. "I drive whatever car is available in the motor pool. This year it happens to be '74 Plymouths," he told me. The only additions to the two vehicles he uses are state police radios and telephones.

The Governor didn't get where he is by accident. When Jerry was born, Pat Brown was already a prominent lawyer in San Francisco. By the time Jerry was five, his father had become a district attorney, and in 1951 he was elected attorney general of California. In '58, he ran for governor, won and remained chief executive for two terms. During all this time, Brown Sr. used his son as a ploy in his own campaigns ("When we were young, our father paraded us before the public. I didn't like it, and I'm sure Jerry didn't either," says Jerry's sister, Kathleen Rice, of the L.A. Board of Education.)

The Brown children all vividly remember fiery discussions at the dinner table, and in particular, Jerry's debates with his father. Pat calls them "rousing conversations," but Jerry—at 12 and 13—tended to feel they were tests of his mettle. His father thought he was helping him to find his identity. Jerry thought he was being squelched.

At 17, Jerry went off to Santa Clara University, a Catholic school. It was a step toward the independence he wanted so much. But this, too, was heavily influenced by his father.

Jerry's enrollment in Catholic St. Ignatius High School and Santa Clara was foreseeable. But not foreseeable was his leaving college to cloister himself as a Jesuit seminarian at Sacred Heart in Los Gatos, where—from age 18 to 22—he lived in extreme self-discipline amid books and scholars for three and a half years. "Studying for the priesthood gave me the opportunity to read, to think, to reflect," he says now. "I went into it because I thought the spiritual life was the most serious, worthwhile way to spend time. I felt I would be dealing with important things, and would get to the heart of things."

His mother says: "There's no question that Jerry's years under the Jesuits influenced him, and as a result, he became a scholar—which he might not have become otherwise."

For two hours every month, during visiting times, Pat Brown tried to persuade his son to return to the outside world and study law. At last he won—almost. Young Brown left to attend California's Berkeley campus. But he studied Latin and Greek, not law.

"I left," he said, "because after a few years I felt I had to move somewhere else. I was unwilling to accept the conformity that was expected of me. There were some promises I had to make that I simply couldn't fulfill. I wanted more freedom than I could have as a priest."

His pious training still shows. "I think he has a great inner strength," says his mother, whom he resembles. "When he was in training, he probably started thinking about the real values in life, and now he measures everything by that."

During his college days, he enjoyed the run of the governor's mansion and the State Capitol. No one was safe from his questioning. He also watched his father in action. Always outgoing, even bombastic, his father enjoyed the power of his office and went at his job with great enthusiasm. "Perhaps my best quality is that I like people. I never can believe that I can't make people like me," Pat Brown said.

"I think the job's breakneck pace is incompatible with marriage. For two people to be together constantly takes a lot of consideration and attention. I don't have the time right now."
—Jerry Brown

It would have been hard to escape such a whirlwind. Before long, Jerry was willing to get a law degree, like his father. By then it was almost a foregone conclusion that the second Edmund G. Brown would get into politics. Said Barbara, "I think he did it to please our father." "It has always been part of my life," Jerry told me. "But consciously, I went into politics during the Vietnam War when I worked on Eugene McCarthy's campaign in an effort to end the war."

In 1969 Jerry won a place on the L.A. Community College Board of Trustees. In 1970 he became California's Secretary of State. "His four years in that job were good experience," his father said. "He learned a lot."

In 1974 Jerry took on the governorship, winning out in a hard-fought battle against Republican Houston Flournoy. Ironically, Pat Brown himself had considered running for the office again. "I stepped aside because Jerry was running," Pat admitted. "I didn't want to be in there trying to get votes against him. And I now realize that as we go along, we get barnacles—we get stuck with ideas and end up defending them. Jerry is fresh, has a new approach."

So far, Jerry has spent most of his energies on the Farm-Labor Program, the closing of tax loopholes, housing for poor income groups, and most of all, education. He has also given a lot of thought to what he sees as the country's changing needs and values. "It's time to realize there is a limit to economic growth, that we must live within our income and our resources. The present is not just an extension of the past where we had full employment, unlimited growth, unlimited everything. We have to learn to live with what we have if we want to survive. That includes holding the lid on spending."

He continues: "There has been an enormous appetite in this country for public service. I think people have to realize that public service isn't cheap. We have problems today that may take up to ten years to solve. For other problems, there may be no solution. But we must try."

The logical next step for an ambitious man—and Governor Brown is ambitious—is the Presidency.

"I'm not a candidate and I plan to stick to the job I'm doing now," he said. "I've only been in office nine months and I find this place hard enough to run." He grinned. "It's questionable whether California is even governable!"

"I think my son could be President," Pat Brown said firmly. "I think I could have been, under other circumstances. It's possible he could do what Kennedy did. He's a greater intellectual, and he's not that wealthy, but he has that mass appeal. Not individual appeal—he's more of an introvert—but mass appeal."

Unfortunately, Jerry does have one problem Kennedy did not: he tends to alienate people. "He's alienated some governors," says Pat Brown, "because he hasn't gone to their conferences." And says Jerry's mother: "Jerry wasn't particularly sensitive as a child. But he was thoughtful, and he still is. For instance, he will not give Christmas presents every year just because everyone else is doing so. When he does give something, it is given with a lot of thought. He won't give something unless it is meaningful!"

The day FAMILY WEEKLY talked with Governor Brown—the first interview he'd given to a weekly magazine, we were told—he was in shirtsleeves, and his lunch was a sandwich sent up from the cafeteria. And he was putting in an 18-hour-day, as usual. Was it true that he works nonstop, seven days a week, and has taken off an average of only one and a half days a month?" "I work long hours, but I try to take off on Sundays," he said. "Then I'll go to the beach. Or out on a date."

"He's always kept his private life private," says his father, "but I can tell you he's brought home a lot of girls to meet us. Some of them I really liked—like Natalie Wood. He went with her for about a year after she divorced Bob Wagner. And lately there was Candice Bergen . . ."

Was Jerry seeing a lot of singer Linda Ronstadt? "I've dated Linda," he said, then grinned. "I've also dated other girls . . ."

Any wedding plans for Jerry? "No," he says. "I think the job's breakneck pace is incompatible with marriage. For two people to be together constantly takes a lot of consideration and attention. I don't have the time right now."

Does the Governor have a sense of humor? "Yes, he does," his father said. "But it's intellectual and very subtle. Still, he can laugh uproariously." As for a temper, "He gets annoyed—irritated may be a better word—but he doesn't let go. He just snaps back, or gets sarcastic."

Is there a rift between father and son? "We've always had a close relationship," his father insists. And Tom Quinn, who ran Jerry's campaign, said, "Jerry's warmth toward his father is deep and sincere. Pat didn't play an active role in Jerry's campaign because Jerry didn't want to use his father to win. I'm not sure Pat ever understood just how much his son wanted to do it himself."

Smart Cooking To Beat the Clock

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen makes an easy seafood casserole using fresh frozen cod fillets. "This is one of those easy recipes you'll want to try," says Marilyn. "Allow cod fillets to thaw, then assemble the casserole and bake. You'll be on your way to a tasty fish dinner in no time at all."

COD 'N' TATER BAKE

1 can (10¾ ozs.) cream of shrimp soup, undiluted
1 tablespoon white horseradish
Few drops Tabasco
1 pkg. (1 lb.) frozen potato rounds

1. Preheat oven to 400°F.
2. Arrange fillets in serving-size portions in 2-qt. shallow baking dish.
3. To make sauce, combine soup, sour cream, green onion, horseradish, Tabasco and paprika in small bowl.
4. Spoon sauce over fish fillets, covering them completely. Top with frozen potato rounds.
5. Bake 30 to 35 minutes, or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork.

Makes 4 servings

What's Smart: Fish, almost a perfect food because its protein is complete protein, makes a nutritious, economical entrée. Lean, white-fleshed North Atlantic Ocean fish contain 18- to 20-percent protein and are 85- to 95-percent digestible. A four-ounce serving of "lean" fish contains fewer than 100 calories. The price of frozen cod fillets, in plentiful supply now, will generally range from $1.25 to $1.30 per pound.

Here are several tips for the proper handling of fish:

1. When purchasing frozen fish, select undamaged packages which feel solid.

2. Store fish in your freezer in its original vapor-moisture proof wrapping. Keep fish frozen until you plan to use it.

3. Because a home freezer may not keep foods at the ideal temperature — zero — storage should be limited. (Put purchasing date on packages.)

4. The refrigerator is the proper thawing spot for frozen fish (allow 24 hours for a one-pound package). Do not thaw fish at room temperature.

5. If the thawing process must be speeded up, immerse the fish in cold water, or hold it under cold running water. Fish must be wrapped in a waterproof package.

For a helpful free pamphlet on fish, send for: "The Secrets of Serving Delicious Fish." Send a self-addressed, stamped large business envelope to: North Atlantic Seafood Association, Dept. SW, 111 East Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. 60601.

"The Trauma of Eventlessness"

A Psychiatrist's New Look at Housewife Boredom

By Dusty Sklar

"When a person has nothing to look forward to but an uninterrupted continuation of life, she may suffer the same feelings of helplessness as if she were overwhelmed by some external force."

I sometimes get so lonely," a young woman once told me, "that I go out and sit through a PTA meeting just to be with people." If you've ever sat through any organizational business meeting, you know how lonely that is.

It's odd to think of eventlessness as causing anxiety, but Psychiatrist Robert Seidenberg has described the feelings of panic, dread and impending disaster which a young suburban housewife may experience even when the conditions of her life are quite stable and secure. It's apparently the anticipation of more and more "eventlessness," the absence of stimuli, challenge, choices, decision-making, which can threaten one's well-being as much as a physical danger. The "something" that a housewife may dread is that "nothing" is going to happen—and for a long, long time. The future will be only a continuation of the past, and it will be bland, banal and confined.

Dr. Seidenberg describes a patient, a married woman with young children living an apparently well-adjusted life. The young woman's complaint is: "I'm afraid something is going to happen, but I don't know what it is." Dr. Seidenberg soon discovers that the woman's life lacks any sense of challenge or adventure. Ironically, she feels herself unaccountably threatened by some nameless danger. During the course of her psychoanalysis, it becomes clear that she has been caught in a secure trap. Her life is devoid of deprivation, predatory human beings or ferocious animals. Absence of challenge, decision-making, problem-solving would be her destiny.

This very absence of stimuli can have the same effects as an actual physical danger. When a person has nothing to look forward to but an uninterrupted continuation of life, she may suffer the same feelings of helplessness as if she were overwhelmed by some external force. Because she can't name the enemy, she is doomed to accept a passive role with a creeping sense of inferiority.

But why this increased dissatisfaction at a time when the feminist movement has made it possible for more and more women to fulfill themselves outside the home? Why now, of all times, should there be a greater incidence of suicide among the female population than among the male population?

Today, even though the average woman is still a "private person," she is excited and stimulated by the desire for a public life, which is still burdened by social and psychological penalties. It is also burdened by what Matina Horner, former Harvard psychologist and now president of Radcliffe, calls the "fear of success." The will not to succeed increases with a woman's ability. A major reason for this fear may be that success outside the home is still considered unfeminine.

What can a woman who faces the trauma of eventlessness do to extricate herself? How can she prevent the possible loss of self?

"The Trauma of Eventlessness"

1. Recognize the dangers. Dr. Seidenberg feels that the anxiety itself is "salutary and self-preservative." His own particular patient withdrew from the role of shopper and hair-dryer captive to become a door-to-door canvasser for a research corporation in a dangerous inner-city neighborhood. "Plagued by anxiety in supermarkets and beauty salons," says Dr. Seidenberg, "she suffered no fear in this 'outside' work, only exhilaration, giving evidence once again that the overriding danger to her existence lay in the 'safety' of the housewife's role."

Sociologist Robert Coles says that what a child needs more than anything else is his parents' "support, concern and help." And yet: "These days, I feel a cultural pressure not to be absorbed in my child," says Ann Roiphe, author of "Up the Sandbox." Young women such as this one are not well served by a society which insists that all of life's prizes are won by those who are successful outside the home. "The new tolerance," says Mrs. Roiphe, "should ultimately respect the lady who wants to make pies, as well as the one who majors in higher mathematics."

And, also on the positive side, Margaret Mead points out that the home still "has areas of freedom that are almost wholly lacking in much American employment."

2. Encourage yourself and others to take the job of child-rearing seriously. It has never been more difficult, nor more denigrated. Love is, unfortunately, not enough in bringing up children well. The job requires all your intelligence and conscious effort, a putting-in-order of your own emotional state.

3. Finally, don't ignore your private dreams. If you can, decide what it is you really want to do in life—and if you can't just go out and do those things now, perhaps there is some way you can work toward them—day by day by day.

Jobmanship

Business Clichés That Could Spell Trouble

Some of the slogans you may hear at work sound more sensible than they really are. Writing in a leading management publication, Fred Fisher, Vice President of National Training and Development Service, points out that comments like "Have you checked the company policy on that? or "Does it square with the organization chart?" can often kill good ideas. You can add to profits or cut costs if you'll stop reacting to new ideas with the above remarks. When you hear your bosses insisting that "If there is one thing we believe in, it's competition," look around and see if they're talking about competition with other companies or internal competition in which every department is busy competing. In cases where your boss has the attitude, "We've got to minimize our risks," realize you're not going to learn very much on this job. A risk-minimizing atmosphere means your boss might expect you to forget aggressiveness and stick to company tradition. The boss's next step may be: "One mistake and you're out." This, Fisher says, can be one of the most dangerous of business clichés. Mistakes are a cost of doing business in an aggressive outfit and should be brought out in the open and worked on. But under the "one mistake and you're out" attitude, people naturally will do anything to hide and disguise their errors. So the business loses and no one learns.

"My husband laughed when I came home with Bantron. He said a person has to quit smoking on their own will power. Now he isn't laughing anymore."

This is from Mrs. Lori Helmlinger (right) of Anna, Ohio, a two pack a day smoker for over twenty years. With the help of Bantron® Smoking Deterrent Tablets she quit for good in just six days. In actual clinical tests of Bantron among smokers who wanted to quit, more than 4 out of 5 did so easily and pleasantly in 5 to 7 days. Bantron is not habit forming and does not affect your taste in any way. It works by acting as a substitute for the nicotine in your system. Try Bantron. Thousands of people all over the world have quit with its help. You can get a 7 day supply at your drug store now—enough to do the job.

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

Can You "Track" the Criminal Mind?

True or False?
Children who participate in athletics are less likely to become delinquent. (See number 2.)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. People who believe society is to blame for a criminal's behavior have a different view of life from people who believe the criminal himself is solely responsible.

2. Children who participate in athletics are less likely to become delinquent.

3. When a person departs from the straight and narrow, his personality-type determines the kind of crime he will most likely commit.

4. There are certain signs in children which are predictive of violent or antisocial tendencies.

5. Nobody knows just why vandals want to destroy things.

6. You can reduce your vulnerability to crime without a revolver under your pillow.

ANSWERS

1. True. Psychological studies at Yale and at the University of Chicago have found that people tend to be divided into two psychological types: the Externals, who tend to attribute responsibility for their own and other people's acts to external forces outside their control, such as environment, luck or social conditions in general; and the Internals, who tend to assume responsibility for their own acts, believing that whether the individual deserves praise or blame depends largely on his own efforts and personal motivation. Investigations have shown that this is true even in attributing blame for auto accidents.

2. True—according to studies of high school students. It's suggested that this is because athletics "provide greater exposure to *non*delinquent influences, stronger social controls, and that athletics result in less pressure toward rebellion, less boredom and less need to assert masculinity through deviant behavior." Another investigator concludes from his findings that if it were not for interest in interscholastic sports, there would be a marked increase in dropouts and various forms of delinquency.

3. True. Criminals have been found to have particular psychological attitudes that have a great influence on their choice of criminal behavior. This explains why there are specific types who specialize in pocket-picking or robbery with violence or fraud. Such criminals usually find themselves incapable of committing a different kind of crime. Thus the law-abiding citizen may take what consolation he can from the fact that the pickpocket isn't likely to try to sell him some phony oil stocks.

4. True. Studies show that a triad of behavioral symptoms—setting fires, chronic bed-wetting and mistreatment of animals—is indicative of an antisocial personality in the making. If a child shows these signs, the alert parent will recognize them and realize that the child needs special guidance and understanding.

5. False. Psychological studies show that they do it because, to them, it is exhilarating and exciting and provides a means of hitting out at society, which they feel has stacked the cards against them. As one authority who has completed an investigation of the causes for vandalism observes, "Our research indicates that the physical act of smashing, banging and breaking is very pleasurable in itself. For people who feel powerless, such acts of destruction are chosen because they have an effect upon some part of the environment and are more easily accomplished than constructive acts."

6. True. Crime studies at the University of Michigan show that the basic step is learning to avoid being a victim. In many crimes, it is the victim's subtle cooperation with the offender which makes the crime possible. Bureau of Social Science Research specialist Lynn A. Curtis cites a typical example of victim participation in armed and unarmed robbery where the victim offers "temptation-opportunities": "A man flashes a roll of money at a bar or restaurant and then makes his way homeward on a dark street at night." It's further noted that the victims in an increasingly large number of thefts and burglaries cooperate with the criminal almost to the extent that an accomplice would—by leaving the keys in their cars, or leaving their houses unlocked.

THE RICE DIET

IT'S A HEALING DIET AS WELL AS A REDUCING DIET

The famous Rice Diet wasn't even designed for taking off fat. It was created as a healing diet. And heal it does.

IT CONTAINS NO CHOLESTEROL

Medical Research has acclaimed a no-fat diet as being of paramount aid in the treatment of certain heart and kidney conditions. Scientists also advocate this program as the basis of a general reducing diet.

The health value of this diet is founded upon the fact that it contains no cholesterol – which many doctors believe dangerous to the heart, kidneys, and blood circulation.

THE DIET REVERSES MUCH DAMAGE DONE BY HEART DISORDERS

Twenty-five years ago our medical establishment was extremely skeptical of the startling discovery that the Rice Diet reverses much of the damage done by blood vessel, eye, heart, and kidney disorders. Without any medication other than a prolonged diet largely composed of unsalted rice, some enlarged hearts grew smaller, blood pressures and blood sugar dropped.

CLAIMS FOR THE RICE DIET VERIFIED BY TEAMS OF DOCTORS

Teams of doctors from leading institutions around the world investigated the diet. They thought that they would scoff at the claims, but they applauded instead. "The question now," concluded a report in one eminent medical journal, "is not 'Does the diet work?' The question is 'How does it work?'"

FAMOUS PEOPLE HAVE ENDORSED THE RESULTS OF RICE DIETING

"I truly would have died if I hadn't gone" on a program of rice dieting, says the wife of a former state governor. "I was seriously ill and weighed 230 pounds." She dropped 80 pounds in 19 weeks, and her blood sugar plummeted as well. (Since the diet is largely carbohydrate, this is one of the mysteries of it.)

A famous singer and movie actor, on the other hand, got hooked on the taste of the diet and lost 80 pounds, too. He still follows the diet every day. Before the Rice Diet, he had been on a high-protein diet for ten years or so: "I used to have to put down a pound of steak before a recording," he says. "Now, I can eat a little rice and sing like a bird."

The complete program brings you essential information and dozens of delicious menus and easy recipes for breakfast, lunch, and dinner.

What in the World!

Kevin Dowling/Franz Furst

THE OTHER BARDOT
Life at the center

When your older sister is Brigitte Bardot, it's no easy task keeping up. Although Mijanou Bardot can't claim a universal audience, her oversized cushions and 40-foot-long python pillows have become the rage with international celebrities, from film director Roman Polanski to artist Salvador Dali. Said Dali of her creations: "Mijanou's works are far from inexpensive, but when you sit in one of those enormous cushions, it's like sitting in the center of the world, which coming from a surrealist is an unparalleled recommendation. I also have a dozen of her wonderful snakes adorning my coffin which is kept ready for me at all times." Country fresh-looking, with freckles and red hair, Mijanou bears little physical resemblance to her celebrated sister. But a woman who can capture the imagination of a Polanski or a Dali can be nothing short of fascinating.

Hal Linden, star of TV's "Barney Miller," on the connection between cops and TV: "I've always had a tremendous respect for cops, perhaps because I grew up in a rough neighborhood in New York and I wasn't a tough kid. I'm glad to say that I think they're more aware and broad-minded than they were 20 years ago. I recently went out with an anti-crime unit to see what their work was really like. What I learned from that experience was the overriding element of fear that cops have to live with every day if they want to survive." Can crime be curtailed? Linden says: "I think we must stop feeding our kids a diet of "soft white-bread" TV. All those mediocre situation comedies do is promote false ideas. I'm not saying that realism is the answer, but truth certainly is. I honestly believe that antisocial behavior is directly related to the pap Americans grow up on."

Hal Linden

DR. SARAH SHORT
Black lights and music

Are "cleaning your plate" and drinking milk really so important for kids? Flamboyant nutritionist Sarah Short says no. Dr. Short, of Syracuse University, says: "The myth that the fat baby is a happy one is false. Generally, all that happens is that they grow up to be fat, unhappy adults. Just as we think of the healthy adult as slim and trim, we should think of our young the same way. As far as feeding cow's milk to babies is concerned, it is difficult for the young baby to digest the tough protein curd which is found in cow's milk. Breast feeding is the optimum solution, although most infant formulas are just as good. I'd also like to correct the myth that cow's milk is the perfect food to give our children since it is practically devoid of the large amounts of iron and Vitamin C which are essential for both children and adults." Dr. Short, who feels that nutrition has been a badly neglected subject ("it's not even taught in most medical schools"), decided on a new approach. "I paint formulas on my legs in fluorescent colors and run as many as 11 slide projectors simultaneously along with black lights and music. This is part of a teaching experience to attract the students' attention. As a result, their grades have improved dramatically and my classes are overcrowded." Dr. Short, mother of three, acts as a consultant to Mead Johnson and Co. Her latest book is "Innovative Teaching of Nutrition."

QUITE A CARD

When we first wed, my wife and I
Enjoyed a bridge club. Don't ask why.
She still plays bridge, I never do.
Bridge as a waste of time, I view.
I once held hands that all admired
And bid as high as I desired.
But cardboard hands are not for me,
My wife I think would now agree.
I tell her (you might try this, sirs)
The best hands I have held were hers.

The bride of a struggling young writer was the hit of the evening at a party.

"She's charming!" the hostess said enthusiastically to the husband. "And her dress is a poem!"

"Not a poem," answered the young writer gloomily. "Sixteen poems, five short stories, nine essays and three advertising brochures."
